Constipation

Demands prompt treatment. The results of neglect may be serious. Avoid all harsh and drastic purgatives, the tendency of which is to weaken the bowels. The best remedy is Ayer's Pills. Being purely vegetable, their action is prompt and their effect always beneficial. They are an admirable Liver and After-dinner pill, and everywhere endorsed by the profession.

"Ayer's Pills are highly and universally spoken of by the people about here. I make daily use of them in my practice."—Dr. I. E. Fowler, Bridgeport, Conn.

"I can recommend Ayer's Pills above all others, having long proved their value as a cathartic for myself and family."—J. T. Hess, Leithsville, Pa.

"For several years Ayer's Pills have been used in my family." We find them an for constipation and indigestion, and are never without them in the house."

—Moses Grenier, Lowell, Mass.

"I have used Ayer's Pills for liver troubles and indigestion, during many years, and have always found them prompt and efficient in their action."—L. N. Smith, Utica, N. Y.

"I suffered from constipation which assumed such an obstinate form that I feared it would cause a stoppage of the bowels. Two boxes of Ayer's Pills effected a complete cure."—D. Burke, Saco, Me.

"I have used Ayer's Pills for the past thirty years and consider them an invaluable family medicine. I know of no better remedy for liver troubles, and have always found them a prompt cure for dyspepsia."—James Quinn, 90 Middle St., Hartford, Conn.

"Having been troubled with constiveness, which seems inevitable with persons of sedentary habits, I have tried Ayer's Pills, hoping for relief. I am glad to say that they have served me better than any other medicine. I arrive at this conclusion only after a faithful trial of their merits."—Samuel T. Jones, Oak St., Boston, Mass.

The section of coast between Tillamook rock and Hecate bank has not yet been thoroughly examined, and it is possible that some banks may be discovered there, but no indications of such elevations were discovered in the hasty surveys made. Only a few fish were captured on the trawls about Tillamook rock. It has been claimed that the Indians take large numbers of halibut in this region, but inquiry at Astoria developed the fact that the flat fish actually caught there in such abundance is the so called turbot altheates stomias, not the halibut, although the latter species may occur sparingly. It is customary with Pacific coast fishermen to speak of all large flounders as halibut, which has led to many errors with regard to the distribution of that species.

The Hecate bank is an important

CRUISE OF THE "ALBATROSS"

A Partially Accurate Official Report.
Of a Somewhat Superficial Examination.

The last congress neglected to order the printing at once of the report of the operations of the fish commission's steamer, Albatross, on the Pacific coast for 1888, and it has to await its turn in the long line of official documents now in the hands of the public printer, but it is expected that it will be published before fall, and it will be given a wide circulation on the Pacific coast.

It is to be accompanied by several large maps, showing in detail the courses of the explorations and the positions and outlines of all the fishing grounds so far discovered.

The following is a synopsis of that part of the report covering the exploration on the coast of Oregon and Washington territory:

Returning south from her explorations of the Alaskan fishing grounds in September, 1888, the Albatross began at once an examination of the outer coasts of Oregon and Washington territory, which was continued until October 20, when stormy weather interfered with further operations so far north. While undergoing repairs at Seattle, and again while calling at Astoria, studies were made of the salmon and other inshore fisheries in these two important localities.

The general instructions issued to the Albatross called for a continuous and comprehensive exploration of the entire coast from the straits of Fuca southward; but as the season was somewhat limited and would not permit of the entire coast being covered before winter, in accordance with this plan, it was determined in part to take the advice of persons acquainted with the region and visit special localities, which were supposed to offer good advantages for fishing. Among those consulted in this matter were James G. Swan, of Port Townsend; F. C. Reed, state fish commissioner of Oregon; Hon. J. H. D. Gray, and other prominent citizens of Astoria. Unfortunately the season proved unfavorable for fishing trawls, as sharks and dogfish had taken possession of most of the grounds, and had driven away the edible species of fish; but the banks were located along nearly the entire coast, and their outlines and depths were determined.

The halibut banks off Cape Flattery, and between that cape and Flattery rock, were first examined. Both of these banks have been known to the Indians for a long time. The former extends northwesterly from Cape Flattery about fifteen miles, and is very rich in halibut during the spring and early summer. It is capable of supporting a large vessel fishery, as was proved by the experience of the Gloucester smacks during 1888. During the visit of Albatross in September, although the sharks and dogfish were prevalent, several species of halibut could have been obtained in a comparatively short time. The bank between the cape and Flattery rock is smaller in size and does not appear to have as many halibut on it. It is doubtful if it would be valuable ground for large vessels to resort to, but an actual trial might prove it otherwise.

A reported bank, sixty to seventy-five miles south of Cape Flattery, was searched for, but could not be found. Following thence down the coast a nearly uniform bottom of gray sand was found to extend as far south as Gray's harbor, without any indications of special fishery resources.

To the southwest of Gray's harbor, however, a small bank reported by the Indians was located and surveyed. The inner edge is about fifteen miles southwest from Point Chehalis, and it extends about twenty miles southwest and northeast, with an extreme width of twelve miles, and depths of forty to fifty fathoms. The bottom consists of rocks, mud and sand, and was found to be rich in fish food, but only red rock fish, a few black cod and sharks could be taken on hooks.

South of this locality the only favorable fishing grounds that could be found were in the neighborhood of Tillamook rock, and on Hecate bank. A thorough examination was made of the region off the mouth of the Columbia river, without discovering any banks, but it is interesting to note that a submarine trough extends seaward from this river's mouth probably the intersecting extension of the bed of the river at some time when the continent border stood at a higher level than it does to-day.

The section of coast between Tillamook rock and Hecate bank has not yet been thoroughly examined, and it is possible that some banks may be discovered there, but no indications of such elevations were discovered in the hasty surveys made. Only a few fish were captured on the trawls about Tillamook rock. It has been claimed that the Indians take large numbers of halibut in this region, but inquiry at Astoria developed the fact that the flat fish actually caught there in such abundance is the so called turbot altheates stomias, not the halibut, although the latter species may occur sparingly. It is customary with Pacific coast fishermen to speak of all large flounders as halibut, which has led to many errors with regard to the distribution of that species.

The Hecate bank is an important

fishing ground, lying in the latitude of 44 degrees north and about thirty-five miles off shore. It is about twenty miles long and ten miles wide, the bottom consisting of rocks, with alternating patches of clay and pebbles. It is very rich in the several forms of life, but, although lower level trawls were set for some time, only four fish were captured, namely, a halibut, weighing ten and one-half pounds; one black cod, one shark and one dog fish. The fact that genuine halibut was taken on the ground led to the expectation that the Hecate bank would prove the most important fishing ground on the coast of Washington territory and Oregon south of Flattery rocks, but the bank is not now resorted to by fishing vessels.

During the month of June of the present year the Albatross again passed through this region; but, as the complete report of her operations has not yet been completed, it is impossible to give a full account of her discoveries.

Only one specimen of halibut was captured on the Oregon coast, and that was taken off Tillamook rock, where red rock cod and flounders were found to be very abundant. Halibut are found off Cape Flattery, but the explorations of the Albatross thus far lend no encouragement to those who look for an extensive halibut fishery south of that region.

There is no reason, however, why the important fisheries at the north should not be made partly tributary to Oregon ports, which are only a few hours' further sailing from the grounds than those of Puget sound. The halibut fisheries of the straits of Fuca and the halibut and cod fisheries of British Columbia and Alaska all hold out inducements to capitalists and sailing masters along the entire coast, but both fresh and hatched halibut can be landed as cheaply at Astoria as at Seattle or Tacoma.

Chills and Fever, Malaria.
"Many cases of fever and ague, dumb ague and congestive chills were promptly arrested and entirely banished by the use of Simmons' Liver Regulator. You don't say half enough in regard to the efficiency of this valuable medicine in cases of ague, intermittent fever, etc. Every case has been arrested immediately. I was a sufferer for years with the liver disease, and only found relief by using the Regulator."—ROBERT J. WEEKS, BATAVIA, KANE CO., Ill.

An English syndicate has completed negotiations with Van Duzen of Rochester, Minn., by which the entire Van Duzen line of elevators along the Omaha line is transferred to the syndicate. The price paid is said to be about $5,000,000.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria

Nothing Like It

Its peculiar efficacy is due as much to the process and skill in compounding as to the ingredients themselves. Take it in time. It checks diseases in the outset, or if they be advanced will prove a potent cure.

NO HOME SHOULD BE WITHOUT IT.

It takes the place of a doctor and costly prescriptions. All who lead sedentary lives will find it the best preventive of and cure for indigestion, Constipation, Headache, Biliousness, Piles and Mental Depression. No loss of time, no interference with business while taking. For children it is most innocent and harmless. No danger from exposure after taking. Cures Colic, Diarrhoea, Bowel Complaints, Feverishness and Febrile Colds. Invalids and delicate persons will find it the mildest and most effective medicine for the liver to act on, and at the same time insures refreshing sleep and a natural evacuation of the bowels. A little taken in the morning sharpens the appetite, cleanses the stomach and sweetens the breath.

A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION.
"I have been practicing medicine for twenty years and have never been able to get up a vegetable compound that would, like Simmons' Liver Regulator, promptly and effectively move the liver to action, and at the same time insure (instead of weakening) the digestive and assimilative powers of the system."
L. M. HAYSON, M.D., Washington, Ark.
