Strange Customs-

There are a thousand strange, odd superstitions and customs floating among the vast multitude of people that would seem to have originated With its forty years in a mad brain. Among them is one of unexampled sucto this effect: If you will throw the cess in the cure of last worn shirt of a drowned person Blood Diseases, you into the stream the garment will can make no mis- sink right down over the landy. In the Nodaway river, near Oregon, Missouri, some years ago, the body of a drowned man was found thus when all other means had failed. On Sunday, August 4th, last, near the same place in that river, a young man, son of Jerry Ryan, aged about eighteen, was drowned and after several vain trials at recovering the body it was suggested to try the ular, being in greater demand than all others combined. I never hesitate to George W Whitman. bathing, and cast it on the surface of the stream, spread out with arms extended and bosom down. Slowly it floated along, Mr. Taylor following it noated along, Mr. Taylor following in his skiff, when about a hundred feet below it suddenly stopped and plunged down. The pole in Taylor's hand followed right after and struck the body. Mr. Taylor related this in the presence of several witnesses who corroborated his statements. Thus was the body recovered.

"How did you happen to hit on this plan?" was asked of Mr. Taylor, you, The shirt just stopped and plunged right down. I put the pole right down after it and touched the body immediately."

The Rome correspondent of one of the chief London journals says that he is allowed to state from the vatican that one of the principal reasons which determined the pope on calling together the last secret consistory was that he had received communications France urging him to leave Rome, and putting at his disposal a residence in any city he chose in that country, besides promising him the re-establishment of the temporal power in Rome. The holy father told the consistory that he refused the offer from France, because he will not leave Rome, except at the last moment, in case of a war in which Italy is complicated, and which cousequently, would put his person in danger; but he will never leave if his doing so would be the means of France declaring war for his cause against Italy, for whom from the bot-tom of his heart he wishes every good. "I desire," he said, "above all things that peace be maintained."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla never before equaled its present daily record of narvelous cures. The sea serpent has been killed, according to authentic reports from Panama, but no sooner was it dead than it proceeded deliberately to sink before its carcass could be secured as a guarantee of good faith. GEARD AGAINST THE STRIKE, Bachelor's Troubles.

. Information is received of an interesting case which has just been decided by the commissioner of the general land office, says the Lexing-ton Budget. On the 25th of May last Milton Bennett tried to make final proof of his pre-emption. He had slept on the land always, but, being a single man, he had boarded and paid board with his father's lamily, whose house was thirty rods distant His proof was rejected on the ground of insufficient residence. G. P. Morgan, land lawyer specialist at The Dalles, appealed the case to the commissioner of the general land office, and that officer on July 1st reversed the decision of the land office and gave Bennett the land. This is quick work and quite satisfactory to bachelor settlers who are trying to comply with the law, but are compelled by circumstances to fail on some technicality. The purpose of the law is to give the land to settlers whose inten-tions are honorable, but registers and receivers are not allowed very much latitude by the department, and in their decisions usually require a pretty close compliance with the letter of the law. In cases like the above, where the settler can make a good showing, he is often successful on an
