 Big day for the "didn't I told you so's."
 My, weren't the boys thirsty last night!
 There was no prohibition ticket yesterday.
 Well, half the candidates are always defeated.
 The side doors did a good business yesterday.
 The city needs a registry law, as badly as it ever did.
 The Australian system of voting would work well in Astoria.
 The next attraction at the opera house will probably be Katie Putnam.
 A big crowd of land seekers came down on the morning boat yesterday.
 The Columbia skating club give their second party at the rink to night.
 Well, clear the stage for the next act; there will be another election next June.
 The loudest looking thing on earth is an election poster, the day after election.
 Daughters were yesterday born in the homes of S. Barich and W. J. Smith.
 The meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held this afternoon at 3 P. M. in the Y. M. C. A. hall. A full attendance is desired.
 On the Green river division, when behind time, the fast mail train runs seventy-two miles an hour, on the down grade.
 W. S. Geary, piano tuner for Kohler & Chase, of Portland, is at the Occident; leave orders with Miss Biele or at hotel at once, as his stay is limited.
 There was an alarm of fire at 5 yesterday afternoon; most of the apparatus went the wrong way; a burning chimney at Mrs. Stevens' house was the cause; no damage.
 Correspondents will confer a favor by putting the number of THE ASTORIAN'S post office box, 428, on the envelope. It will increase the probability of the letters reaching this office.
 About a hundred people came into the office yesterday to see that persimmon. Phil Bower says it is a Japanese persimmon, and is a different breed from the persimmon of Arkansas.
 The following order has been issued by General Gibbon: "Major Samuel S. Sumner, Eighth Cavalry, acting inspector general, will proceed on public business to Fort Canby and return."
 A young lady in front of Rescue's engine house was handed a ticket yesterday afternoon, which she indignantly dashed under foot, and insisted upon her escort voting an opposite ticket which she gave him. He did.
 A prominent politician yesterday, who had got a man into his way of thinking, handed him "the right ticket," but just before depositing it, the uncrowned American sovereign discovered that the piece of paper was a receipt bill.
 Since the 1st inst. Mary Klein, H. Suomilla, B. Cottardi, A. Easola, Jas. Wilson, Jno. Partanen, Jno. Halmers, Wm. FitzGerald, Anders Gierston, Jno. Wilson, Chas. Versling, H. A. L. Spande, G. A. Anderson, and M. Larsen have taken out their first citizen's papers.
 Yesterday's Pioneer, as usual, had "dispatches" cut from the Oregonian, and the date changed, so as to try to make its few readers believe that they were genuine. Its silence proves its guilt. It daily lies, and daily steals, and is too cowardly to attempt a denial.
 "I feel," said one of the defeated candidates, last night, "like the man who was asked about his wife. She had been very sick and finally died. The doctor told her an hour before she died that she could not live. 'Was she resigned?' asked a friend. 'Resigned?' My God! she had to be."
 Noah N. Tyler, H. H. Northrup, F. K. Arnold and W. B. Gilbert have incorporated the Oregon and Washington Bridge company, for the purpose of operating, constructing and maintaining a bridge across the Columbia river from La Camas to a point on the westerly shore of the Sandy river, with $200,000 of capital stock.
 The lighthouse board gives notice that about January 1st, a fixed white light of the first order, varied by a red flash every minute, will be shown from the structure recently erected on the extreme westerly end of Cape Meares. The light will illuminate the entire horizon. The focal plane is 223 feet above the mean sea level, and the light may be seen in clear weather from the deck of a vessel, fifteen feet above the sea at a distance of twenty-one and a half nautical miles.

YESTERDAY'S MUNICIPAL ELECTION.
 Clean Sweep for The Republican Ticket.
 The Count Finished at 1 this Morning
 Result of a Closely Contested Election.
 There was never a finer election day in this city than that of yesterday and, and seldom has there been a more earnest contest. The sun shone nearly all day, and the streets in the vicinity of the polling places were filled with groups of men. There was very little loud talk, but plenty of buttonholing and argument. Good order was observed, and with the exception of two arrests on a charge of illegal voting, there was no disturbance. Every thing on wheels and drawn by horses that could be had for love or money, or both, was pressed into requisition, and if anybody qualified didn't vote, it was his own fault.
 The polls were open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M., and at 6:15 the work of counting the votes began. There were 647 votes polled in the first ward, and 393 in the second ward; a total of 1,040 votes yesterday, the largest number at any municipal election in the history of the city.
 The vote was concluded in the second ward at 10:15 last night, and in the first ward at one this morning. Following is the vote:

AS SEEN BY A VISITOR.
 How It Appears To An Albany Investor.
 Interviewed by Some Real Estate Agents.
 From the Albany Herald, 10.
 ASTORIA, Dec. 6.
 A letter from Astoria may be of interest to your numerous and intelligent readers, who are anxious to learn what is taking place in this old town, that is just beginning to awake from its long Rip Van Winkle snooze, and take a tumble to itself, vulgarly speaking, as the future great seaport city of Oregon and the inland empire that is seeking an outlet for her products and a highway for her commerce with the rest of the world.
 The railroad enterprises that are taking shape and fast assuming realistic forms are not only on paper and in the minds of the projectors and the public, but in the actual occupation of a few miles now in operation and gradually reaching out mile by mile towards the cities, towns and hamlets that dot the valleys and perch upon the foot hills of the Cascade slope, where the last golden age of the departing sun glids the snow-capped peaks and rugged mountain tops where rolls the Oregon.
 Thus you see the car of progress is on the track and soon the silent dells of Nehalem will be made of the transcontinental trains that seek these cool retreats, while the measured puffing and the screaming whistle of the iron horse will reverberate from every hill top and wooded canyon, as he sweeps his labyrinthine way through the valleys to the sea.
 Booms, like cholera and smallpox, seem to be contagious, but unlike these diseases are to be sought for rather than avoided, and now Astoria, like Albany and some other towns, having caught the disease, if not checked, it will soon become epidemic, while the real estate dealer and capitalist from other towns, in the far away east, our immediate neighbors of this very new west rush in to avail themselves of the golden opportunity that they seem to think only comes to a man once in a lifetime. And like the man of Scripture that went down on Jerusalem to Jericho to sell his farm among real estate dealers, they come and they find that the half has not been told them. Talk is cheap and they are all good talkers, although it is a new business to most of them, a boom having created a necessity for the business. They will talk by the hour and never charge a cent. It is also a pleasure to show goods; they will climb the highest peaks and descend into the deepest valleys, they go into the trackless forest, where none but the adventurous surveyor and his assistants have ever dared to enter and hunt up the corners in Riverside, Columbia or some other addition to this great city for the anxious purchaser.
 "When Greek meets Greek then comes the tug of war." Two gentlemen, of Albany came along to size up the boom and make some purchases. And when they were yet a great way off, said Bob to Ben, "Behold, these fellows are rich. One of them has heard of horses that roam through the eastern valleys of Oregon, and he has come upon a thousand hills and real estate in Albany till you can't tell, besides some money in the bank and the other fellow is no slouch himself. He's a big dealer in real estate. Now let's get in and drill before the other fellows catch on. And forth with Ben, who is an auctioneer, turned the full battery of his eloquence upon the rich men from Albany. He made the crooked places straight and the waste places blossom as the rose. He talked all of the stump or of a five acre block sure, but he talked both neat and tasty, for the crowds of people that could scarcely get standing room on the steamers that arrive and depart at all hours of the day and the night. The long dry tree, the giant spruce and the worthless hemlock were made to dwindle into insignificance, because they chanced to encumber a block he was anxious to sell. The little city by the sea, with a population of 8,000, with its metropolitan proportion of 80,000 almost in the twinkling of Abe's eye, while brick and stone blocks of mammoth and imposing structure reared their massive fronts on every business street from Young Point to Young's bay channel, while the whistling motors and electric railways encircled the city in iron bands, bringing the suburban homes of the mechanic and merchant in close proximity to the water front. Indeed, the real estate man, by the graphic power of his action eloquence, painted a panorama of such wondrous thrills and beauty that his hearers were entranced with the possibilities that the present opportunities and the glorious future held in store for them and their heirs.
 "My dear friends," said the speaker, "you know not what a day may bring forth; now is the time to invest, the business of yesterday will fill your hearts with sorrow and regret."
 And sure enough they did buy and their purchases advanced $1,500 in one night on one block offered. Delays were dangerous and to hesitate was ruin. They were glad they bought.

FRESH FASHION FANCIES.
 The Newest styles in Ladies' Dresses.
 It is a sheer waste of material to make the skirt of a walking dress elaborate to sweep up the dust or the mud of the crossings, and when it comes to the house dress we recognize the superior importance of the bodice when we attire ourselves in silk jackets and blouses, and blossom out in the multitude of pretty negliges especially contrived to make fair women irresistible, in spite of the fact that she is wearing out the skirts of her old and no longer esteemed gowns.
 A skirt is, after all, a mere conventionalism, cut and dried in its forms. A clever woman once said the length of it was, like the teeth of a horse, the only certain clue to the age of the wearer—the older the woman the longer her draperies—except in case of blouses, who clip off their trains only at the bottom of the pocket-books of their fathers.
 But the bodice may, it will, tell much of the woman. Every line of it has a meaning. We can imagine a lady of some taste and sensibility in the tight untrimmed basque and coat sleeves, because a few seasons ago almost every woman wore these. How much more expressive of the full and varied life of the close of the nineteenth century are the folds of soft, flexible material now arranged inside the half open bodices, the hints and suggestions which suggest power of curve and line, which make of the human form divine something half concealed, instead of a bust and waist mathematically defined and cased in a cuirass corsage. One could base a whole philosophy on the fascinations. We need not be confident that we knew or were about to discover everything. Then we went confidently, saying this is the right, the only way. Now we doubt whether, indeed, we know anything, and we cut, each one according to his individual whim or will. We used to see in black and white, now we live in half tones.
 The classic element in the winter's fashions naturally affects the corsage. With the long lines of chiton and peplos and tunic in view, with the desire to follow Greek and Roman characteristics as closely as convenient in governing, hardly a new costume is introduced which has to the eye, a tight or even moderately fitting bodice. Some waists are actually full, even though the neglige arrangement of soft draperies be arranged over a glove-fitting lining. The typical bodice, whether it be of a waist shape proper or in redingote style, has invariably a trimming of passementerie or ribbon or folds, plaited or draped, which do not look as if a stitch had been set in them to hold them in place, but rather as if the small but exquisite flower pins, thrust in here and there at the wearer's pleasure, were the only fastenings. As a matter of fact, however, they are carefully stitched down.
 The effect of the empire gown on the average feminine waist is peculiar. Of course it seems to shorten it, but this is not so to a closer view. The lapped and folded bodice, with its V neck and ample coguettes, is quite as long as the pointed French bodice, but to what an ox has swollen the seat that was a frog last season.
 The newest sash is wide enough to be set in the full length of the under arm seam, and when its ends are drawn forward and crossed in front and then carried around to tie behind, it covers a good share of the waist from view.—Ex.

USEFUL INFORMATION.
 Tubercle, Fox, M. D., the eminent medical writer, in his work "Skin Diseases," thus accounts for the pimples so common to the face and neck. Eating too rich or too greasy food, or too hearty eating while the excretory organs are sluggish, causes in most people indigestion or a dyspepsia condition, which causes the blood to move sluggishly, and clogs the pores. The result is, that the exuding secretions block in the pores, which causes, or leads to, indigestion, being a pimple. Dr. Fox therefore does not prescribe "blood purifiers" as called, but a "dyspepsia cure" to be taken, to use his own words "All the dyspepsia symptoms have disappeared." The old idea was, that face eruptions were caused by a "humor in the blood," for which they treated the blood, giving the mineral, potash. Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla follows the modern ideas of Dr. Fox, and aims with gentle vegetable alteratives at the stomach and digestive organs. The reason is apparent why it cures dyspepsia and indigestion, and the pimples and skin eruptions which result therefrom and why Sarsaparilla that use minerals fail.

A Scrap of Paper Saves Her Life.
 It was just an ordinary scrap of wrapping paper, but it saved her life. She was in the last stages of consumption, told by physicians that she was incurable and could live only a short time. On a piece of wrapping paper she read of Dr. King's New Discovery, and got a sample bottle; it helped her, she bought a larger bottle; it helped her more, bought another and grew better fast, contained its use and is now strong, healthy, rosy, plump, weighing 140 pounds. For fuller particulars send stamp to W. H. Cole, Druggist, Fort Smith. Trial bottles of this wonderful Discovery Free at J. W. Coon's Drugstore.
 There will be a grand ball at Hiwaco on the 14th inst. The Western Amateur Band Orchestra, of this city, has been engaged to furnish music for the occasion. The Steamer Tolga will convey Astorians to and from Hiwaco.
