of Chicago. Claim Royalty.

On the Occident's register yester-day appeared the names of Edward Norton and Edmund Adeock, of Chicago. The former is of the firm of Norton Bros., of Chicago, the largest firm is an extensive one, taking and putting through a contract for forty million cans as an ordinary affair.

The two gentlemen came out to consult with C. W. Fulton, the attor-ney for the Jensen Canfilling compleased to believe that this machine invented by M. Jensen, and owned and patented by him is an infringement on one of their machines. They t claim royalty and the turning over to them of the machines by whoso-ever used. They want a royalty on every can of salmon packed or to be packed by one of the Jensen machines. One thing is clear, viz: that the Jensen machines work is an improvement on work of the kind hitherto attempted in that line. The points at issue will occasion one of the biggest suits in the history of the salmon business, and a case of inthe salmon business, and a case of interest to every canner of salmon on "Knocked out by a British nigger," the coast.

AN IMPORTANT MATTER.

The Committee Favor the Portage Road

The committee on memorials and resolutions of the Columbia Waterway association had a called meeting in the office of Hon. M. C. George, at Portland last Tuesday afternoon.

Norton Bros., of Chicago, the largest manufacturers of cans and canner's materials in the United States. The latter is the firm's attorney. The firm is an extensive one, taking and Astoria, considered sundry plans proposed for the o ening of the upper and middle Columbia to traffic.

While no definite conclusion was positively reached, it was the unani-mous opiniou of the committee that ney for the Jensen Canfilling company, of this city. Among the many machines invented and put in successful operation by M. Jensen is a can topping machine, which is considered to be a marvellous labor-saving device. By its aid 250,000 cases of salmon were topped last year. The Chicago gentlemen are pleased to believe that this machine invented by M. Jensen, and owned of such portage road.

FRESH FASHION FANCIES.

The half-long sleeves, now so much worn for evening, have ribbon epaulets, or else long strings of eastern-looking beads pendent from the lower edges.

The plain coat sleeve is rarely seen nowadays. But if it suits one's taste it can be made sufficiently dressy by setting four bands of wide velvet diagonally across it.

Williamson, J. H., Crook. Wilson, J. Q., Marion. The Origin of "Schooner."

The first vessel of this rig was said to have been built in Gloucester about the year 1713. When she went off the stocks into the water, a by-stander cried out, "O, how she scoons!" The builder instantly re-plied, "a schooner let her be;" and from that time vessels thus rigged have gone by that name. The word scoon is popularly used in some parts of New England to denote the act of making stones skip along the surface
