Henry Villard is writing his auto-biography for the use of his children. The story of his early days is written in German, the chapters devoted to his school days is French, while the portion relating to his cateer in America will be recorded in English. The con-cluding chapters will probably be written in legal phraseology.

A noticeable feature among stock at present is the number of bronchos now arriving. These little horses come from Klickitat, Washington, and are good animals of their kind. Just how they'll suit western Oregon is a ques-tion. They are of poor stock, of a pony breed, and do not seem adapted to our wants. Still, like singed cats, they may be better than they look.

A St. Louis Merchant's Trip to the Postoffice, and the Result.

California's last sensation is beginning to take hold of St. Louis. J. V. S. Barrett, the commission merchant of 122 and 124 North Commercial Street, was one of the first to test Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla in sick headaches. Its effect was such a gratifying surprise that he went over to the postoffice and told his friend, Thos. P. Culkin, sup't of the registry division, who was also worried with headaches. The following letter details his friend's experience also: --
