As Laid Out by H. F. L. Logan The Coming Seaside Resort of Oregon. As Laid Out by H. F. L. LOGAN

Wagon Road From Terminus of Astoria and South Coast Railroad to the Resort, Affording a Lovely Drive.

ROBB & PARKER, General Agents, ASTORIA, OREGON.

THE ASTORIAN would direct Astoria's attention to the present condition of the city's steamer traffic. Our steamers have, many of them, been sold that used to ply to adjacent points, and are now running in other waters; they are gone, and their places are not filled. Shoalwater bay and Grey's harbor, are growing fast. Astoria should have and hold that trade. It naturally and geographically belongs here.

But it will not gravitate this way. It must be brought. Our business men will readily see that this is a matter of vital importance to them. It is not business to sell our coast boats and cease ownership. Astoria has not so many sources of wealth that she can ignore or annihilate any of them. To-day we own few boats. Trade is growing at our gates, but it is carried by boats owned elsewhere.

There is a chance for the profitable investment of capital in a legitimate business enterprise that would aid the town. It may not be as radiantly dazzling as some more airy projects advanced by rainbow chasers, but it is strictly business and will commend itself to the common sense of the people.

Truly says the Spokane Falls Review: "Those Pacific coast millionaires who have an idea that they can pay from $1,000 to $10,000 and buy their way into history greatly mistake the temper of the world. True, they can hire a shrewd publisher to place their portrait and several pages of fulsome praise in an elegant and imposing publication, but that is not history, no more than gold-washed jewelry is solid gold. When the true and undying history of the west is written not one sentence will be dictated by wealth. The men whose influence upon the west has been for all time, who have left their stamp upon its civilization and its laws, will become the objects of the historian's pen, and whether they were wealthy or poor will cut no figure at all. Wealth has never swayed the historian's pen in the past, nor will it in the future. True, many wealthy men have taken a place in the history of this country. But, without exception, they were men whose influence was felt aside from their wealth, men who founded cities and states, whose enterprise and daring led to the construction of transportation links or whose wealth was employed in the founding of institutions of learning and charity. The men who grew rich simply by acquiring real estate, or conducting banks are not going into any history that the world will care to read."

ALAN WEBB, the former editor of the Port Townsend Argus, is a sort of Pook Bah in the new state of Washington. He is secretary of state insurance commissioner, member of the state land commission, member of the commission to select indemnity school lands, member of the state library commission, member of the commission to select a site for a normal school, scaler of weights and measures, member of the state board of equalization of taxes and of the state board of equalization in the value of tide lands, has to audit the state printing bill, has supervision over the capital building and grounds and is required to furnish supplies to the state officers and library. He comes pretty near having a contract to run the interior department of the state and doesn't leave much for the rest of them to fill. But after running a daily newspaper, it's a sort of a rest to him to fill a dozen state offices.

The admission of six new states cuts down the list of territories. Utah ought to feel ashamed to be kept in the list of territories by the curse of Mormonism, when her wealth and population justify her admission to the Union. But while tainted with Mormonism she can never come into the American union of sovereign states. New Mexico has enough population, but they are not American in instinct, and are better out of the Union than in it. Arizona will some day be a state, as will Alaska, but their day is distant. The Indian territory will be absorbed in the course of years, but appearances indicate that 44 will be the number of states in the Union for several years to come.

THE NEW YORK Tribune, which has been conspicuous for many years in securing justice for veterans of the army, calls for a halt in the matter of pensions. It says: The measure of proper expenditures for pensions has been reached, if, indeed, it has not been passed already. There is no active demand on the part of the veterans of the Union for sums exceeding those already appropriated, and those veterans are sensible enough to know that appropriations exceeding half the entire revenue of the government to benefit a small fraction of the people might quickly cause the collapse of the whole system for lack of popular approval of support.

A NEW Atlantic seaport to be established by Boston capitalists at the east end of the Straits of Canso, Nova Scotia, to be called Terminal City. It is said that steamers' time between it and Liverpool will be four days.

EMERSON'S thought is worth remembering this census year: "The true test of civilization is not the census, nor the size of the cities, nor the crops, but the kind of men the country turns out."

Epoch. The transition from long, lingering and painful sickness to robust health marks an epoch in the life of the individual. Such a remarkable event is treasured in the memory and the agency whereby the good health has been attained is gratefully blessed. Hence it is that so much is heard in praise of Electric Bitters. So many feel they owe their restoration to health to the use of the Great Alterative and Tonic. If you are troubled with any disease of the Kidneys, Liver or Stomach, of long or short standing you will surely find relief by use of Electric Bitters. Sold at 50 c. and per bottle at J. W. Conn's Drug store.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS. Mrs. WINGLOW'S SOOTHING STRIP should always be used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

THE old-time comic almanac used to contain, among other directions for the farmer, the words "Now is the time to plant cutfish seed!" The proposal to transfer the control of the national fish commission to the department of agriculture shows that the comic almanac was a deal more serious than it was meant to be. It is very safe to assume that, when Uncle Jerry Bask gets his grip on the commission, the propagation of whitefish, shad, and trout will give way to the planting of that useful if not "gamy" denizen of the water, the "pumpkin seed."
