Before Judge Jewett, in the police court at 3 o'clock, he attempted to deny the charge and plead not guilty, but the evidence was too clear, and he was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 or serve twenty days in jail. That is just the way to treat such rascals; and teach them to behave, if possible.

DEATH OF JUDGE CALLENDER.

Passing Away of a Venerable Pioneer.

Judge Philo Callender died at his home at Knappaont, Wash., yesterday morning. Deceased was one of the first settlers of Clatsop county. He started from New York for this coast by way of the isthmus, about 7th of that year—nearly forty years ago. He was one of the oldest men in the community. He was born in New York state, July 18th, 1855, and would shortly have celebrated his eighty-fifth birthday. For years he resided at Clatsop, but about five years ago took up his residence at Knappaont.

The funeral will be at 2:30 this afternoon and attended solely by intimate friends of the family, and members of the Pioneer and Historical society. The pall bearers will be Capt. Geo. Flavel, Capt. J. G. Hustler, Capt. J. H. D. Gray, Hon. John Hobson, W. P. Parker, Judge Page, C. S. Wright and Bremham Van Dusen. The interment will be at the old Clatsop cemetery, beside his wife, who died about two years ago.

Judge Callender was a member of the legislature in territorial days, was a member of the commission on Indian claims, and was at one time county judge of this county.

He belonged to a generation that preceded the present, and lived mostly in the past.

Up to almost the last weeks of his life he preserved all his faculties unimpaired, and was never happier than when in the society of his friends.

He died of no disease or complaint, it seemed as though Nature had wound him up to run for eighty years, but ran on for nearly five years more, until the weary wheels of life at last stood still.

THE LEAF OF WOODRUFF.

A leaf of woodruff in a book. Gone was its scent, and lost its pristine glory.

Each slender bladelet work a dainty look. And all was blanch'd and hoary.

And yet this withered leaf a spell possess'd. Which worked upon me in mysterious And sent old memories thronging through my breast.

Of mingled pain and pleasure; Of childhood's days that knew no thought of care. Of homes that passed on wings of rainbow fleetness.

Of odors floating on the wafted air; Of soft from their very sweetness; Of woods that wore a garb of summer green.

Of hazy deep ferns and nooks of shady stillness; Of streams that glimmer'd in the fall moon's gleam.

And mirrored back its fullness; Of lazy basking on the lone hillside. In the fierce glow of July's sultry weather;

Of twilight wonderings where the en-mantled creeped up to kiss the heather; Of voices still beneath the chureyard sod.

Bright eyes that glister'd from behind those years; Warm beauty early given back to God; Red lips that now are ashes!

SHE WENT BACK ON HIM.

Because He Wore Old Clothes on His Wedding Day.

John E. Zinner had wooed a sprightly Columbia girl, Miss Amanda A. Moore—and secured her consent to marriage. He went to Cottonwood in Shasta county, and secured a shop in which to pursue his calling as a blacksmith. On Wednesday, after taking out a license, he called upon the Rev. J. C. Simmons to go and tie the knot. Everything about the house gave token of preparation for the happy event. All the family were present with a few friends, when the couple marched in and took their stand before the doctor.

The bride was beautifully dressed in snowy white, and looked the picture of happiness and goodwill. But the bridegroom stood in his heavy winter clothes, the suit he had worn all the winter, which were, of course, the worse for wear. Nevertheless above his unseemly attire he wore a smiling face. It fairly beamed with satisfaction as the lovely girl leaned upon his arm.

The doctor commenced the ceremony in his usually impressive style, and when he reached the declaration, "If any man show any just cause why they may not be lawfully joined together let them now speak or forever hold their peace," the bride, releasing her hand from his arm and stepping back, spoke with a clear, calm voice:

"I have look at these clothes (gracefully waving her hand toward the startled groom). That tells the tale, and shows what sort of a husband he would make."

You have often heard of a thimble clip out of a clear sky. That was it. The astonished man stood dazed for a moment and said: "That settles it; I had a hat on," and reaching for it left without ceremony.

For the space of five minutes not a word was spoken. At last the embarrassing silence was broken by the mother saying "come in dinner."

The disappointed man came to town and filed himself with mean whiskey, and when the girl came with her father's family to have their pictures taken she caught sight of the poor fellow hugging a lamp post.—Columbia, Calif., Sun, May 1.

Three Fatalities in One Village.

ASHLAND, Wis., April 29.—Marengo, a little town twenty miles distant from Ashland, was the scene of three singular fatalities yesterday. Joseph Frank was chopping at the base of a tall pine tree. As it toppled to the earth his two boys, aged seven and five respectively, ran directly under it and were crushed to death. This was in the morning. In the afternoon a little dwelling occupied by Ole Hansson, a Swedish chopper, was found to be ablaze. The mother was nowhere about the house. The father, at work near by, rushed in through the burning door, and grabbed up the cradle in which he supposed his six-month-old babe was lying. He got outside again, but was very badly burned. He sat the cradle down and began examining his wounds. When the house was a mass of smoking ruins he turned to take the baby from the cradle, but the cradle was empty. The babe had been burned to death in the house.

Ebony Bridge Timbers.

"What do you think of a railroad using ebony and mahogany for bridge timber?" remarked Mr. O. Paget yesterday. "It seems strange, yet it is a fact. I have just received a letter from a friend in Mexico, and he writes me that the Monterey and Mexican Gulf railway is using these woods in the construction of its bridges and that the stations are being built of black marble. The country which he speaks of is rich in ebony and mahogany, and he says that he has seen quantities of timber of these woods, whereas the commoner kinds usually used in constructing bridges are wholly wanting. The railroads of Mexico, he writes me, import large quantities of timber from Texas, and last year the Mexican Central paid $1,500,000 for Texas lumber."—Galveston News.

Can't Understand the Case.

Minneapolis Journal: A case came up in the court over which Judge Brill presided in St. Paul, in which a colored woman was witness. She testified that she had whipped her little boy severely and as she turned to the door she saw a white stiff beating she had administered the judge's clear brow grew a little darker and he interrupted her to ask if it had been necessary to chastise the boy so severely. The colored lady looked astonished at the question. Gazing intently at the court she inquired:

"Judge, was you eber der father of a wutless mulattler boy?"

"No," said the judge lastly.

"Then, judge, you don't know unfin about de case."

A WORD OF CAUTION.

In this is every other locality where it is known, there are hundreds who are taking Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla, and in nine cases out of every ten it is effecting specific cures. But those occasionally a few people who report that it operates too freely upon the bowels. We want to say to those that they are not following the printed instructions and are taking too much of it. If it acts too freely reduce the dose, never taking any more than causes easy and perfect action. Keep this in mind, and take it regularly for a while and do not indulge in too much greasy food, and we will have your medicinal value of a fortnight. If taken under these conditions it is an absolute cure for indigestion, dyspepsia, sick headaches, constipation, face eruptions and liver and kidney disorders. It may be asked how it can possibly cure so many ailments. But the reason is clear. At times a person may be a legitimate result of improper liver and kidney action or impaired digestive organs. Its effects upon those functions are so astonishing to the medical fraternity as to the thousands who are daily taking it.

Imitator.

No matter what trade or profession you choose you will easily detect the men of original ideas; the men who push themselves and the town they live in ahead; men who are a credit to their profession and the community they live in; but you are also sure to find the imitators, those who are at the rear end of the procession, men who never have an original, bright thought or do an original, bright act. If let alone they will exist on what liberal, unsuspecting people permit themselves to be robbed of; but no sooner does the original, enterprising man make a move, and the imitating tail-end tries to benefit by his superior's genius.
