Corn Cheaper Fuel Than Coal in Kans

"Some people seem to be horrified when they hear of corn being used for fuel," said Frank C. Walker, of Man-hattan, Kansas, who was at the Tre-mont house. Now if corn is cheaper than coal, what possible objection can there be to using it for fuel? A Kanthere be to using it for fuel? A Kan-sas farmer can get 13 cents for a bushel of corn. Let us see, that is $3.70 cents for a ton. To get that, he may have to haul his corn six or eight miles to market. If he buys coal, he will pay from $4 to $5 per ton, and haul it the six or eight miles back haul it the six or eight miles back home. The matter simply comes down to the question of how he can get the most effective fuel for a dollar. You could hardly expect a farmer to pay a bonus in order that he might burn coal if he could get the heat some other way. Corn at $3.70 per ton is cheaper fuel than coal at $5 a ton, and, besides, it has in its favor the fact that the farmer has the corn at home. There is no more reason for an bome. There is no more reason for an objection to burning corn than there is to burning wood,"—Chicago Trib-
