Regarding the moving of the town of Prineville, in eastern Oregon, the Review says: "There is no use to conceal the fact that the business men and capitalists of this place are only waiting for the advent of the O. P. railroad when they will lose no time in doing it. Where the road crosses the great Des Chutes river will spring up a town in as many weeks as it has taken years to make Prineville what it is to-day. There is no secret about this, as our merchants all say they are ready to pull up at a day's notice."
