Before he had made his success as a commercial traveler he was staying in Minnespolis for no reason whatever except that he happened to be there and couldn't get away. He was a man of good appearance, however, and going to a hotel he registered in an impressive manner. La a short time he was well acquainted with the landlord, and when he spoke of a draft that functionary very promptly undertook the responsibility of cash-ing it. "Just make out your draft," said the landlord. "Here, this piece of note paper will do."

Sam sat down and in a short time remarked: "Here's a draft for fifty now, if you will oblige me-ah, thanks!"
"But," said the landlord, "you haven't made the draft on any body.
There's no drawer."

"Oh, that's all right," said Sam "You know more people than I do; just fill it in to suit yourself. I left it blank on purpose.

It is but justice to Sam to say that FRESH AND CURED MEATS! I lord now and that he could cash a Lo, The Poor Indian.

Up in the Sitting Bull country a while ago, an Indian, who had never seen any of the paleface style of food, came in from the warpath to the reservation and drew his rations. He made a light meal of unground coffee the first day, and, as he overate, and the coffee swelled in him, he had difficulty in buttoning his pants around the pain he had on hand. In a day or two (as soon as he had succeeded in getting his interior department quieted down a little) he tackled his ration of candles. These he decided to parboil, in order to save trouble from indigestion. The dish was not so much of a glittering success as he had anticipated, and as he remorse fully picked the candle wicking out of his teeth, he made some remark that grated harshly on the austhetic ears of those who stood near. He then tried a meal of yeast powder with vinegar. He ate the yeast powder and then took a pint of vinegar to wash it down. At first there was a feeling of glad surprise in his stomach. which rapidly gave place to unavailing remorse. A can of yeast powders in an Indian's midst don't seem to be prepared for a pint of vinegar, and the result of such an unfortunate circumstance is not gratifying. It took him about a week to get back to where he dared to get up another meal for himself. Then he fricasseed a couple of pounds of laundry soap and ate

Senatorial Dignity A certain senator, who is a candidate for re-election, and is somewhat nervous over his prospects, was sitting at his deak the other day when one of his neighbors turned to him and said:

"M --, why are you so gloomy today? You look as though you were frightened about something.' "My friend," was the reply, "the expression upon my face which you mistake for fright is senatorial dignity. Three influential citizens of my state are sitting in the gallery opposite and I am on my good bebavior."-Chicago Herald.

The discovery that there are several cases of small pox at the Ormsby House, at Carson, Nev. has greatly excited the people. The state senstors, assemblymen and their families have all deserted the hotel and are hunting other quarters. All that are known to have been stopping there are refused admittance to any place and are out in the streets.
