THE CENTENNIAL FOURTH.

A Very Fine Observance in this City.

Last Thursday, the hundredth Fourth of July, the beginning of our present form of constitutional government in 1789, was celebrated in this city on a scale commensurate with the importance of the occasion. Nearly $1,500 had been subscribed through the liberality of the citizens and was placed at the disposal of those who had volunteered to engineer the public part of the celebration, and considerable effort was put forth by the different members of the different committees in making the day a memorably successful one. Beside the $1,500 subscribed about $5,500 "unsubscribed" by the citizens toward the Fourth of July fund, and it is within bounds to say that last Thursday's celebration cost Astoria $5,000. But it was worth the money and more, in the success of the celebration and the patriotic interest it aroused in the minds of the coming generation; the boys and girls for whom, after all, this is done.

For several days before busy hands had been putting the city in holiday garb, and on the morning of the Fourth it was in fitting trim on these sundown seas to commemorate in looks and effort the hundredth birthday of self government, established by a few sturdy men on a little strip of Atlantic sea coast a century before.

The morning opened cloudy with a fresh breeze from the west, that straightened out to the east by thousands of flags that flapped and fluttered from masts and arches and flag staffs, and from the vessels in the stream, and wreathed havoc among some of the decorations made by the force of the breeze from old ocean.

By three o'clock many were astir, and those who were not awake at sunrise were established by the slumbers by the thunder of the sunrise guns.

At ten o'clock the procession was ready to move, every one in his place, and amid stirring strains of martial music the parade began.

It moved according to program, without hitch or break, every one being complimented on the efficiency displayed. First came Grand Marshal C. H. Stockton, followed by Thos. Linnville, the standard bearer, preceding the Western Amateur band, which was followed by carrying a banner containing some of the officers of the day, and the venerable Judge Philo Callender who celebrates his 87th birthday day on the 14th of this month. After them came Mayor Page and Councilmen Bergman, Cleveland, Elbon, Robb, Welch and Fox, followed by Co. "H," O. N. G., First Lieutenant W. A. Sherman, acting commander. Cashing Post No. 14, G. A. R., came next, and after them the fire department represented by Astoria Engine company No. 1, Rescue Engine company, No. 2, and two tender teams.

Following that came the Liberty car, containing Daisy Stockton, who personated the Goddess of Liberty, and 22 little girls waving flags on which were inscribed the names of the different states. They were followed by a brigade of small specimens of humanity, a guard of honor, composed of little boys who each carried a gun, presenting a unique and interesting feature. They weren't men, but were what men are made of.

Seaside Lodge No. 12, A. O. U. W., a fine body of men, came next, after which moved the Finnish band, the Russian Finn soldiers, the Scandinavian Benevolent association and other organizations, the entire procession moving without any hitch or break, and in a most impressive manner.

The procession moved through crowds lining the streets over the route to Custom House square, arriving on time to the minute, 11 A. M., where about 3,000 people were assembled to attend the literary exercises. The president of the day, J. F. Halloran, introduced Rev. G. C. Hall who delivered an impressive prayer, and Mr. Frank Steyer who read the immortal Declaration of Independence in imitable style, after which Hon. C. W. Fulton delivered the oration.

It was brief and comprehensive, eloquent, historic and patriotic, and at its close the orator received three cheers from the audience as a deserved compliment to the fine address.

The Western Amateur band played patriotic music at intervals, and a choir composed of ladies and gentlemen, comprising some of the best vocal talent of the city, sang several patriotic and national songs.

This closed the literary features of the day, and shortly after noon the exercises closed, and the next thing was—dinner.

As soon as that important duty was attended to, the sports and contests of the afternoon began.

First came the fishing boat race from a point in the river opposite Flavel's dock, a sort of marine co. as you please, no limit as to variety or amount of culture carried. There were fourteen entries, and the contestants got away at 1:30 P. M. After rounding the spar buoy of the Sylvia De Grace, the racers had wind and tide both against them, but they did not waver and held their way, going over the course and finishing in good shape, amid the plaudits of those who lined the wharves. The first prize, $75 was won by Wm. Calhoun, of the Scandinavian company; the second, $25, by John Smith, of Elmors' company.

At 2 P. M. was started the Whitehall boat race, with four entries. This was also a pretty race, sailed over about the same course as the fishing boat race. The first prize, $50, was won by Jas. W. Welch's boat, sailed by Alex. Sutton; the second prize, $25, by Jas. Turk's boat, sailed by his son.

For the fat man's race, on Main street there were two entries. P. F. Hall and J. W. Crow; the $20 was won by the former, time not recorded.

At 2:30 P. M., came the 100 yard foot race, Nace Grant taking the cak and the $20 in 11 seconds.

At 3 P. M., Co. "H" gave a fine exhibition drill on Cedar street which was viewed by thousands of people, who justly complimented the officers and members for the skill and military precision displayed.

All this time there were other games and contests going on all over the city, not down in the official programs, but of considerable interest to those participating.

At 2:30 the Telephone arrived with the biggest crowd that ever came to Astoria on one trip of a river steamer, about 800 people arriving from Portland. The band was on hand with a serenade to welcome them.

Everywhere were great crowds of people; the street corners looked like battle fields with the debris of bombs, crackers and torpedoes, and the air was filled with the deafening explosion of all manner of devices for making the noise so dear to the heart of young America.

The day was a perfect one; soft, fleecy clouds veiled the sun, the air was cool and the breeze just strong enough to blow away the smoke from the explosives.

The hotels, restaurants and improvised refreshment stands did a big business, and the dispensers of liquid refreshments were not idle.

PERSONAL MENTIONS.

Dr. Aug. C. Kinney has returned from Seattle. Mrs. D. H. Welch is visiting at Medical Lake, W. T. N. W. Tallant will arrive from California to-day.

Phil. F. Bower returned from California last Thursday. Mrs. D. A. McIntosh arrived from Spokane Falls yesterday.

Ed O'Neill who has been quite ill of typhoid fever, is convalescent. Ex-sheriff W. G. Ross was among the arrivals on the Telephone last Thursday.

Were Delayed in Getting Back. Oh! a life on the ocean wave, And a home on the rolling deep: Where the winds and waters raise, And the skies their revells keep.

To man the government barge and put on good shape the fireworks thereon, went last Thursday night F. H. Surprenant, J. W. Hare, Thos. Loughey, Geo. Goodell and the barge keeper.

The expectation was that the Geo. H. Merrill would stand by and take them back to shore, but after the fireworks were all shut off and their glory had departed, the boys were there in the river, and the tide went flowing down on its way to the sea. They remained and continued remaining; that boat, oh where was she? Ask of the winds that far around with fireworks strayed the sea.

Then the fire alarm rang out, and Jimmy Hare prayed fervently. The engine, his joy and pride, was tearing down the street, and he was out on a cold barge in the river.

They still remained. At last, after remaining till it got to be about as many o'clock as it could get to be, the boys found a water-logged skiff, full of water, alongside the barge. They found an old bucket and one oar and a board, and carefully letting their frail craft draw over the side of the barge, they dropped gently into it and held their breath, and paddled and drifted and bailed, and at last got to shore, somehow.

The next time they go out in a barge on the bosom of the majestic Columbia to shoot off fireworks they will have a bond for a deed that they are not left there to work their way back at midnight in a holey skiff and only one oar.

Capt. Brown desires it stated that had he known that he was expected to take them back he would gladly have done so, the mistake arising from a misunderstanding arising from a misunderstanding.

They got Off Very Light. Yesterday morning three toughs named Jas. McCarron, Ed. McCarron and E. McIntyre started to remove and tear down some evergreens in front of the Parker House. Geo. Cruikshank, the barkeeper, told them to desist; that he didn't want them taken away. They then set upon him and gave him a cruel beating. They were arrested, and allowed to go, on each depositing $5 bail. When their cases were called in the police court yesterday afternoon, of course they forfeited their bail by not appearing.

This does not appear to be a case where the punishment fits the crime. These men committed a serious and unprovoked assault, and should be punished. The Astorian directs the attention of the proper authorities to this. Allowing them to go on $5 bail, on a simple charge of "fighting," is a farce.

ITCHING AGONIES. Every Night I Scratched Until the Skin was Raw. Body covered with scales like spots of mortar. An awful speckle. Doctors useless. Cure hopeless. Entirely cured by the CUTICURA Remedies in five weeks.

I am going to tell you of the extraordinary change your CUTICURA Remedies performed on me. About the 1st of April last I noticed itching on my back, and it soon spread all over my body, but thought nothing of it until some time later on, when it began to look like spots of mortar, and in which case I was in a very bad way, and I had to get up at night, accompanied with itching. I would scratch every night until I was raw, then the next night I would get up, being formed men, and I would scratch again. In vain did I consult all the doctors in the country, but without aid. After giving up all hopes of recovery, I happened to see an advertisement in the newspaper about your CUTICURA Remedies, and purchased them from my druggist, and obtained almost immediate relief. I can say to notice that the scaly eruptions gradually dropped off and disappeared one by one, and by the time I had used the CUTICURA Remedies I was cured. My body was covered with scales, and I was an awful spectacle to behold. Now my skin is clear and clean.
