The Preacher Got Excited.

"Yes," said an old sport in one of the pool rooms yesterday, "there is a thrill about a horse race that you can not get in any other way. The thrill is intensified in proportion as your money has gone up on the event. When Smuggler beat Goldsmith Maid at Cleveland, back thirteen years ago, the crowd almost destroyed the grand stand. In illustration of the excitement which reigned, I recall the actions of a preacher from Elkart, who was present with a friend. As the horses were scoring the parson's friend, whose name was Tracy, and who knew about as much of horses as he did of the glacial periods, remarked a belief that Smuggler might win over the Maid. This was about as probable to the experienced turfer as a republic in Russia, and one of the fraternity overhearing the remark overflowed in a proposition.
"I'll bet you $100 to $20 he don't," he said.

The preacher was interested, but somewhat shocked and silently protested by pinching Tracy's arm.

"The start was made and with the word go the persistent sport renewed his offer but it didn't take. With the horses on the back stretch and bunched he came again, but Tracy wasn't game. As they turned into the stretch the astute Doble, who was behind the Maid with the assis tance of American Girl had gotten the stallion in a pocket, but his driver, taking all chances, pulled him completely up, and taking the center of the track sent him for the wire like a ghost. No horse for a furlong ever made such time before, and as Smuggler came to the front with the rush of a storm he carried the spectators from their mental feet. Every man was up yelling, and the Elkart preacher, who must have had latent sporting blood in his veins, forgetful of his pulpit and pastorate was flourishing his cushion and shricking in reference to his propo-sition, "Bet him, Tracy, thunder and clams, bet him. I'll split with you on it."

"It was too late, though; so Tracy didn't bet."—Kansas City Times.

The Farmer Made Ten Cents-

A farmer came into one of our grocery stores with five dozen of eggs and four boxes of apples. For the eggs he was offered 22 cents per dozen cash or 25 cents trade; for the apples, 40 cents per box cash or 50 cents trade. He bought one box of soap at $1.25. Said the groceryman "The eggs pay for the soap and I'll pay you $1.60 for the apples." "No, I won't have it that way," replied the farmer. "You pay me cash for the eggs and take the soap out of the apples. Two and a half boxes of apples will pay for the soap and the other box and a half at 40 cents will amount to 60 cents cash. The eggs at twenty-two cents will amount to $1.10. That will give me a total of $1.70 cash, and that's what I want." Query, what causes this difference of ten cents?—Salem Journal.

Prejudiced: Yabsley-Bosworth is the most disagreeable man I ever saw. I was discussing political economy with him yesterday, and happened to say that the laws of supply and demand always adjusted them selves to each other, and he immedi ately got wild; said I was an ass, and didn't know what I was talking Stoves Ranges, SHEET LEAD STRIP LEAD GERMANIA BEER HALL Roadway Market. him on a sore point. His third pair of twins arrived last week.—Terre Haute Express.

She got it: Mr. Watts-I was read ing just now about the richest en in the world. Mrs. Watts-I know who is the richest woman in world without having to read. Mr. Watts-Who is it? Mrs. Watts I am; for I've got you, darling, and that makes me the richest woman in the world, even if I haven't got a bonnet fit to be seen on the street She will wear a new bonnet to church next Sunday .- Terre Haute Express.

Jimmy-Mamma, I wish you'd lick me real good and hard. Mother (surprised)—Whip you! Why, Jimmy, you haven't done anything wrong have you? Jimmy—No; but me an Bill Jones are going a swimmin', and you know you told me you'd lick me if I went, so I thought I'd enjoy the swim a good deal more if you'd do it beforehand.—Lawrence American.
