

The level headed San Francisco Bulletin says "no man can fill a federal office and run a newspaper." Correct. It might have added with equal truth that no man can fill any political office and successfully run a newspaper.

Is speaking of Jim Turk the Oregonian has dropped the prefix "Mr." He is no longer "Mr. Turk." Yesterday's Oregonian calls him a "pirate." 'Tis said to see friends thus fall out, and, on the whole, it is a matter of regret that the recent holy alliance should be thus painfully ruptured. Probably Turk didn't divide the swag fairly. It sometimes happens with the Oregonian that "the jingling of the guinea heels the hurt that honor feels."

The Oregonian is virtuously indignant over the failure of the Portland shipping firms to compel captains to ship their crews exclusively from that pleasant inland city. Did the subject merit any extended comment it would be interesting and instructive to quote from the files of the Oregonian. It may become necessary to recount some of the sayings and doings of some of Portland's goodly and godly citizens to illustrate the fact that the business of shipping sailors is an awful one—in Astoria, but a Christian duty and a source of justifiable revenue—in Portland.

As Seen By a Visitor.

Just now we have our eye, not on Passes, but Albany, and are anxiously looking for the engineer corps that will locate the terminus of the Albany & Astoria railway on deep water. We have an idea that the Albany company means business and will push the work when once inaugurated, and we want to see the road built, because it will undoubtedly be the popular route. It will pass through a country new and fertile; it will skirt the sea shore in its most romantic and pleasing situations. Towns and villages will spring up along the line as if by magic, while every nook and dell will echo with the industry of a most enterprising, thrifty and intelligent people. We like the spirit manifested by Albany people in the road, and their liberality in the building up of their own city and their fostering care and substantial assistance in the building of manufacturing industries that contribute so materially to a city's greatness. When the road is completed we can reach Albany by rail quicker than we can reach Portland by boat, while the products of the fields will not be squandered in transfers at the expense of the producers, but will go to the ship's hold without loss of time and at comparatively small expense.

Citizens of Albany have long been interested in Astoria's welfare; they have invested their money and waited long for its enhancement in value, but they need wait but a little while longer to realize from their few hundreds maybe as many thousands, and from their thousands some will doubtless count their millions. And while the flood tide of prosperity is surely coming with crested wave and firm advance no man will fail of success that takes advantage of his opportunities.—Astoria Correspondence Albany Herald.

Get Away With the Sturgeon.

Mr. Frank Henderson, just up from his Saury's island, tells us that a large sturgeon, which he later disposed of to a local fish and poultry dealer, tells a Telegram reporter.

"These sturgeons are the historical members of the finny tribe which have for the past five years been terrorizing our island. Three years since, they got into my orchard and stripped the trees of all their fruit. They cut my top vines all to pieces, and destroyed half a mile of fence. One day, over two years ago, they got into a hayfield down there and drove the harvesters out. The men were afraid to return, and the grass all spoiled. For weeks these sturgeon roved about the island, eating up our best hunting dogs and making the nights hideous, and they did not stop till they had chased all the cattle into the river. "Last Monday, after the flood had entirely subsided, I went down to the cedar under an out-house, where I had 100 bushels of potatoes stored. Hang me if those sturgeons were not swimming around in the water, which was about three feet deep, devouring those spuds. That was too much; my house is my castle. I scurried the 'innards' out of half a dozen potatoes and filled up the cavities with Yamhill butter. A terrible fight ensued, but the butter proved too strong, and carried those sturgeon up the stone steps, lung them up in the woodshed, and in exactly fifteen minutes by the watch, had them dressed and ready for market. Powerful butter, that Yamhill product!"

A WORD OF CAUTION. In this as in every other locality where it is known, there are hundreds who are taking Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla, and in nine cases out of every ten it is effecting specific cures. But word comes to us occasionally of people who report that it opens too freely upon the bowels. We want to say to those that they are not following the printed instructions and are taking too much of it. It acts too freely reduce the dose, never taking any more than causes easy and perfect action. Keep this in mind, and take it regularly for a while and do not indulge in too much greasy food, and we will have your troubles within a fortnight. If taken under these conditions it is an absolute cure for indigestion, dyspepsia, sick headaches, constipation, face eruptions and liver and kidney disorders. It may be asked how it can possibly cure so many ailments. But the reason is clear. All those troubles are the legitimate result of impure liver and kidney action or impaired digestive organs. Its effects upon those functions are as astonishing to the medical fraternity as to the thousands who are daily taking it.
