The great trouble that the land officials have to deal with, they say, is to prevent the violation of the law in regard to the entry of timber land, not only in Oregon, but in the northwest generally. By the law one person can make only one entry of 160 acres of timber land. Syndicates have been formed, and great bodies of timber land, sometimes as much as 50,000 or 100,000 acres have been purchased by individuals with the understanding that when they received the patents they would be turned over to the syndicate, which not only furnished the money to the individual to purchase the land, but paid him also for the use of his name. The price of wheat in this city remains at 61 cents. There is an upward tone in the market, and the price will no doubt be higher. The foreign markets cer-tainly justify this assertion. England will need to import 144,000,000 bushels during the next twelve months, and the Russian grain crops are disappointing Russia last year sent most of her grain to the European market.
