This concern deserves no more consideration than any tan game in Chinatown. It has feloniously appropriated the name and is using the prestige of the Louisiana State Lottery to impose upon the confidence of the public and beguile them into believing that it is so or-ganized legally and is solvent. The Louisiana State Lottery is a lawful enterprise in the state of its creation. It also has this to recommend it-> scheme, utterly without warrant of law and headed by irresponsible in-dividuals, who any day may find a trip to Canada advantageous to their financial and bodily safety. The police know the location of their offices as well as that of the city ball, and yet they are never raided. The managers seem to have devised a cunning system of surrending one of their num-ber every month or two to undergo a small fine as a sort of peace offering that a large percentage of its receipts go to charitable and other public pur-poses in Louisiana, while it is no small
