Mrs. Lebold, living at Elma, W. T., had quite a novel experience last week, in going to Vancouver to prove up on her timber claim. While stop ping over night at Portland she pre-sented her husband with a son. About four years ago says the Mon-tesano Vidette, Mr. A. M. Simpson conceived the idea of procuring some of the famous eastern or Boston ms, and placing them in the waterof Gray's harbor, as an experiment. He obtained about six bushels of them, which Capt. Baily, then master of the Arno, distributed at various places in the harbor. These clamhave multiplied wonderfully, until to day it is estimated that they would fill two of the largest vessels that come into the harbor. They are far superior to any shell fish on the coast, boing remarkably tender and deli-

The County Superintendent's Report.

Following is the report, as therein contained, of C. W. Shively, the school superintendent of this county: Clatsop county has not, until during the past two years, taken that inn s long been neglected. Most of the population of the county being persous of limited education, and most of their time taken up in manual labors, little time has been devoted to keeping alive any enthusiastic feeling with regard to bettering the mental condition of the children. But lately a more general feeling is being shown, and I find the people in the country only want good teachers, and are satisfied to pay them better salaries than heretofore. This general feeling and interest in improving the public school system, to better advance the mental culture of the school children, and to furnish the schools with qualified teachers, has been brought about by educational meetings, where the teachers have met and interchanged their views on education, and introducing for discussion the many new features of mental training and the advanced methods of teaching adopted in older states.

To make good teachers it is necessary to frequently have educational Clerks' Bonds .- I believe that every school clerk should be required to give sufficient bonds to the district. School directors generally are not I believe the new school law for the strict enough, and sometimes it has examination of teachers is a very bappened in the counties in the state good law, and better protects the that directors did not require any bonds of the school clerk, and as a consequence it has happened that the district has often been the loser of school money. I believe the directors should be more careful and see and inquire and gain all the information they can whether the bondsmen are responsible persons, and the clerk's bonds should never be less than the school law stipulates. No hopest school clerk will be unwilling to give the required bonds. Clatsop sounty has been fortunate in having school directors who are careful to follow the school law, and require all their clerks to enter into bonds before taking the office, and I have not neard of this county ever losing a sent.

School Apparatus.—The public chools of Clatsop county are very leficient in all kinds of school apparitus. I find the country schools trely in need of maps, globes, charts, to. I have suggested to the board of directors of the city schools in this owned and published here, has been county that more attention should be abandoned and all money subscribed given to school apparatus.

In the city of Astoria the school houses are on a much better plan. In school district No. 1, which is the oldest in the country, there is a very fine three story frame building, with brick base ment, well lighted and ventilated, and heated with furnaces situated in the basement. This school house cost $35,000. The next best school house is in district No. 18, which is situated in the city of Astoria and was no one time a part of district No. 1, and was made a separate district in the year 1880. springs of pure water. As far as I have seen, and am able to judge, I believe Clatsop county is well supplied with comfortable school houses. While not so grand and costly as some of the school houses in other counties of the state, still they are comfortable, and the chil dren learn just as well as if they stud sed in more grand buildings. School Clerks' Reports.—The school clerk's report should be made out carefully, and plainly written, so that the original can be quickly un-derstood, and before completing it should be carefully examined to see if correct and all the required infor-mation has been reported. It should ne corrected, if any errors, before sending to the county superintendent, and should be complete in every detail, so that when the county superintendent makes his report to the tion and a good business stand.
