

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON: WEDNESDAY, APRIL 2, 1930. City and County Official Paper.

There is a great demand for lumber vessels at all Sound lumber mills. Coasting vessels have gone on deep water and freights have advanced from $4.50 to $5.50 a thousand feet.

The presidency of the United States is the highest gift in the power of the people, but the president has the power to make a still higher one. He can appoint the postmaster at Mineral Point, Col., 12,000 feet above the sea.

There is going to be a great rush for timber lands this coming summer, says the Tillamook Headlight. Many claims that were taken, but not paid for will be retaken, and the activity in timber speculation will probably exceed that of last year.

A New York advertiser induced a fortune-teller to "foretell" to a rich widow that she would be married to a young man whose description fitted him exactly. By and by he came along, and the widow, recognizing her intended husband, married him. He remained with her long enough to borrow $3,000 and then skipped.

The London Gazette has tendered to Parnell an apology for its action in republishing from day to day as they came out the charges made by the Times that the Irish leader convicted of crime. Parnell, who had begun a suit against the Gazette for libel, has accepted the apology as satisfactory and will cause legal proceedings to be dropped.

During the recent cruise of the fish commissioners' steamer Albatross along the Oregon coast a new species of flounder was discovered. It was found to be of excellent flavor. It has been called the "deep-sea sole." It is found from 100 to 400 fathoms deep. The Albatross will shortly leave San Francisco for another cruise along this coast.

Discussion of the repeal of the robber indebtedness clause, the Pendleton East Oregonian says:

We are well aware the deduction for indebtedness is a source of great abuse, and that the rich take advantage of it to escape taxation, and therefore we are in favor of its repeal, but not without giving debtors fair notice and opportunity to accommodate themselves to the new law. For this purpose we would allow deductions of all indebtedness on notes and mortgages already contracted up till the time they became due; also we would suggest deduction of only fifty per cent of indebtedness the first year after the law went into effect, and thereafter none, except as above stated on obligations not yet matured.

JOHN MUIR, a scientific man, who has been making practical examinations in Alaska and of the Behring strait and sea regions says, in relation to the bridging of Behring strait, which has been generally ridiculed: "Senator Stanford's girder of steel around the earth via Behring sea is a perfectly feasible scheme. Behring sea can be bridged. It is only thirty miles across in the narrowest place, and there are three islands strung along it. This would divide the bridge up into four divisions. But, besides this the water is very shallow. In many places it is not more than twenty feet deep. Undertake to say that if a man were strong enough to take one of California's redwood trees in his hands, he would put it down anywhere over the 600 miles of Behring sea and yet have 100 feet of it left above the water. This shows how easy it would be to bridge the straits. The only trouble would be from floating icebergs, but that could be easily overcome by constructing swinging bridges like they have across the river at Chicago. In this way the strait could be kept clear all the time, and trains could run right along."

Salmon on the Sacramento.

There are now about sixty-five boats on the Sacramento river. The fishermen report the run to be rather light and the boats do not average more than four salmon each per day. About a third of the boats ship their fish to this market by steamer. The fishermen say there are indications of a large run of salmon and they are making arrangements in accordance with their predictions. The Black Diamond and Martinez canneries will require a large quantity of salmon if the run proves to be what is expected. -S. F. Herald of Trade and Grocer and Canner, March 28.
