Picturesque Bucolic Phrases.

The phrases of country people are often picturesque enough, and one who takes the trouble to pick them up is not long in making an interesting collection. As a contribution to such a collection may be offered a couple of remarks made by a woman in the rural districts of Maine. In speaking of a neighbor who was rather remarkable for her thinness, the old lady observed in her squeaky voice and with the usual twinkle in her eye:

"Well, yes. Mirandy ain't got no more flesh on her bones than there is on a hen's forehead."

On another occasion, when the old lady was considerably exercised concerning the doings and sayings of a neighbor who often excited her disapproval, she broke out with:

"And as for that Maria Jones, she's just a piece of the old boy left in the world for seed, and that's just what she is and nothin' else."—Boston Courier.

Go In, Lemons.

They have "lemon parties" down in Maine, according to the Bath Times. Here is the form of an invitation to one:

"Misses — will give a lemon squeeze at the Town House on Friday evening, August 9th, at eight o'clock."

"The company of yourself and lady is requested. Please bring one lemon."

One's things come to those who wait—including disappointment.

A DUTY TO YOURSELF.
It is surprising that people will use a common, ordinary pill when they can secure a valuable English one for the same money. Dr. Acker's English pills are a positive cure for sick-headache and all liver troubles. They are small, sweet, easily taken and do not gripe. J. W. Conn, Druggist.
