The influence of the railroad, cable, and motor lines is felt, especially in those sections of the town or outlying territory near which they go.

Inquiries among dealers in dirt elicit various replies. The majority of them report the business of the past week as quiet, but firm. No downward tendency, but such a full as may come at any time. Everything, however, points to a period of unusual activity after the spring is fairly started. J. H. Mansell sold 38 acres about four miles up the river, which is to be
