

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON: FRIDAY, JANUARY 17, 1890. City and County Official Paper.

NEEDED AT ONCE.

MAJOR HANDBURY'S report, published elsewhere, indicates clearly that as a matter of economy congress cannot afford to allow the usual dilatory procedure, but should make immediate appropriation that the work of improvement may be resumed by the 1st of March.

In this connection the following from the Oregonian is to the point:

The urgent need of an immediate appropriation for continuing work on the Columbia river jetty, as set forth in the recent special report of Major Handbury, engineer in charge, does not seem to be understood in Washington so well as it should be.

This is the nature of the difficulty: In order to transport the rock for the jetty, a temporary railroad has been built on piles three miles out on the bar.

The funds available for this work are about exhausted, and the only wonder is that the money has lasted so long. The estimate for 1888 was $1,200,000.

It is reported in London that several European statesmen, friendly to England, have expressed to Salisbury their fears that his action in the Portuguese dispute will afford a pretext for Republican activity in Spain.

John R. McConnell, of the interior department, who has been in Tucson, Arizona, several days examining the accounts of Alfred Smith, late receiver of the United States land office there, finds that there is due the government $2,797, and to settlers who paid on land entries, about $18,000.
