Specials to The Astorian. The Surviving Pugilist, His Seconds, Referee and Timekeeper Held for Murder.

PORTLAND, Sept. 18.—Charles Rogers of Albina has been arrested on a charge of threatening to kill Mrs. Christina Crocker. Mrs. Crocker being unable to care for her children put them in the hands of the matron of the East Portland Home who secured them homes in private families. One fell to the lot of Rogers. The mother hearing that her child was abused called on Rogers who treated her in a shameful manner and threatened to kill her. The trial of James Turk was today set for the 20th inst. Forest fires in the hills west of the city make the atmosphere heavy. There is considerable danger to outlying residences, and much damage has already been caused by fires, and as the wind is from the west much apprehension is felt by citizens living in the western suburbs.

HELD FOR MURDER. ST. LOUIS, Sept. 18.—As a result of the inquest over the body of young Thomas E. Jackson, killed in the prize fight yesterday morning, Alcorn, the surviving principal, was held without bail, to answer to the charge of murder, while the referee, seconds and time keepers were held as accessories.

AN EARL HARD TO PLEASE. Reminiscences of the Personnel of Villard's Memorable Excursion.

A. D. Edgar, of the Northern Pacific, sat in his office recently telling stories about the memorable "gold spike" trip which was the direct cause of Henry Villard's temporary ruin. "Among the distinguished party," said Mr. Edgar, "were Lord and Lady Onslow. We were in Chicago, and the private car of the president of the Chicago & Atlantic had been promised for the use of Lord Onslow and his party. Unfortunately the president had met with an accident and found it imperative necessary to use his car to go to New York for a surgical operation. In consequence we could not get the car. I tried to do the best I could, but found the only solution of the difficulty was to get a brand new Pullman. When Lord Onslow and his party came down to the depot at Chicago he refused to enter the car, saying it was not what had been promised him. I explained matters as well as I could, but his wrath would not be appeased. At last, just as the train was about to pull out, he entered the car, making a vigorous protest. This was about 5 o'clock in the evening.

"When supper time came around there was no provision for his lordship's supper and he was hot again. In the car next ahead was the British ambassador, Sir Lionel Sackville-West and party. I went in to them and explained the situation, asking if Lord Onslow and his friends could sup in their car. The British minister was perfectly agreeable, so I returned and told Lord Onslow of the arrangements I had made. 'If Sir Lionel wants me to sup with him,' replied the noble earl, 'he can invite me.' I carried this message to Sir Lionel West, who sent back his private secretary with a personal note. This being amicably arranged I went forward into another car where a number of members of the English parliament were sitting. I found that they were unprovided with sleeping accommodations, so suggested that as there was plenty of room in Lord Onslow's car, they might bunk in there. When I informed his lordship of my arrangement he swore. It was the last straw that broke the camel's back. He declared that he had been treated very shabbily and would report me to Mr. Villard. I told the English members of parliament of the way Lord Onslow took it, but advised them to go in there just the same. This they refused to do under the circumstances and sat up all that night. I was not going to sit up for any one English lord or German baron, so our superintendent of dining cars and myself had berths made up in Lord Onslow's car and slept comfortably.

"In St. Paul there was another row. Lord Onslow wanted to ride in the carriage at the head of the procession. The German ambassador claimed that he should have the place of honor. Henry Villard got mad with them and said if there was going to be any fuss about it he would ride at the head of the procession himself. And he did it too. Lord Onslow made himself so obnoxious throughout the trip that Henry Villard told him at last to go to h—l, and sent him back."

"I had become so thoroughly tired of the whole business that I made myself very scarce when we reached St. Paul, and took the next train for Chicago. I afterward asked Mr. Villard to let me know the next time he was going to have a 'golden spike' excursion, so that I could resign my position.

"Another amusing incident of the trip was the arrival of Lord Carington at Chicago. His special car was brought in to the Burlington & Ohio depot about 4:30 A. M. Of course he was asleep. The depot master told me I must get him out of the car at once, as it was in the way and must be sidetracked. I found his valet and told him that his master would have to get up at once. The valet calmly remarked that his lordship had given special instructions that he was not to be disturbed till 10 o'clock. I told the depot master this. He replied in a deep bass voice like a peal of thunder: 'Tell him if he don't get out of there d—n quick I'll turn the hose on him.' This aroused the titled sleeper, who came out in his dressing gown. He was not like Lord Onslow and was very nice about it, being willing to do anything to accommodate us."

SCROFULA. Is that impurity of the blood which produces unsightly lumps or swellings on the glands of the neck; causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" and fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption, and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED. By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula or impure blood, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. "Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. R. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.
