

The Daily Astorian

ASTORIA, OREGON: THURSDAY, JUNE 13, 1889.

A TORONTO telegraph company is competing with the government post-office by delivering letters for 1 cent each.

A SYRACUSE, N. Y., newsboy wants $10,000 damages because a man called him a swindler for exchanging an old paper for a new one.

The Rev. P. S. Twitty of Outhbert, Ga., is trying to organize an anti-kissing society in that town. Up to latest advice the society consisted of the Rev. P. S. Twitty.

Six indictments for gambling have been returned against a minister of the Kanawah valley, W. Va. It is presumed that he presided over some games of chance to be found occasionally at church fairs.

An effort is to be made in Iowa to strip the law of its nonsense. Lawyers declare that deeds, warrants and all other legal papers can be cut down one-half in the amount of verbiage and wherefore.

AUDITOR COULTER calls for seventy-five additional clerks to handle the untouched money-orders that have been accumulating in the past two years. One of his chief clerks says twice the number are needed.

UNITED STATES senator Payne of Ohio is quoted as saying he is positively not a candidate for reelection. He seems to have had an unhappy time of it since holding a seat in the senate to which the title is questionable.

BENJAMIN D. SULLIVAN of New York city says there were only 495 lawyers in that city when he began his practice sixty years ago, but that the New York bar is now adorned with 5,575 members, some of whom have grown rich.

WILLIAM KEMMLER, who is the first person sentenced in New York to be executed by electricity, says that he fears such a death a hundred times more than a death by rope. If murderers generally have such a dread of the mysterious death by electric shock, life may be safer when such punishment is in general practice.

The census of 1890 will furnish information which no other federal census has yielded relating to the recorded indebtedness of the people. The idea is to present statistics showing the extent of this private indebtedness of record and the form in which it exists—namely, whether in real estate or mortgages, debts otherwise secured, or in general indebtedness through notes and bills payable.

In these peaceful times no business is more profitable than the manufacture of death-dealing instruments. At Steyer, in Upper Austria, is the biggest small arms factory in the world. Day and night the factory is busy making Mannlicher repeating rifles for the Austrian army and the composite Mauser-Krapotchek-Mannlicher rifle for the Germans. Germany will have its own plant, capable of turning out one thousand rifles a day, in operation next year. At Birmingham and Enfield a plant is being put, in anticipation of big orders for the British service rifle. The British orders will keep English arms factories busy for at least two years.

SEATTLE, JUNE 11.—A careful canvass reveals the situation in this city to be as follows: The business men are almost entirely without store rooms, but are putting up tents in which they will be able to dispose of their wares until more suitable quarters can be erected. This element of our citizens are abundantly able to care for themselves.

There are a large number of people in the city, including clerks, etc., with and without families, who have lost their all, and a large number of persons also who are destitute and without food or shelter, except what is given them. These people are being cared for the best way possible, but as it will be some months before they can be supplied with houses, any contribution in the shape of bedding, food and household goods of all kinds will be most acceptable.

A labor bureau is being organized, and it is only a question of a few days until all who want can find work. Those who have no visible means of support, and who will not work will be ordered to leave the city, and if they don't, will be arrested and summarily dealt with.

Restaurants are starting up all over the city, and those who have money can find food, plain though it may be. The city will be rebuilt at once, on a grander and better scale than ever. Contracts have already been let for numbers of large brick buildings, and inside of one year Seattle will doubtless be a better and greater city than before.

The relief committee has full charge of all contributions, which will be used in the best manner possible. Quite an amount of funds will be required to tide us over, but liberal donations of money, which are being gratefully received, will enable us to relieve the most needy.

The weather is good, and will prevent much suffering to those without shelter.

The gratitude of Seattle to those fellow-countrymen who have been so liberal to her in her suffering, is unbounded, and will never be forgotten.

J. R. LEWIS, Chairman Relief Committee.

EDITORIAL EXPLANATION.

Why the Swampville "Wiggler" Failed to Appear Last Week.

The Swampville Wiggler of last week contained among other interesting personae, the following: Old Bob Crook has set a report going in town that does us a grave injustice and we feel that it is our duty to rise and brand it as infamously false. He says that the reason we failed to get the Wiggler out last week was because we were too drunk to set the type. We want to say right here that old Bob lies. When we get too drunk to set type we are pretty far gone. Now, the fact of the business is simply this: Thursday afternoon when our forms were made up and ready to lock, we went up to Colonel Dyke's saloon to meet Major Bones, who promised to be there at that time to pay us sixty cents on his subscription account, which has been running over seven years. When we arrived the major was in the middle of a long yarn about old times, and we waited for him to finish before we called his attention to his promise. After that we joined the boys in a drink just to show the social side of our nature.

Well, when we went back to our office we found that judge Jones' old red sow had rooted the office door down and was inside playing havoc with things generally. She had already upset the imposing stone and pried the forms and was at the moment we stepped in standing on her head eating the last of a keg of ink we had just received as pay for a column of advertising space for one year.

We undertook to drive the old sow right out, when she whirled on us and showed a strong desire to eat us. We felt that it would be well to make our escape, so we skun up the wall just as she made a rip at us and got our pants. It was a narrow escape from a horrible death.

For four hours we sat up there astride of a sharp joist and "sooied" that old varmint, but she paid no more attention to us than she would to the blowing of the wind. She drank the last bit of our ink, and tried to eat the keg, and then she ate the tympan off the press. At last, just at dark, she took our subscription book in her mouth and trotted away, and we came down and stole home down the back alley, where we had to remain until our wife succeeding in persuading Colonel Barnes to let us have a pair of pants on time, for which we have to induce the genial colonel to take advertising in pay.

This is the true reason why the Wiggler failed to appear last week, and old Bob Crook knows it, for we saw him and five or six others standing on the opposite street corner laughing at us as we sat astride of the joist.

We want to say right here that we've suffered enough at the hands of that old sow, and if something is not done with her we shall take the law in our own hands. This is not the first time she has raided our office. It was only last month, when we were deeply absorbed in a leading editorial on the marvelous growth and progress of our city, that she came in unannounced and without the least warning rooted over the benches on which we were at the time writing. That old sow is the bane of our life, and for fifteen years has kept us out of the church. She has demolished our office, taken the bread out of our mouth, made our life miserable, stood between us and Heaven, and now we say she must cease.

HE SENT IT EAST.

For a year I was troubled with pains in my back and side, and headaches, the result of liver and kidney trouble. I was attracted to Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla, by the startling testimonials in the papers. They seemed so practical I was induced to try it, knowing that as it was purely vegetable, it would do no harm. It acted as a gentle laxative. After the second bottle my pains and aches disappeared. It did so much for me that I sent several bottles to my family in New Jersey, who also took it with the most satisfactory results.

Specials to The Astorian.

Interesting Items from Portland.

PORTLAND, June 12.—The Seattle relief fund now amounts to $12,000.

To-night Messrs. McDermot and Edwards, local inspectors of boilers and hulls for this district, will leave for Riparia and Pasco, where they will inspect several boats. The Nixon and Billings are at Pasco and the Almota is at Riparia. The inspectors will return to this city next Monday and will then start out for southern Oregon district to attend to official matters.

Mr. Ed Pangburn, who is well known here as the pursuer in the employ of the O. R. & N. Co., is now acting as agent for that company at Whatcom, W. T. As soon as the steamer Olympian is repaired he will resume his regular position with her as pursuer.

This morning Henry Villard, accompanied by T. F. Oakes, president and general manager of the Northern Pacific railroad; N. O. Thrall, assistant president, and Paul Schulze, arrived here in a special car. The party have taken quarters at No. 155 Alder street. Mr. Villard will probably remain here two or three weeks. He is desirous of renewing his acquaintance with the people of this city and on Friday night next he will be glad to meet them at the New Park theatre, where he will deliver an address of interest to this community.

Mr. E. C. Wheeler, mayor of East Portland, and clerk of this city, died at the residence of J. T. Stewart, on Fourth and H streets, East Portland, at about 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Wheeler had been suffering from heart trouble which was the immediate cause of his death. He had been confined to his bed for some weeks and his friends had long ago given up hope of his recovery.

This afternoon Dr. Richmond Kelly examined Joseph Dooley, formerly a resident of East Portland, now in the county jail, and pronounced him insane. Nothing could be elicited from the man, and he is evidently suffering from softening of the brain.
