ASTORIA, OREGON:

.....OCTOBER 6, 1880 THE Jacksonville Democrat thinks the cigarette law should be enforced in this state. So it ought. So also should the law forbidding the Democrat to publish lottery advertisements.

THERE are eight Indian reservations in New York, embracing over 125,000 acres of good farming land, hardly any of which is under cultivation. The Indians hold these tracts in common, and stoutly oppose the idea of allotment in severalty.

It is claimed that there exists in Kansas City the most disastrons business depression that has been past fifteen years. There is said to Times. brought upon any western city in the be $20,000,000 invested in Kansas City that is not paying a dollar in return.

THE German government runs the mail, the express business, the railroads, the telegraphs, the schools, the army, and most all the factories that supply this vast body. It makes, not only the soldiers' guns and swords, it manufactures his coats and trousers and helmets even his bread.

The Afghan Ameer's method of vengeance on his rebel prisoners is pretty highly developed. One batch, numbering 300, were put to death three a day. One of the trio was always hanged dressed in yellow and nie Langford vs. Dr. Henry E. Jones, green, another was dressed in black is very sick, and the chances of her recovery are very doubtful. A SHIP HEAVING TO.

How Seamen Accomplish this Perilons Feat in a Storm.

The operation of "heaving to," per-formed by nearly every sailing vessel caught on the coast during the recent storm, is never resorted to by merchant vessels until it becomes absolutely necessary. The moment a ves-sel is "hove to" she becomes practic-ally stationary, the object being merely to keep her "head to the seas." Among the many vessels caught out-side during the gale was every type of craft known to "deep water voyages." There were East India clippers, West India brigs, barks, barkentines and schooners, and a few steamers.

Many of the East India packets had been out over 120 days. For many days prior to the storm the sky had been overcast. Only occasionally would the sun appear, and then for so short a time as to render a catch "sight" well with out of the store. "sight" well nigh out of the question.

In consequence many ships had been running by "dead reckoning," making the supposed position of the vessel a most uncertain one.

Under such conditions were vessels overtaken by the terrible northeaster. Wind and sea aided each other in making navigation perilons, the seas threatening at every moment to roll over on the decks of the fleeing ves-sels. Some craft, perhaps better able to stand the seas hold on, steering on a supposed true course for port. In laying off this course the base has horror which accompanies such a sound beggars description. Let it be night time and the horror is increased There is but one thing to do, and that quickly—to call, "All hands save the

The vessel is in a lee shore, the gale is blowing her right on, and unless she can be made to beat up in the wind, head off, and clear the coast she will beach. Up comes everybody with a rush, half dressed, half dazed but fully alive to the danger. The moment the seamen reach the deck the cutting wind makes wide awake

"Hard down the helm! Let fly the head sheets, lee head and main and weather cross-jack braces! Spanker sheet!" As fast as the orders fly from the bridge the men jump to their sta-tions. Round comes the great ship, and up into the wind. The head sails flap with tremendous force, threatening to fly out of the leech ropes with every roll. Now the spanker is being hauled a-weather. She feels it, and as the stern flies off her head comes right up into the mass of seething

"Round in the lee head and main and weather cross-jack braces!" Al-ready the men are at their places, and up come the weather-yard arms into the wind. The vessel is now broad-side to the seas. It is a question of life or death whether she will stop. If she but continue to come up all is well. A drag has been gotten over from forward. To it is bent a hawser leading through a quarter-chock. The drag is well away from the ship. On to the hawser jump the crew. Away they go with a rush. The drag hawser is run right to the bows, and at the same time the bow comes up rapidly.

Not a moment too soon. A gree sea the next instant lifts the ship high into the air. Had it caught her "broadside to" it would have plunged tons upon tons of green seas upon the decks. But the great craft's bow has met it. She rose as the wave advanced and plunged heavily forward as it rushed under her.

Now is the time to catch her. Sharp up go the yards on the head and main. The headsheets are hauled well aft, the helm carefully tended, the spanker eased up slightly; the ship feels the canvas, small as the amount on her is; she reaches forward staggers for a moment, then slowly works her way off through sea after sea. As soon as she is far enough out to sea the vessel is brought up into the wind, off comes the foretopmast staysail, foretopsail and spanker A close-reefed maintopsail and main spanker alone hold her up, and all attempt to fall off is counteracted by the position of the rudder. Should the wind still continue to increase in violence, the topsail will be goose-winged. This latter sail is kept on as long as possible, because of its being above the waves. Under a main spencer alone the ship has but little opportunity to feel the wind, the waves serving as a bulwark. Should, however, a goose-winged topsail and main spencer prove too much, tarpaulins placed in the lee mizzen may hold her up.

If she still continues to heel over the crew will cut away the foremast by cutting the weather laniards. If this will not right her away will go this will not right her away will go the mizzen and main, and then trust to riding out to a sea-anchor. This alone can save the vessel. Let her once fall off, get into the trough of the sea, and the consequence will be expressed in the one word of the seaman, "Foundered."—New York Times

THE SILVER QUESTION. Washington, Oct. 5.—Silver men are here in Washington, and anti-sil-ver men as well, each interviewing and interchanging views and opinions with prominent men, the secretary of the treasury, the comptroller of the currency and others who have to do with the shaping of our national finances. Before the president reaches the point in his coming message at which he will treat the subject himself, they propose to interview him. Each side of the question is and will be represented by experts, or men who think they are. Each delegation is confident of success. There is little doubt that this particular question will occupy much of the president's attention in his forthcoming message.
