Live Before You Die.

My son, you may not be missed a great deal by a very wide circle of people when you die. It wont be necessary for you to leave much money for a tombstone. The few people who love you, who tenderly and dearly love you, will know which mound covers your sleeping figure, and they will find it just as well by the ferns and grasses that wave above it; and a monument ninety feet high wont make straners care for you, or make them love you, or make them remember you. You may not be missed a great deal by very many people when you die my boy; but that isn't what you want to think about. You want to make yourself felt and noticed while you are here. That's what you want to do. And that is more than most men do. Just run your eye over this paragraph again, if you have time, and think over it a little while you are waiting for morning service to begin. Now and then you meet a man who actually rejoices, in a mean, envious sort of way, to think that in a few years his more popular, prosperous, successful neighbor will be dead and forgotten. It may be true. The big, wide world is so busy with the living that she does seem to forget her children when they fall asleep. But you will notice that the man who rejoices in this is usually a man whom she has forgotten while he yet lives, who has not been felt or heard in the world at
