

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON:

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1889.

J. H. Mansell makes some attractive real estate offers.

A large load of rails left Portland for this city and Skipanon last evening.

Geese and ducks are in the market, and an occasional shag and swan make their appearance.

A steam bakery and cracker factory will be in operation on the roadway before the winter is over.

The regular meeting of the Y. M. C. A. will be held this p. m. at 3 o'clock in the Congregational church.

The Sunset telephone company are putting up a wire cable to run into the office for the purpose of strung the telephone lines.

Only three more blocks left in Laurel Park addition. If you want to get in now is the time. See Worsley & Carruthers about it. They won't last much longer.

A bond for a deed was yesterday filed in the county clerk's office, by Wm. Loeb, bonding lots 1 and 2, sec. 21, T. 8 N., R. 9 W., containing 129 acres. The bond acknowledges the receipt of $500 on the part of J. G. Hustler, and agrees that on the payment of $10,000 cash on or before November 30th, 1890, and $20,000 in one and two years from date, a deed shall be given.

While the New Westminster Southern railway surveyors were taking levels and running lines near Blaine, Wash., the other day, they struck the line fence of a certain farmer, and as they seemed about to cross the corner of his place he came out and ordered them away. They continued their work and prepared to cross his place, when he rushed to his house and re-appearing in a few moments with his shotgun took up a commanding position on the top of the fence and offered to make a strainer out of any man's hide who attempted to come upon his land. As the surveyors wanted their skins to keep them warm this winter they left the gentleman monarch of the situation and moved on to the next farm. He will probably not be annoyed by the screech of the locomotive this winter.

It seems electric lights occasionally wink out for a moment in Portland as elsewhere. All sorts of reasons are usually given for the cessation of light, and last Friday, according to the Oregonian, a gentleman called at the office of the Willamette Falls Electric company, in Portland, and stated that the light in his saloon had flickered the evening before, and he wished to know the reason. He was then and there told that the radiant energy arising from the sudden and simultaneous absorption of potential energy, which breaks or disturbs the polygonal cellular laminae and causes a non-continuous current of the electric fluid diametrically opposed to the critical speed of the dynamo and to the structural subdivisions of the magnets and armatures, in consequence of which the electrodes oscillate, and the carbons are given an alternating current and are consumed by volatilization instead of by combination with the oxygen of the atmosphere. Nothing like knowing about these things.

PERSONAL MENTION.

A. E. King, of Ilwaco, was in the city yesterday.

The venerable Judge Callender over from Knappa yesterday.

North Addition lots will be advanced to $20 per lot on Monday, Nov. 17th; so all who want bargains better get in while there is a show at the $15 rate. This is the best property on the market to-day as a speculation, and as the lay of the country is the best. It will be a good place for residences in the near future. A letter in last night's mail calls for 6 lots to one person and 8 to another. Persons from the distance appear to be in possession of some facts of which our people are evidently ignorant; and they wisely select North Addition as a safe place in which to invest their money.

Inquiry is already being made for some of those beautiful lots in block 15, Hustler & Aiken's addition, at Robb & Parker's. Remember that they will be on the market for a few days at $125.00 and $150.00. Call Monday and make your selections.

Machinists, Carpenters, Merchants, Laborers and Cap-stainers.

The Astoria Real Estate Co. are now selling lots 50x150 feet, in WARDEN, the beautiful suburb, 3 1/2 miles west of Astoria, on the west side of the Skipanon, where the Astoria and South Coast R.R. crosses. The railroad company have secured 25 acres of land immediately west, and adjoining this townsite, for machine shops, round houses, and depot accommodations. Construction of these important improvements will begin early in the spring. This division of the R.R. will undoubtedly employ from 300 to 500 men at Warrenton, which is also the junction of the Tansey Point Branch to the proposed Lumber & Grain Dock. Corner lots, $125; inside lots, $100. When 100 lots are sold, prices will be advanced from 10 to 20 per cent.

Lots in Block 15, H. & A's Addition.

To-morrow, Nov. 11th, Robb & Parker will offer Lots in Block 15, Hustler & Aiken's Astoria. This block commands a view over all yet sold in this Addition and has the best bay of any on the market. Stakes will be set so you can find any lot and not have to guess at the location. These lots will be offered for a few days at $125 and $150, one-half cash, and balance in six months; or 2 1/2 per cent. discount for cash.

All intending purchasers who use good judgment will call on Robb & Parker and see plans of this property before buying elsewhere.

CLIPPED AND CONDENSED.

News Items from All Over the Northwest.

The recent Portland fair cleared $20,000.

Seattle is to have a big hotel—the Rainier—run on the American plan.

A canal between the Walla Walla and Columbia rivers is talked of in Wallula.

The President has appointed A. C. McLellan, of receiver of public moneys at La Grande.

The Portland Telegram says: "This city is full of gamblers at present, and there is not room for more."

The Baker City councilmen have voted themselves a salary of $20 each for the year. The mayor gets the same.

Two sacks full of Chinese pheasants were recently shipped from Shield to San Francisco and offered openly for sale in that city.

H. H. Cline, proprietor of the "National," and "Comique," at Tacoma, has skipped to Canada, owing $15,000, and taking $3,000 cash with him.

About eight to ten inches of snow was encountered on the summit of the Cascade mountains by parties who crossed a few days ago into Crook county.

Adrian Sheehan, son of ex-sheriff Sheehan, is reported to have left Port Townsend, owing bills amounting to over $500. Cards, wine and women were the cause.

The delicate operation known in medical practice as the Caesarian operation was successfully performed at Seattle last Friday. It is said to be the first of the kind on the northwest coast.

There is said to be $40,000 in coin in proposition urged in some quarters for the hands of the Seattle Relief committee; and inquiries as to the disposition of the money are becoming frequent.

The Southern Pacific train wrecker was sentenced, at Albany, to ten years in the penitentiary, by Judge Boise, last Friday. The two Rolfe brothers, indicted jointly with him, have both been discharged.

John W. Lee, formerly from Grant's Pass, Oregon, who has been in Redding about two months, and who was put in the calaboose a few evenings ago, cut his throat with a razor. He bled profusely, but will likely recover.

Four Walla Walla ladies who have brought suit against the judges and inspectors of election, ask damages in the sum of $3,000 each because their votes were not accepted and counted at the October election, as other votes were.

While attempting to break into the express office at Wheaton Monday night an unknown man came near being killed by the agent, R. K. Gilson, who fired at the burglar, putting a bullet through his hat.

Dago Frank, killed by Tom Eldridge at Spokane Falls, was buried last Friday. It has been discovered that he was robbed of a gold watch and chain and $160 in money while dying in the store where he fell. The watch and chain were recovered.

John B. Irwin, one of the pioneers of Eastern Oregon, has discovered one of the richest free-gold properties ever found in the state in Union county. The quantity is large, and the best judges say it is a free milling composition of at least $100 to the ton in gold.

Mrs. McAdow, one of the owners of the Spoiled Horse mine of Montana, recently drove into Helena in a buckboard, unattended, carrying a gold brick worth $40,000. It took two porters and a truck to get the heavy mass of gold from the wagon into the bank.

John F. Givens, a heavy timber owner of Gray's Harbor, is in San Francisco, where he says that Washington and Oregon are still filling up with easterners, who are taking up government timber land. He thinks there will not be an acre of railroad or government timber land unlogged within five years.

McNeil's island penitentiary is a United States prison which now contains 65 inmates. The question has recently been mentioned as to the probable disposal of this prison, after the admission of the state. It is not the custom of the general government to maintain its own prisons in states or territories.

Nine persons, a man, a woman and seven children, attempting to cross Yaquina bay in a small boat Wednesday, were drowned. The bodies of the mother and six of the children have been recovered. The name of the man was H. A. Wagner; the mother and six children were the family of G. W. Parker.

By some queer arrangement the boundary line of Yamhill county was extended or moved west until it includes a strip of territory about three miles wide west of the Grande Ronde Indian reservation, thus leaving Tillamook county only a little over six miles wide, from the eastern boundary to the coast in the Nestucca country, and almost cut the county in two.

Convicts in the state penitentiary continue to cut off or attempt to cut off, their hands. The latest to attempt the self amputation feat were Cummings and Burke from Multnomah county. The former succeeded only in part, getting off the end of one finger, and the latter made two bad hacks to the bone. Five have now performed this feat and as a punishment will be kept in dungeons.

The telegraph announces that the California state board of trade has received twenty-five cases of canned fruits from various local firms, to be sent east with exhibits of the new "California on Wheels." Cans to be opened and served to visitors." This says the Statesman, contains a suggestion to Oregon. Why would it not be a good plan for her to pursue a similar course when sending away carloads of exhibits next year.

The state fish commission announces itself as being practically opposed to the introduction of catfish in any of the waters of Oregon, saying that they are enemies to our salmon and other food fishes, and that our fish are superior to catfish in every respect, while the latter was of no commercial value. The commission has been applied to for catfish to introduce into lakes and streams, but for the reasons above stated has declined to furnish them.

Mrs. E. D. Sloan, of Klamath agency, found recently in a cremation mound on the Klamath Indian reservation a Harrison badge of the campaign of 1841. It was found under several feet of burned clay, ashes and calcined human bones, along with beads, coins, obsidian arrow heads, stone implements, etc. The "log cabin" and profile view of General Harrison show quite plainly. Probably these Indians got the badge from General J. C. Fremont's party when they traveled through this country.

Most of the newspapers in Oregon commend the new game law, and urge a rigid enforcement of its Draconian provisions. The Grant's Pass Courier however does not see much to commend in any game law. It says game laws originated in a barbaric age, and in all ages they have the earmarks of oppression on the poorer classes. The sooner all wild animals are out of the country the better. If the Alpine club wants to preserve game let it buy land and fence it in, and not by law through the expense of perpetuating game upon the struggling settlers.

The Eldorado mining ditch property, which has long been in litigation, was sold at auction in Portland last Friday, in accordance with an order made by Judge Deady. It was knocked down to W. Gert, of Chicago, for $33,511, the amount of certain liens on the property, held by Gert, Abell and others. The Eldorado ditch is the longest in Oregon and one of the longest in the United States, and was constructed over twenty years ago. Its extreme length from the north or middle fork of Burnt river, in eastern Oregon, to Malheur, is about ninety-five miles. The ditch originally cost about $250,000.

G. C. Duncan, an eastern explorer recently in Oregon, in writing about the Malheur cave, among other things says: The cave is twenty feet wide and six feet high at its entrance, and has an incline downward for the first 200 feet, and then turns to the northeast and runs very nearly straight to the water, a distance of one half mile from its mouth. It will average fifty feet wide and twenty feet high and is very uniform in its structure, the walls running up about six feet on either side, and then commence to arch over, and certainly form the finest arch in the whole family of caves that were ever discovered. It is almost beyond description and rivals the great Mammoth cave in its smoothness of character and uniformity. This magnificent cave has evidently been used some time by the Indians as a fortification; the entrance has been walled up with stone, and there are, also, two walls of breastwork on the inside running from each corner of the entrance diagonally near the center some fifty feet long; this was for a second defense in case they were driven back from the mouth.

AN ASTORIAN ABROAD.

H. Studzinski Now Sojourning in Berlin.

BERLIN, Oct. 20th, '89.

J. F. HALLORAN:—My first letter from Paris is in your hands. Here is a little more. I left Paris after a thorough inspection of the exposition and the city as far as time is allowed. The exposition is the grandest I ever saw; the buildings and domes rich and brilliantly decorated; the surrounding parks covered with choice plants, trees and flowers. It is hard to believe that this costly arrangement is only temporary. The exhibition comprises all branches of industry as well as agriculture, horticulture, art and an endless variety of novel inventions of nearly all nations of Europe and the United States, which latter makes a fine showing and is not so small as is represented in our papers, and I am glad of it.

Life at Paris is expensive, and a stranger gets a good taste of it, for he has to pay for everything a higher price on account of the boom which the exposition caused, and, as the Parisians term it, this affair happens but once in ten years. I have been up the Eiffel Tower and got enough of it when I was elevated 750 feet by the elevators. From this point I had a fine view of the entire city and surroundings, which latter gave me full compensation for all the trouble of getting there, for the rushing and scrambling was at the time very unpleasant.

From Paris I went over Belgium to Cologne, where I saw the Cathedral—the finest monumental building, with the exception of St. Peter's at Rome, in the world. I was struck by its beauty and grandeur, which has not its equal. The Cathedral covers 88,700 square feet of ground, and is 532 feet high; 128 great windows; 576 statues; 104 pillars; several thousand spires which cover almost the entire building.

From Cologne I went over the Rhine to Berlin and arrived there at night. Next day I saw the czar of Russia with the Emperor William driving by together, lots of brass helmets all around and much ado. The people of Berlin are much in love with their emperor, the pomp, the military show, etc. In every house I find images of the past and the present emperors. I must confess, this worshipping of these potentates looks to me ridiculous and unworthy a nation as intelligent as this one. The second day I had to report myself to the police office, for every stranger who has a private room has to identify himself; thus the control over the city is so complete that I could be found in this immense city in a short space of time by any friend who desired to see me. But the report alone was not sufficient; the officer wanted a passport, which demand I could not satisfy. I showed him my U. S. citizen's certificate and told him that this is my letter of credit from Uncle Sam, and if he had not calmed down with its sight I would try a more effective way. So he finally acceded to have my way free. This city is brilliantly laid out and built. The streets are scrupulously clean, surpassing all other cities, Paris included, in this regard; in many of them there are shade trees, which give them a pleasant appearance. The city has grown so much within twelve years that I do not know many parts of it, with its solid blocks of six-story houses for miles. Real estate is here way up to the pinnacle, and commands prices like those of New York, way up into the millions.

Living expenses here are decidedly cheaper than in Paris, and I found here quite a number of Americans who were better posted in a good many ways than I was, because they had already lived here a couple of months to find it out. We all agree in one opinion, which latter I'll tell you when I arrive at Astoria again. Give my kindest regards to all my friends, and tell them that by all that I saw and heard, the place where I have all my friends is the dearest to me after all.

With greetings to you, I am, Yours, M. STUDZINSKI.
