DYSPEPSIA.

It is misery experienced when we suffer from indigestion. It is a common ailment, and one that is easily cured. The stomach is the reservoir from which every fibre and tissue must be nourished, and any trouble with it is soon felt throughout the whole system. Among a dozen dyspepsias no two will have the same predominant symptoms. Dyspepsia of the stomach is characterized by those who suffer from it by a feeling of fullness, and a heavy, oppressive weight upon the chest, and a feeling of nausea. Others have a feeling of burning, and a feeling of heat in the stomach. Some have a feeling of coldness, and a feeling of chilliness. Some have a feeling of dryness, and a feeling of thirst. Some have a feeling of weakness, and a feeling of fatigue. Some have a feeling of depression, and a feeling of gloom. Some have a feeling of irritability, and a feeling of anger. Some have a feeling of nervousness, and a feeling of restlessness. Some have a feeling of anxiety, and a feeling of uneasiness. Some have a feeling of fear, and a feeling of alarm. Some have a feeling of despair, and a feeling of hopelessness. Some have a feeling of death, and a feeling of nothingness. Some have a feeling of hell, and a feeling of damnation. Some have a feeling of heaven, and a feeling of bliss. Some have a feeling of glory, and a feeling of honor. Some have a feeling of power, and a feeling of might. Some have a feeling of wisdom, and a feeling of knowledge. Some have a feeling of love, and a feeling of affection. Some have a feeling of friendship, and a feeling of companionship. Some have a feeling of brotherhood, and a feeling of fellowship. Some have a feeling of unity, and a feeling of harmony. Some have a feeling of peace, and a feeling of quietude. Some have a feeling of joy, and a feeling of happiness. Some have a feeling of contentment, and a feeling of satisfaction. Some have a feeling of fulfillment, and a feeling of completion. Some have a feeling of achievement, and a feeling of success. Some have a feeling of triumph, and a feeling of victory. Some have a feeling of glory, and a feeling of honor. Some have a feeling of power, and a feeling of might. Some have a feeling of wisdom, and a feeling of knowledge. Some have a feeling of love, and a feeling of affection. Some have a feeling of friendship, and a feeling of companionship. Some have a feeling of brotherhood, and a feeling of fellowship. Some have a feeling of unity, and a feeling of harmony. Some have a feeling of peace, and a feeling of quietude. Some have a feeling of joy, and a feeling of happiness. Some have a feeling of contentment, and a feeling of satisfaction. Some have a feeling of fulfillment, and a feeling of completion. Some have a feeling of achievement, and a feeling of success. Some have a feeling of triumph, and a feeling of victory.

THE FLOOD at Salem.

SALEM, Feb. 5.—There have been between fifty and seventy-five houses washed away from Salem and vicinity. No lives were lost that have been reported. The O. R. & N. dock called here the Union Pacific wharf, is entirely gone.

The flood will not soon be forgotten. The scenes of destruction beggar description. Although the loss is heavy, we have been fortunate in escaping with no loss of life. There is much loss on Kaiser's bottom. The current is so swift that small boats cannot live, and rescuers have to look on the distress flags and listen to cries for help, powerless to aid. At Carr's house, three daughters and a son are known to be imprisoned in the upper story of a small house. Nothing can be done for them, but as the flood is now past its height, hope is entertained that they may still be safe.

The wife of Wm. Miller, on an island in the Fairview bay, has been a child in the rafters of a building last night, the bed being swung by ropes to the timbers.

It is a fact well known that, as a house hold remedy for children and adults, Ayer's Pills are invaluable.
