CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

Special to THE ASTORIAN.]

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Butler invited Teller to give his idea of the effect of free coinage in the international monetary arrangement. Teller answered, everybody admitted that the proposed bill was a temporary affair. The bill was a half-way scheme, and it afforded no relief whatever. It made a special market for silver, in excess of the present government demand of two millions per month. If it was proposed to restore silver it would have to be given its full money function.

There were at least nine men in the world, calling for silver, as against one man calling for gold. There were no more than 125,000,000 people that preferred in their trade gold to silver, while there were over 1,000,000,000 people among whom, by preference, silver was the chief money. Silver was the chief money, it was better adapted to the use of money than gold.

While he was himself, a bi-metallic, if there was to be only one money standard, he would himself the silver basis in the interest of the race and people of this country, and the sooner it was reached the better for America industry, better for commerce, better for trade and better for everything.

Teller spoke four hours and a half and concluded at 3:35. Coke, spoke against the bill, concluding at 4:25, and the senate adjourned at 4:40.

The latest report from the scene of the disaster is that a rescue party had penetrated to within sight of two dead bodies, but the gas was so thick they were driven to the surface. The place is a fall of black danger, and further approach in the direction of the victims is impossible. Little hope is entertained that any men will be rescued alive.

Negotiations are pending in view of its placing a trans Pacific steamship line between San Diego and Japan and Australia. A steamship line could be in operation in sixty days, whereas two years will be necessary for the building of a transcontinental road. The former in time would force the latter by the increased business which San Diego would develop."

THE SCOURGE OF SPOKANE.

A Fifty Thousand Dollar Fire Early in the Morning.

Special to THE ASTORIAN.]

SPOKANE FALLS, May 15.—At 2:30 this morning a fire, caused by the bursting of a lamp, broke out in a building occupied by Peter Hansen, a saloon and lodging house, corner of Howard and Second streets. Owing to lack of water the firemen were unable to get the conflagration under control until the buildings on Howard street, from Second street south to the alley were destroyed. A number of buildings on Howard street, on the opposite side from where the fire originated, were also destroyed including the Methodist tabernacle. Hansen, Sam Freyes, one of the men, had a narrow escape from death. He was at work in a lodging house over Hansen's saloon, when he found a man in one of the rooms on the second floor, suffering from suffocation. He grabbed the man by the legs and started to drag him to one of the front windows. Just as Freyes reached the window, the flames broke into the room, and he had to abandon the man in order to save himself. He jumped to the ground and escaped with comparatively slight injuries.

J. B. Costello, a lodger in the house, finding escape by the stairway cut off, made for the front window and leaped from the second story. The extent of Costello's injuries are not at present known, but it is thought he received serious internal injuries.

May Maher, Hattie Thompson and Jno. Steward, of the same house, received severe burns about the head and arms. The charred remains of the man who was burned in the lodging house have been found in the ashes. It is also reported that an infant met its death in the same building. The exact losses are not yet known, but they will be not far from $50,000.

No one was burnt in the fire this morning, although J. H. Costello was rescued in an unconscious condition. Losses: Methodist tabernacle $5,000, insurance $3,000; Peter Hansen $4,000, insurance $3,500; Pelton drug store $6,000, insurance $2,500; Dr. Lonny $1,400, insurance $600; Mrs. A. M. Ballenger $2,000, no insurance; Jno. McCoy $1,000, fully insured; Jno. Anderson, grocery, $4,500, insurance $1,500. A number of small losses probably $1,000 in the aggregate, fully insured.

A NEW SILVER MINE.

Special to THE ASTORIAN.]

SPOKANE FALLS, May 15.—From Wallace, Idaho, comes a special to the Spokesman, which says that George P. Carter and W. S. Darling have struck a new lead of silver in the Coeur d'Alene district, five miles north of Murray, near the headwaters of Prichard creek. There is great excitement among the men.

W. H. Pellet, the new surveyor-general of Idaho, and Jno. A. Finch, of the Gen. and Ins. Bureau, arrived this afternoon from a visit to the strike. They say it's a very big thing. They brought some ore over which is pure carbonate of lead of the best quality, like the Sierra Nevada and the Coeur d'Alene strikes. The prospect is good for a big camp. Great excitement prevails on Prichard creek, the entire basin being already staked off.

RIVAL EXPRESS COMPANIES.

Almost a Fight to Begin With.

Special to THE ASTORIAN.]

DENVER, May 15.—There was trouble at the Union depot this morning, between the Denver & Rio Grande express, and Wells, Fargo express. Ever since the Colorado Midland road opened, Wells, Fargo express has run over its line. The new contract with the Rio Grande express was to go into effect to-day. The agents of both express companies were on hand this morning, the Rio Grande getting possession of the car. Wells Fargo goods were attempted to be placed on the car platform, but were pitched off, and the agents and messengers of both companies nearly came to blows in the excitement which ensued.

The Midland train was to run over the Santa Fe track to Colorado Springs, and Wells, Fargo has the exclusive contract with the Santa Fe company. The Santa Fe train therefore refused to allow the Midland to proceed, whereupon it took the Rio Grande railway back to that point. Just what the outcome of the trouble between the express companies will be, in its effects on the relations of the different railway companies named, cannot be predicted.

Spokane Beats the Visitors.

SPOKANE FALLS, May 15.—The Northwest league game was played here to-day, and the result was as follows: Spokane 11, Seattle 7.

SHE GOT AT FACTS.

Why Harry Was Not Awakened and Reprorched by His Better Half.

The sewing girl was very pretty. There was no doubt about that, but there was no reason, the wife thought, why Harry should look at the sewing girl so often and so intently. Indeed, why should he look at the sewing girl at all? She had promised to join a box party at the theater with Smith, and Harry said he believed he wouldn't go; he'd rather stay in the sitting room and smoke and read, and the Smiths could bring her home. The sewing girl was sitting in the sitting room, and would be engaged until nearly nine o'clock. It was a doubtful situation, but wives are adroit and alert. This one thought her of the perfect phonograph that Harry had brought home. She would take it into the sitting room. It worked automatically with conversation anywhere near it, and registered with perfect accuracy, emitting again on occasion all it had heard. She carried out the idea and joined the theater party.

When the wife returned Harry was in bed sleeping the sleep of the just—or the hardened. She closed the doors tightly to cut off all sound, and turned the phonograph crank with fear and trembling. At the first revolution she almost fainted. There issued the voices of Harry and the sewing girl. He had been in the room!

She recovered after a time and turned the crank. Here is the conversation she heard:

"Hello. Have you seen a meerschaum pipe around here?"

"No, sir."

"Guess I must have left it down town. Say, are you the girl that made my last lot of shirts?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, when you make another lot I want you to sew every button on so it will stick till there's frost in hades. See? Mrs. ——— a good girl, but she's so infernally busy watching me she forgets about buttons. See?"

"Yes, sir."

"All right. Much obliged. What red ears you've got. Hello! I'll be blanked if there isn't the pipe on the mantel now! You'd better never get married; you haven't got the eye. See?"

"That was all there was in the phonograph. Harry was not awakened and reprorched. The woman was too much shocked with the bald reality of life. Besides she didn't know what to say." —Pulk Co. Observer.
