The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON.
TUESDAY, MARCH 11, 1920.
A MYSTERIOUS EPIDEMIC.
Death and Decomposition Strike The Victim During Sleep.

Special to The Astorian. The California Associated Press. London, March 10.—In the home of common the debate on the Farwell section report languished until Sexton raised a breeze by stating that he had a letter marked "private" from Salisbury to Pigott. Balfour declared that the victim's identity was never uttered than the insinuation that Salisbury is connected with forgeries. He had Salisbury's authority, challenged Sexton to publish the letter and dared him to read it. Sexton retorted that he was ready to submit the letter and others with it to a committee of inquiry. Balfour denied that the government had assisted the Times to procure evidence in America and accused Farwell of withholding from the commission every source of authentic evidence and concluded by admitting the Times guilty of culpable credulity but said Farwellites were not less guilty by pointing to their sympathy with rather than to their abhorrence of crime. Gladstone's amendment was rejected by a vote of 239 to 208. The Jennings amendment will be taken up tomorrow.

New and Terrible Disease. Special to THE ASTORIAN. DRESDEN, March 10.—A mysterious epidemic has appeared at Schiloh, East and Freyberg. Three deaths occurred in two days. Those attacked slept in bed in good spirits and left, in some cases, from twenty-four to forty-eight hours, all efforts to awaken them proving unavailing. The bodies appeared to have become decomposed during sleep.

Heavy Failure of Bullion Dealers. Special to THE ASTORIAN. LONDON, March 10.—Messrs. Brown & Wainwright, bullion dealers, and dealers in bullion have failed. Their liabilities are $1,500,000.

Servian Ministry Resigns. Special to THE ASTORIAN. BELGRADE, March 10.—The Servian ministry have tendered their resignation.

Female White Caps.

RATESWOOD, W. Va., March 7.—Two Jackson county young ladies, desiring to work a reformation in the case of A. B. Mitchell, a business man of this city, who has been neglecting his wife and family for the company of other women, successfully played the role of highway robbers night before last, under the protection of male friends. About 1 o'clock in the morning, while Mitchell was returning home from one of his accustomed visits, the two girls, disguised as men, met him in the road, thrust the muzzles of two empty revolvers into his face and demanded his money. This was handed over with pleas for his life, but the women, after a whispered consultation, told their victim he was utterly worthless, a disgrace to his family and would not be missed, and as dead men tell no tales anyhow they would kill him, but would give him five minutes to pray. As he dropped on his knees he was kicked over on his face from behind, and while groveling in the mud his assailants disappeared. Neighbors came to the rescue and took him home.
