Will Writing Become a Lost Art?

Will the coming man write? Not at all. There will be no more need of his learning to spin. Writing will have become one of the lost arts and a wholly unnecessary art by the time the coming man appears. His writing will be done by the phonograph, which will be placed on his desk as pens and ink are now; and whenever he has a story, a poem, an essay or a private letter to indite he will simply talk into the phonograph and send on the plate which has recorded his words. The teaching of penmanship will be unknown in the future, and writing, in the present fashion, be regarded as much among the barbaric methods as we now hold the rude hieroglyphics of the ancients to

A DUTY TO YOURSELF.

It is surprising that people will use a common, ordinary pill when they can secure a valuable English one for the same money. Dr. Acker's English pills are a positive cure for siek-headache and all liver troubles. They are small, sweet, easly taken and do not gripe. J. W. Com Druggist W. Conn, Druggist.
