CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Discussion of Questions Affecting the Community.

There was a small attendance at the Chamber of Commerce last evening. Sundry bills including one of $157.50, for secretary's salary and expenses from January 1, 1889, were paid.

Secretary Holden reported that since the last regular meeting he had collected $211.25; that there was due from various members outstanding indebtedness to the amount of $159.75.

A letter was read from congressman Herman to Messrs. Gray and Thompson committee on increased mail facilities, saying that his personal attention was directed to an effort to have the daily mail schedule between here and Portland shortened to nine hours and adequate night service to insure prompt transmission of eastern mail.

A request from New York city that the chamber endorse the proposed postal telegraph scheme, was on motion, laid on the table.

The secretary said that the Portland board of trade had acquiesced in the action of the chamber endorsing the proposed transfer of revenue cutters to the navy department.

A communication was received from St. Louis, Mo., asking the chamber to endorse the passage by congress of the Torrey bankrupt law, which was done.

SALMON.

A Communication Regarding the Outlook For the Pack.

Editor San Francisco Commercial News—Sir: The stock of salmon in Great Britain has been considerably exaggerated, though larger than usual, and the clipping from the Oregon paper in your issue of to-day would lead the public still further astray were they to take the report and the figures stated therein, as being correct.

As a matter of fact the stock of good marketable salmon is not excessive, either here or on the other side, and is gradually being reduced by the steady and persistent demand for a fish of fine quality and pack. The stock of low and inferior salmon is, of course, very large and likely to remain so, as dealers have found by bitter experience that it is useless to try to dispose of it. A considerable quantity of this may be looked upon as absolutely unsalable, and consequently must not be taken into consideration, when estimating the stocks or arriving at any opinion of the future of the salmon market.

It will be a salutary lesson to canners to pack only good fish and to teach them that their responsibility does not end directly the salmon leaves the cannery. If packers will see that truly really good fish is put up and that greater care is used in packing it, there will be no difficulty in disposing of it, and it will tend towards restoring a healthy tone to the market, which it has lost mainly through the packing of such qualities as are worthless and unmerchantable fish, mostly outside river canners. Prices will, of course, not be equal to last season's, but there will be sufficient margin for profit to satisfy those who make the duty for themselves. How long this will be a matter that rests with themselves, as all depends on their policy and the judgment they exercise in the quality and quantity of the pack.

We estimate that the probable pack of the coming season will be:

Columbia river.....150,000 British Columbia.....150,000 Alaska.....500,000 Outside rivers.....15,000 Sacramento river.....35,000 Total.....890,000

As all in the trade know over 50,000 cases of cheap salmon have been sold at all the way from 65 to 90 per dozen for Eastern markets which reflects one of the main causes of the world to last until the advent of the 1891 pack. We will venture to say that 50,000 cases more could be disposed of at the same figures, and would quickly go into consumption, as it is the cheapest food that is put into tins. We very much doubt if a single case of this cheap salmon i.e. fall pack and Alaska, will be left here when the new fish arrives, and we presume the low prices in England will also stimulate consumption there. If England is capable of taking 500,000 cases salmon with a population of 35,000,000, the United States will certainly be capable of taking twice as much with a population of 70,000,000 and we predict that good red Alaska salmon at $1.00 per dozen will not go begging on this market. We have already advised the packers to pack salmon, immaterial where it is packed, is a curse to the trade and we consider that one can of poor salmon will do more harm than twenty cases of good.

We think the diminished packing will be in Columbia river and fall packed salmon, also white Alaska salmon; this should make a difference of at least 400,000 cases in the pack of 1890.

H. H. WELCH & CO. SAN FRANCISCO, April 16, 1890.

A Curious Invention.

An automatic card shuffler is the work of an English inventor, Mr. Booth. It works thus: A sharp turn to the right of either of the two hand levers places the machine in working order. The cards are then dropped into the slot, the machine works by itself, and the cards gradually disappear. When the whole have passed into the machine the handle is turned again in the same direction, and the cards will be brought back to the surface of the table. Another pack should then be placed in the slot, and the shuffling process repeats itself while the players are dealing and playing pack No. 1. When the hand has been played, a turn of the handle brings pack No. 2 ready shuffled, and the pack No. 1 is then placed in the slot in place of pack No. 2. This process may be repeated indefinitely. By this arrangement every card changes its position, passing through the machine in twenty seconds.

A Scrap of Paper Saves Her Life.

It was just an ordinary scrap of wrapping paper that saved her life. She was in the last stages of consumption, told by physicians that she was incurable, and could live only a short time; she weighed less than seventy pounds. On a piece of wrapping paper she read of Dr. King's New Discovery, and got a sample bottle; it helped her more, bought another and grew better fast, until she was able to get on her feet, healthy, rosy, plump, weighing 140 pounds. For fuller particulars send stamp to W. H. Cole, Druggist, Fort Smith, Ark. Trial bottles of this wonderful Discovery Free at J. W. Conn's Drug-store.

JOS. HUME WAS KNOTTED. That's Why He Bid $12,000 for It.

Joseph Hume, the purchaser of the Florence house, was next permitted to take the witness stand. He stated that he had bid $82,000 for the property, and that amount he thought to be about $12,000 in excess of its real value. He was willing to have the sale canceled if he were allowed 7 per cent. interest for the use of his money from February 28th last.

In response to a question from the court, Hume stated that he was possessed of considerable wealth which he had made catching salmon on the Columbia river. The fact that he had paid $12,000 more for the property than he thought it worth he explained by stating that he was very much excited on the day of the sale. The witness further stated that he had found the rumors about Mrs. French making $1,000 a month out of the property had been completely untrue. The property, while her real profits were not more than $300 a month. This amount Mr. Hume considered very small, considering that there is $100,000 worth of furniture in the house. He did not think that his investment would return a net income of more than 3 1/2 per cent. on $82,000.—S. F. Chronicle, 17.

A VIGOROUS KICK. A Merchant's Wife the Done of Contents.

A well known merchant who has been greatly benefited by Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla, desired to give it to his wife, who was very delicate, but out of caution first consulted his physician, Dr. W. H. Griswold of 830 Market street. The doctor, who is one of our leading practitioners, objected, saying he had never seen a sarsaparilla that did not contain opium, which thinned the blood; but his patient did not have any vitality to lose, and that what delicate people need is not decreased vitality, but more joy. He however consented when assured that Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla was opposed to the blood thinning idea of other sarsaparillas, and that on the contrary by specific vegetable alternatives it promoted digestion, and repaired nutrition, hence created new blood, and was the very thing for feeble people. The above explains the many cases in which sarsaparilla has been built up by Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla after the potash sarsaparilla failed. Its effects are creating a sensation.—S. F. Examiner
