Blood Diseases are cured by the persevering use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

This medicine is an Alternative, and causes a radical change in the system. The process, in some cases, may not be quite so rapid as in others; but, with persistence, the result is certain. Read these testimonials:—

"For two years I suffered from a severe pain in my right side, and had other troubles caused by a torpid liver and dyspepsia. After giving several medicines a fair trial without a cure, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I was greatly benefited by the first bottle, and after taking five bottles I was completely cured."—John W. Benson, 70 Lawrence st., Lowell, Mass.

Last May a large carbuncle broke out on my arm. The usual remedies had no effect and I was confined to my bed for eight weeks. A friend induced me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Less than three bottles healed the sore. In all my experience with medicine, I never saw more cures with medicine.

Wonderful Results.

Another marked effect of the use of this medicine was the strengthening of my sight."—Mrs. Carrie Adams, Holly Springs, Texas.

"I had a dry scaly humor for years, and suffered terribly; and, as my brother and sister were similarly afflicted, I presume the malady is hereditary. Last winter, Dr. Tyson, (of Ferdinand, Fla.) recommended me to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and continue it for a year. For five months I took it daily. I have not had a blemish upon my body for the last three months."—T. E. Wiley, 146 Chambers st., New York City.

"Fast fall and winter I was troubled with a dull, heavy pain in my side. I did not notice it much at first, but it gradually grew worse until it became almost unbearable. During the latter part of this time, disorders of the stomach and liver increased my troubles. I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and after faithfully continuing the use of this medicine for some months, the pain disappeared and I was completely cured."—Mrs. Augusta A. Furbush, Haverhill, Mass.

ELEMENTS OF A ROMANCE.

A case of mistaken identity, involving elements of dramatic interest sufficient to make the fortune of a sensational novel, has just occurred in Switzerland. A young couple, named Favre, belonging to the working class, had lived happily together for some years at Nauchatel, when her husband a working mason, began to give way to habits of drinking. Efforts were made to reclaim him, and he became an abstainer for a time. Some months ago, however, he broke out again and left his home. His wife had heard nothing of him for three months, when one night she was awakened by a voice calling her repeatedly from the street outside, and which she felt was that of her husband. She rose, dressed and went into the street, but found no one. A few days afterwards she read an account in the newspapers of a man who had committed suicide on the railway at a small village near Bale. From the description of him she suspected it might be her missing husband, and became full of the idea that the voice she had heard was a communication from him at the moment of his death. She was corroborated in her belief by learning, as the result of inquiries, that he had made application for work at a neighboring quarry, but, being in drink at the time, had been roughly refused by the foreman. The body had now for some time been interred, but, in order to put an end to her suspense, the poor woman, having got together a little money, started off with the determination to have the body disinterred. She reached the village, and, after some delay, secured permission to open the grave. With two or three men as assistants she set to work. When the coffin was opened, the effluvia was so terrible that her companions ran, and left her alone with her dead. For twenty minutes unaided, she pursued her ghastly task. The body had been decapitated by the train, and the head, horribly mutilated, was wrapped by itself in a cloth. She uncovered it, and recognized it by the teeth. One of the stockings also she knew again from having mended it with a particular kind of worsted. Her worst fears thus confirmed, she returned home in the depths of sorrow. The aged mother of the man was informed of the identification, and mourning was being prepared for the whole family, when the crowning act of the drama was furnished by a letter which has been just received from Favre himself, announcing that he is at Winterthur alive and well! The wife had, after all, identified the wrong man! Who it is that actually lies in that lonely grave no one knows. What would not Wilkie Collins have made out of that midnight voice, the graveyard vigil, and the extraordinary de-nouement!

Working People

are often too ill to labor, but they haven't time to take medicine and lay off. Simmons' Liver Regulator can be taken without causing any loss of time, and the system will be built up and invigorated by it. It has no equal as a preparatory medicine, and can be safely used when a doctor cannot be called in. In all common diseases it will, unassisted by any other medicine, effect a speedy cure.

DYSPEPSIA.

The first tiptable to be made complete in this country for the past twenty years or more is now being manufactured at the Exposition," says the Pittsburgh Dispatch (October 2). "Yesterday the plant was put in operation, and the law-makers of the nation will now have a practical demonstration that tiptable can be made in this country. The plant at the Exposition is in the west end of the building, and was established by the America Tinned Plate association. The object of the establishment of the plant in Pittsburgh is to awaken the interest of the public in the matter and practically demonstrate that tiptables can be made here as well as anywhere else in the world. The plant was started yesterday afternoon, and will be under the charge of John D. and Daniel Morgan, two experienced tiptable workers. The block iron or steel plates from which the tin is made are manufactured in the rolling mills in this city. It is first pickled in diluted sulphuric acid in order to take off the oxide which accumulates in the annealing process. After doing this it appears as a white sheet. It is then rinsed and washed to take off the acid. The block is then bathed in palm oil and soaked for a few minutes. This makes it ready for the tin-put, when the plate gets the actual 'tinning.' It is then laid on the washman's plate and afterward put in the washpot, containing a high grade of refined tin. After that the block is polished with a hempen brush and lowered into another bath of palm oil. It is then rolled through five highly polished rolls, and afterward cooled off. It is then placed in a box of bran, and from there goes into a box of middlings, where it is cleaned. The plate is laid on a table and polished with a sheepskin. The tin is then branded according to its quality. The defective material is called water plate. W. C. Cronmeyer, secretary of the association, stated that the process they had is better than the method of making the plates in England. There they 'flux' them, and this often leaves impurities under the surface of the tin coating. These defects are known as pin holes. The tin made yesterday (October 1) could be bent and twisted in every way, but the coating would not crack or come off."

A Fisherman's Luck

The canneries have all shut down and the numerous fishermen are now enjoying the fruits of their labor. A west Seattle fisherman said: "They are all drunk. They made plenty of money and are now enjoying it." It is said that the earnings of those Indian fishermen run as high as $2,300, in one case, and that the average for two months' work has been about $1,000 or $1,500.—Seattle Times.

A Bad Choice of Mothers.

The small boy had had a fight with another small boy. In youth we make up our quarrels easily, and a blow on the nose heals much more easily than a stinging word in later years. Quick to enjoy, quick to injure, quick to forget pleasure, quick to forget injuries in our childhood, we grow slower in all with age, yet perhaps the value of everything does not change, only our capacity to retain feeling. This small boy had had a fight and his mother had punished him. He was a boy; his mother was a kind of grown up girl and could not be expected to understand or sympathize with the manly art of self-defense. But he got it all the same, and when the round was over he stood up in the corner with his knuckles stuck in his tear-filled eyes. "Well," he said between some severe sobs, "well, I was a fool to get you for a mother when I was born."

The Fruit of Violence.

In no case is the folly of violence in medication more conspicuously shown by its fruit than in the effect upon the intestines of excessive purgation. The stomach and bowels are first painfully gripped, then the latter is emptied, suddenly and repeatedly stimulated. This is far beyond the necessities of the case, most unnatural, excessively debilitating. The organs are incapacitated from resuming their function with normal moderation. An astringent is resorted to which reduces them to their former condition of irritation. To this monstrous and harmful absurdity, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the happy alternative. It relaxes gently, naturally, sufficiently, it diverts bile from the liver into its proper channel, it insures healthy digestion and complete assimilation. It is a complete defense against malaria, conquers rheumatism, neuritis, nervousness, kidney and bladder trouble.

Lawyer Bowman, who was shot and killed in St. Louis a few days since, two years offered a life insurance company $2,700 as first payment on a $25,000 ten year endowment policy, but the offer was declined. When a life insurance company refuses to write a policy on a man's life on the grounds—as in this case—that he has too many enemies, it is about time for the man to commence seeking a reconciliation or else let a contract for his coffin.

For Constipation, Indigestion, Headache, Liver Complaint, and for all purgative purposes, take Ayer's Pills—the best for family use.

A Shark's Hard Fight For Life.

James Potts, in writing to a friend, sends the following account of his thrilling experience with a shark recently in Esquimaux harbor, British Columbia. He says: "At about 6 o'clock on Friday morning, white standing on the edge of a lighter, I observed a large shark approaching, as it swam up alongside I threw an axe at it, striking it in the back and inflicting a deep wound. In its blind fury, lashing about with pain, it dashed itself upon the beach. I called to my wife to bring another axe, and ran to where the huge fish was struggling. Before I could reach the spot, however, the shark had got aloft again. Armed with an axe I waded into the water, when the monster came straight at me, turning over on its back ready to seize me. I watched my opportunity, and as the fish came near enough I drove the axe with my whole strength into its head. The second blow caused the shark to retire in haste, and it swam out into the bay again, but soon returned, evidently with the intention of having another try at me. I had waded into the water waist deep, and planted myself firmly against a large rock to wait his approach. As it came up I threw the axe and again was lucky in inflicting a deep wound, this time in the monster's side. Instead of retreating this time the shark turned over, opened its jaws, and came straight for me. My wife had promptly supplied me with a third axe, and as the shark swam close I dealt blow after blow on his head, the keen blade sinking to the bone at every stroke. I sprang ashore, caught up a boat-hook, and, with my wife's assistance, got the fish upon the beach, when I soon ended its life. After it was dead we measured it, and found it to be 12 feet long and two feet and six inches across the middle. On opening it I found several salmon, a large fish-hook, and several stones in its stomach."
