THE METHODIST PICNIC.

Delightful Day at Alderbrook Grove.

The picnic of the Sunday school of the M. E. church yesterday at Alder-brook grove, was attended by about 125 persons, and was a very pleasant affair. The shade of the grove is beautiful, and under the grand old trees, with the bright green grassy ground in front and the thick underbrush and enormous ferns in the background a delightful picture of nature is presented. Through the trees on the bank across the open space, the broad surface of the noble Columbia river is seen in the distance, the passing vessels on its capacious bosom enlivening the otherwise monotony of its gently rolling surface.

Numerous games were played, there was a swing and a merry go-round, and several of the party enjoyed a ramble over the hills, gathering ferns which grow in abundance, and picking added to batim to a sample over the hills, gathering ferns which grow in abundance, and picking from the trees specimens of fungus growth on whose white surface they wrote the date to preserve as a memento of the day. It was a delightful day, enjoyed greatly by all who

The Work of Triangulation

Captain Cleveland Rockwell, of the coast and geodetic survey, has received orders to go on with the survey of the Columbia river from the mouth of the Willamette to the Cascades. He started this work last summer, and completed the triangulation as far up as Government island. He has been waiting all summer for orders to re-sume work. He will now proceed to take soundings and complete the work as far as possible this season, though now that the smoky season has ar-rived, it will be much more difficult to do this work, as the probability is that considerable of the time it will be impossible to see the shores from the middle of the river.-Oregonian, 12.

Why Do They Advertise?

The man who conducts his busines on the theory that it doesn't pay, and he can't afford to advertise, sets up his judgment in opposition to that of all the best business men in the world. With a few years' experience in conducting a small business of a few thousand dollars capital, he assumes to know more than thousands of men whose hourly transactions aggregate more than his does in a year, and who have made their millions by pursuing a course that he says doesn't pay.

If advertising doesn't pay, why is it that the most successful merchants of every town, large and small, are the heaviest advertisers? If advertising doesn't pay, who does the most business? If it doesn't pay to advertise, why do the heaviest business firms in the world spend millions in that way? Is it be cause they want to donate those mil-lions of dollars to the newspaper and magazine publishers, or because they don't know as much about business as the six-for-a-dollar store keeper in a country town, who says money spent in advertising is thrown away donated to the man to whom it is paid? Such talk is simply ridiculous, and it requires more than the average paience to discuss the proposition of whether advertising pays or not with that kind of a man. His complacent world is laughable, and reminds us of the man who proved that the world doesn't revolve by placing a pumpkin on a stump and watching it all night,

I came over here calculating to pick you up and break you in two over the bench, but I'm going to leave you to that God who watches over the poor and helpless and downtrodden. For every tear that child has shed Heaven will demand a drop of your blood! You are a thing, not a man—a creeping, crawling, con-temptible thing!"

The other rose up, eyes flashing and lips compressed, and it was evi-dent that he meant to resent the words. Just then, however, the lad, still digging the tears out of his eyes with his fists, came forward and took the big man by the hand and said:

"Don't fight. Come away. Mother is awful sick." The big man returned to his seat, too full to say a word for a moment, and during this interval the stranger sat down, got up again, lifted up his grip and replaced it, and finally walked over and stood before us and said:

"To say that I am ashamed and humiliated does not half express it. Here, child, take this."
