TEN CENTS A NIGHT.

The Plan on Which a Cheap Lodging House is Run.
"Now, I will show you the dime museum," said the proprietor of the cheap lodging house, facetiously, as he led the way to a room at the very top of the house. Its ceiling sloped to within a few feet of the floor. There were one single and four double beds in it, and on the former an old man was sitting reading.
"Sometimes, when there's a rush, we put them in three in a bed," said the proprietor. "You can't expect much for ten cents, you know. Some of 'em call it the lunatic asylum. I'll tell you why when we go down stairs." There were no sheets on the ten-cent beds, and the air in the room had apparently remained unchanged as long as had the quilts and blankets. The reporter was quite willing to go down stairs.
"You noticed that old gentleman sitting on the bed, didn't you?" asked the proprietor. "He makes up the beds for me and gets a single bed for doing it. His name's Huzzins, and he's a lunatic; that's why we call it the lunatic asylum. He thinks the room is full of witches, and every night he gets up and shoots 'em out of the room. He shakes his bed up first to get 'em out of that, and then waves his pillow at 'em to drive 'em out of the windows."
"Doesn't this tend to disturb the other lodgers?" the visitor asked.
"Well, you see, they're used to it," said the proprietor, "though I guess it does rather rattle a transient when the ole man gets on the war path."
"Then there's another old fellow named Philip. He sells cough drops all day that are warranted to cure coughs, colds and bronchitis. What with standing out in the rain and not having a change of clothes he's got so bad a cough himself that he can't talk above a whisper. I asked him why he didn't take some of his cough drops, but he only winked and said hot tea was good enough for him. He had a new pair of shoes stolen one night through over-sleeping and not getting awake to claim 'em, and since then he's invented a new scheme that's worth money to know. Just before he gets into bed each night he puts two legs of the bedstead into the shoes, and if anybody moves 'em they've got to lift the bed and wake him while they're doing it."
"Then there's another chap that mends clocks. He goes around from door to door asking people if they haven't got any clocks they want mended. He charges 25 cents for fixing 'em, but he tells me he doesn't know any more about fixing a clock than I do, and all he wants is to keep 'em going 'til he gets out of the house. There's another fellow comes here who goes from store to store collecting waste paper and wrappings. He makes about 30 cents a day. Another boarder gathers in old gum shoes and sells 'em for 3 1/2 cents a pound.
"Then there's another regular boarder, who makes a living by begging for old clothes. His lay is to say that he's just out of the hospital, that he's too weak to work yet and wants some old clothes for his wife and children. He's a fair spoken fellow, and women give him old clothes and bonnets for his wife. He sells them at the second hand stores and makes about $1 a day. The four of 'em, being regular boarders, are allowed to cook their breakfasts on my stove. They club together and get two rye loaves one day old for half price, that's 5 cents; 5 cents worth of coffee and a half pound of sugar is 9 cents, and a fifth of bacon is 6; that makes 20 cents altogether. They put a little flour in the grease from the fifth and make a gravy. So the four of 'em breakfasts for 5 cents apiece."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Best Way to Obtain Rest.

"In the progressive tendencies of the American people," said a physician to a reporter, "the subject of proper rest plays a very small part. The idea seems to prevail among them that this matter is subservient to all else—that it may be taken at any time and in almost any manner, provided there is nothing more important to do. Only this morning a lady consulted me in regard to her health, complaining of a tired feeling, being scarcely able to attend to her duties, and all that. I diagnosed the case, but could discover no symptom of disease. She was simply suffering from want of proper rest. I told her what troubled her and no doubt she went away convinced that I did not understand her case. A man or woman particularly the latter, will become tired, and being firmly convinced that everything will go wrong if she stops work, busies herself with some other occupation, or, if exhausted will throw herself in a chair or upon a lounge with a book or paper, and try and restore strength in that way. This is not rest. It only creates a longing for it. The true way is to lie full length upon a mattress, or any equally hard surface, using no pillow, with arms extended and eyes closed. Dismiss for the time all care and seek only rest. This will bring to an exhausted body the refreshment and contentment which no amount of medical advice or skill can produce."—N. Y. Mail and Express.

Across the Continent.

From the Atlantic seaboard daily journey thousands of immigrants, hosts of enterprising tourists for pleasure, occasional European seekers for material for books on America, multitudes of hardy native and foreign agriculturists and artisans, all eager, all expectant, but all unaccustomed to the new climate of the frontier, and all unprotected with a medical safeguard—to encounter malaria, the chief foe to health in regions newly cleared and opened up for settlement. These western-bound travelers will find in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters the safety from malarial infection they might vainly seek from other sources. Tried in all parts of the world, under experiences the best fitted to show its value, it has failed nowhere under the most exacting conditions. In so many lands is it in request that the demand for it may well be termed universal. Not only malaria, but constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, rheumatism, debility, nervousness and inaction of the kidneys, are thoroughly relieved by it.

A Remedy in Kidney Affection.
"My kidneys were so affected I have been compelled to get up as much as ten times in one night. I had pains in my side, back and left shoulder, and when I could hardly rise. I was unable to bend my body without great pain. I tried Simmons' Liver Regulator and my condition has improved so much that I hardly ever feel any of my old trouble."—*W. SPokane Falls, Nov. 12.—One surprise follows another in the gigantic strides made by Spokane along the smooth highway of prosperity. J. S. Cameron, vice-president of the Union Pacific, C. J. Hubbard of Kansas City, and Charles Francis Adams, president of the Union Pacific, have just consummated the purchase of a large tract of land on the north side, within the city borders. One other party, whose name was not ascertained, is a purchaser with them. In conversation with Cameron, the Oregonian representative was given strong hints of what is soon to occur, and which will be greatly to the interest of the city. That gentleman regards this place as the future great business center of the large agricultural and mining regions. He says the water power is superior to any other, as it is confined between solid walls, where it can be easily controlled. He implied that there is much more in this advance purchase than railroad reticence permits to be disclosed.—Oregonian, 13.
