CITY AND COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER
 Sociable to-night at Y. M. C. A. hall. Everybody invited.
 The Lucas case was dismissed at the police court yesterday, the complainant failing to appear.
 Harry Pennel, a former inhabitant of Belgium, has filed his first papers for citizenship in this country.
 Joseph Baker was arrested yesterday charged with assault on F. Lucas. The case comes up for trial to-day.
 In the police court, yesterday, John Dixon and D. L. Lafferty forfeited $2.50 and $5.00, respectively, by failing to appear.
 It is about time for the Astoria board of fire delegates to have a meeting. Those who went last night at 7:30 sharp, found the door locked, and no light.
 No one could have been in the room of the justice yesterday without concluding that the accommodations are very poor for a trial, especially if there is a jury summoned on the case.
 "An evening with Longfellow," at Rescne hall next Thursday evening, for the benefit of the Court street school organ fund. Tickets on sale at Conn's drug store or New York Novelty store.
 The jury in the case of Williamson vs. Beerman, after being out about twenty minutes yesterday afternoon, gave in a verdict for the plaintiff, allowing him the sum of $3 from the defendant.
 Hardly a day passes without a new addition to the long list of real estate sales. The first addition to Kindred Park was filed yesterday by C. B. and Rachel Kindred. It is eastward of Ft. Stevens.
 Why is it that so many young men are now suffering from the effects of bad colds? It must be that the little hall in business has given them the first chance to go Portland or some other exposed place.
 The new fronts that have been put in the lower stories of several business buildings are a great improvement, and the number should be increased as such changes add much to the appearance of a town.
 A quick real estate transaction was reported yesterday. A comparative stranger went into a certain dealer's office and within five minutes of his arrival the deal was made out for the cash sale of two lots to him.
 The frequent tete-a-tetes between the lawyers in the Brower case yesterday were highly amusing to the court and spectators. References to their behavior in their school days seem to offer the best chance for witticisms.
 Papers were in lively circulation yesterday containing the agreement printed in full in Sunday's ASTORIAN, regarding the transfer of the railroad stock in trust, to C. P. Huntington. One had signatures on it representing 200 shares.
 Another contract, more specific in detail, was under consideration yesterday by the Pacific Cable Construction company, and the property owners along the proposed route. The subsidy has been about raised, and the road may be considered an assured fact.
 The county court met yesterday. B. S. Worsley appeared as the agent of the Pacific Cable Construction company and asked that the consideration of the additional franchise for that company be postponed until the next session of the court. This will come on the first Monday in April. The motion was granted.
 John Kelly of Springfield has been appointed supervisor of the census for the western district of Oregon. The salary of the position is $1,000, traveling expenses and clerk hire. J. H. Shupe of Douglas county was first appointed, but being an applicant for register of the probate land office, declined the appointment.
 Despite all predictions to the contrary, Kane Olney continues to improve, and now has an even chance of life. The case excites unusual interest, for the dreadful injury, the fracture of the skull and the loss of brain matter made it incredible that the man could survive, but every indication is that the man will make a life of it.
 George Tilden, advance representative of the great Metropolitan company, under the management of Maguire, Hial & Morris from the grand opera house San Francisco, arrived in town yesterday morning to arrange for the production of this famous drama which proved such a wonderful sensation in New York and San Francisco.
 Special Meeting.
 There will be a special and important business meeting of the Seaside Benevolent Association this evening. A full attendance is desired.

WE ARE DISCOVERED!
The Universal Trust Enwrapping Columbia Canneries.
TO REBOUGHT ENGLISH COIN.
 During the last two years the newspapers have had considerable to say about the alleged purchase by English syndicates, of cattle, coal, oil, mines, factories, and many other American institutions.
 Everything, from a corset factory to a distillery, from the ice fields on Maine's frozen rivers to the golden oranges on the sunny slopes of the foothills of California, has in turn been reported bought or leased by representatives of English capital, and now it appears that we, on the Columbia river, have been discovered, and that the salmon canneries along the banks of the lower Columbia are in a fair way to be transferred for value received, to an English syndicate to be owned and operated by them.
 THE MORNING ASTORIAN of the 13th had an article thereon, giving the news, as usual, 24 hours ahead of its esteemed contemporaries that such a move was on foot, and that a gentleman named J. W. Alderman, had arrived the day before and was here viewing the landscape over, and getting local opinion as to the feasibility of a big purchase, securing the control of all the salmon canneries on the lower Columbia.
 The matter since then has progressed so far and so favorably as to justify more extended mention.
 To buy the salmon canneries on this river is a financial proposition that is a new one. Many and futile are the attempts that have been made to form some sort of harmonious combination among the three dozen canneries in this vicinity, all efforts in that direction resulting in an agreement to disagree.
 In March, 1887, the last effort in that direction was made, but two or three prominent canneries backed out at the last minute, and the proposition fell through.
 Since then everybody in the business has been going in a crowd by himself.
 A prominent member of the guild was seen yesterday relative to the proposed transfer. He said:
 "Mr. Alderman means business. He treats with each canner separately, and asks for a definite statement, a valuation on the property, the transfer to include the building, plant and real estate. I am informed that he has a ninety days' option on every cannery on the river except three, and believe the thing is a go. The basis of valuation you can understand when I tell you that the Occident cannery is bonded for $22,000. It is figured now that the whole thing will be transferred at an aggregate sum between $800,000 and $1,000,000."
 "There is any amount of money behind this thing. While known as an 'English' syndicate, the fact is that it is the world's money. Men in Havre, Antwerp, London, and Vienna have idle capital to operate through English agents, and the field in this country is a promising one."
 "The syndicate, should it secure the Columbia salmon canneries will run them on strictly business principles, and to make money. Each cannery will be placed in charge of a manager, under the direction of a general resident manager. Everything will be run on an economical scale, and the matter will be in charge of men who thoroughly understand the running of the business."
 "What effect the transfer will have on the business interests of Astoria, is as yet an unsolved problem. Mr. Alderman tells me that all supplies, etc., so far as possible will be purchased here, and so far as I am competent to judge, the interests of the city will not be greatly affected or changed thereby."
 Should such change be made, it will obviously affect the status of the Columbia River Fishermen's Protective Union. It is reasonable to suppose that should one concern own and operate all the canneries as one establishment it would have more to say about the price of the raw material, than the canneries have had to say of late years. It is believed that the first move would be a conference between the representatives of the syndicate and the representatives of the union with a view to a mutual understanding.
 In that case it is more than probable that the union would favor a reduction in the number of boats on the river, to run, say 700 the coming season, and that those thus employed in so greatly reduced numbers, be resident fishermen and members of the union.
 The pending negotiations lead interest to the situation and further developments will be looked forward to with interest.
 Heirs Must Reside in this Country.
 Mention was made in THE ASTORIAN last week of an unusual case. A. F. Cotter, last November filed on a timber claim. A few weeks after he died, and when the time was up, W. R. McFarlane went to Oregon City as administrator of the estate to complete final proof, etc. It was then understood that this could be done, that is, the administrator of the estate could go on and make the usual formalities. But it now appears that the heirs must reside in this country, and as Mr. Cotter's relatives are residents of Canada the final proof cannot be made.
 Happy Hostesses.
 Wm. Timmons, postmaster of Idaho, Ind., writes: "Electric Bitters has done more for me than all other medicines combined, for the bad feeling arising from Kidney and Liver trouble." John Leslie, farmer and stockman of same place, says: "Find Electric Bitters to be the best Kidney and Liver medicine; made me feel like a new man." J. W. Gardner, hardware merchant, same town, says: "Electric Bitters is just the thing for a man who is all run down and don't care whether he lives or dies; he found new strength, good appetite and felt just like he had a new lease on life. Only 50c a bottle, at J. W. Conn's Drug Store."
 Advice to Mothers.
 Mrs. WISLOR'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle.
 Coffee and cake, ten cents, at the Central Restaurant.
 Do You Like a Good Cigar?
 Call at Charley Olsen's, east of C. H. Cooper's. He will suit you. A fine stock of cigars to select from.

THE BROWER CASE.
What Was Said and Done in The Justice Court.
A VERDICT OF "NOT GUILTY."
 After much talk and a continuance of the case from a former date, the trial of Prof. Brower came off yesterday in the justice of the peace court. The court room was packed with interested spectators both morning and afternoon. School children hung around outside anxious for the outcome as to whether it should favor scholar or teacher. As the case took up considerable time the jury were not so long as longed for soft seats than the hard tops of settees with no backs. The following were the jury: Robert Carruthers, C. S. Gunderson, Thomas Eyrle, James Hess, J. T. Abercrombie and W. B. Ross. The examination of the witnesses commenced with Alena Graham who was punished by Prof. Brower. She was a large girl for thirteen-years and looked as if she could with no difficulty pick up and carry Mrs. Graham was very vigorous in her testimony and stated that her daughter could hardly see her arm for several days, that she was obliged to dress her and prepare her food. She also described her talk with Prof. Brower and a former punishment by him of the child. Once or twice in her testimony she branched off into invective on the teacher, but in the main kept to the alleged facts. Mrs. Graham created considerable laughter by telling how he went to the school house with a firm intention to thrash Prof. Brower, but when he saw him, he looked so pale and weak that he had compassion and did not execute his plans. He said Alena and her shoulder looked like pounded beef. Esther Strong, one of the pupils, was shown the ruler and identified it. Ray Morton, Annie Amundson, Anna Berry and Eva Holmes also testified for the prosecution all giving virtually the same story.
 Alena Holmes, Magnus Gallagher, Oliver Bell, Emma Bell, Mrs. Enberg, and Mrs. Lake, for the defense, were then examined.
 At this point lawyers Curtis and Dell had a spirited discussion, in which city attorney Curtis accused Mr. Dell of poor judgment, saying: "You never had a child in your life. What do you know about it?" This sally provoked applause.
 Dr. Estes said that he carefully examined the girl's arm on the Monday following the punishment, and thought there was nothing serious in her condition.
 Professor Brower closed the testimony for the defense. He described all the circumstances of the punishment, and said that Alena Graham often failed in her studies, and on that day, February 13, she failed completely in her spelling lessons. She was sent to her seat and told to study it. She did not. Then he ordered her to come to the platform and sit in a chair facing the blackboard. She talked out loud the same there and he told her to be quiet. Not doing so he went to punish her. She clenched her fist to prevent the ruler being used on her hand. He struck her, but not on the arm and said he would stop if she would behave. She did not consent. Finally he held her in the corral and hit her somewhat harder, but not so forcibly as represented by the other side. She then left the room saying she was going home. Later her parents came to interview him.
 He further testified to show her previous conduct and how she had been once before punished. With this witness through, both sides rested and the arguments were made to the jury.
 After due deliberation they rendered a verdict of "not guilty."
 SPARROW FLEW TO SEA.
 Crowding Providence On The Pacific County Coast.
 Providence got in its work in great shape on the little steamer, Tom Mox, yesterday Saturday. About two o'clock that morning the boat left Willapa bound for Nacotcha-Sealand. On board were John McMillan and wife of Hoquiam, Al. Stream of North Cove, Judge Cobb of Tacoma, G. C. Fruton and Wm. Loeb of Astoria, and a negro minstrel troupe. The boat put Al. Stream and Judge Cobb ashore in a dingy at Tok's point, but instead of making the turn and heading down the bay the captain, Spink, got the wheel around and stood down the coast. When daylight came the truth appeared in all its startling ruggedness, and as the passengers dropped on the fact they breathed prayers of thankfulness and got the captain to turn round and get back as quick as the Almighty would let him.
 "Stronger wise men of Gotham went to sea in a bowl; if the bowl had been stronger my story would have been longer."
 Had the usual rough water prevailed along that stretch of coast, the little boat would, in all probability, never have seen land again, and the crews and transplanted lobsters would have had a picnic. Fortunately for the party, the water was smooth, and the only result was a little more traveling than the passengers had bargained for, arriving at their destination about noon. There is hardly money enough in the universe, however, to coax any one of them to make the same trip in the same boat again.
 Remarkable Rescue.
 Mrs. Michael Curtin, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement that she caught a child which settled on her lungs; she was treated a month by her family physician, but grew worse. She had a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her doctor suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption; she bought a bottle and to her surprise she found herself sound and well, now doing her household work as well as she ever was. Free trial bottles of this great Discovery at J. W. Conn's Drug Store, large bottles, 50c. and $1.

WEIGHING THE GOLD.
Great Stacks of Coin for Duties On Imported Goods.
LIGHT TWENTIES THROW OUT.
 Collector Hobson was seated at his desk yesterday morning when a MORNING ASTORIAN reporter saw him, with sundry stacks of gold in front of him which had just been paid as duty on 50 tons of Liverpool salt and 12,926 boxes tin plate just arrived on the British ship Menal. The coin aggregated in value $14,230.20, and looked attractive in rows piled two inches or twenty in height.
 "Now would be a good time to skip," was the observation of one, but even if that were the intention a man couldn't skip very far with that much on his person.
 This coin goes by express to the sub-treasury at San Francisco. A plain, ordinary private individual sending so much money would get a draft on an Astoria bank and send it that way, but Uncle Sam works in a mysterious way his wonders to perform, and has all coin sent by express. The coin consisted, E. Z. Ferguson, as one of the last of his many graceful official acts, stepped to the glass case which contains so much bijouterie and vertu, and removed therefrom a scale, for the government is so particular that the coin must be weighed.
 This scale is so delicately adjusted that it would weigh the unexpressed thoughts of an infant, and its poise is so fragile that the fluttering of a mosquito's wing would disturb it.
 Being in position the weight representing a light twenty dollar gold piece was put in one side, and one of the 711 twenties on the table on the other. There are two weights, one representing the weight of the twenty-dollar piece as it leaves the mint, the other the lowest weight allowed by the mint officials for ordinary wear and tear. The latter was used.
 Collector Hobson selected those only which bore date prior to 1880, as those since then are always found full weight; one of the vintage of '64 was over weight, one of '77 was so light as to justify the belief that a Chinese "sweetener" had been at work on it, and half a dozen more were unable to hold the weight level, and so were tossed to one side to be replaced by coin up to the standard.
 "If we sent one down to the San Francisco sub-treasury," said Mr. Hobson, "that was underweight, they would stamp a big 'L' on it and send it back."
 The weighing being over, the coin was securely packed and strapped, and will go to the sub-treasury.
 The duty on tin plate is 1.1 cents per pound, the plate coming in 112-pound boxes. The present congress, will, it is thought, increase the duty on this necessary article to encourage its production in this country.
 CHANGING AN OFFICE.
 That Was the Scene of Many a Story.
 The clutter of saws and hammers and the pile of broken brick alongside the First National bank led a MORNING ASTORIAN reporter yesterday to investigate what was going on. He found that the old office was undergoing considerable change, and that handsome new oak counters and railing and plate glass was being put in, greatly to the improvement of the convenience of the premises.
 The old marble mantel and fireplace was removed. That fireplace has been the scene of a good many narrated exploits, the semicircle of the captains and bar pilots and British skippers that used to sit around in the years gone by, having had many a yarn to spin as they smoked and looked at the glowing coals.
 Mariners from all the seas sat there and told tales of voyages and wrecks and hair-breadth escapes. Men have come in exhausted and told of weeks of suffering and privation, and many a good story has been heard beside that old fireplace that has now vanished, forever, to be replaced by the clink of coin and the rustle of crisp currency.

 A PROLIFIC PAIR.
 Who Obeyed the Scriptural Injunction to An Unusual Extent.
 Astoria came very near having her population increased, yesterday, by the number of 24 persons in one lump. On board of the Santa Rosa in the steerage was a German family of 22 children, aside from the parents. This may seem like an over statement, but it is well verified. The mother stated that they had been living in California, but they had heard so much of Washington that they concluded a better living could be made there than in the south. She said she had been strongly persuaded to stop in Astoria, because she had no definite place in mind, but the assurances of support were not positive enough to warrant her getting off here. When asked if the children stood the sea voyage well the reply was made that the older ones were sick while the younger ones seemed to keep their stomachs well balanced.
 This is a very remarkable case. Probably there are very few families of like numbers in the country, or who have held together so well. They could almost start a village of their own. The oldest child was a fair haired man 30 years of age; the youngest a little toddling lassie. The family group attracted universal attention.
