Last evening there was a regular Humboldt mist.

The merry-go-round last evening was well patronized by adults.

Yesterday in the recorder's office one mortgage deed for $1,000 was filed, also one release of a $500 mortgage.

This office is in receipt of a neat and useful little pocketbook bearing the compliments of Messrs. Palmer & Rey.

A fine opportunity to join a class in painting is offered by consulting Mrs. A. J. Smith, the talented artist, who is stopping at B. S. Worsley's.

The unusually warm day of Wednesday was succeeded yesterday by one of those cool and delightful days so characteristic of a summer in Astoria.

The Cedar street school house is to have a new flagstaff, from which at an altitude of 110 feet will float the stars and stripes, and be waved by the breezes of this loyal land.

The trouble on Third street in regard to a property owner objecting to the street improvement has been settled, and the street in that vicinity will be newly planked at once.

A large number of people who found the Portland heat too oppressive, came down yesterday on the Potter and went to the beach, some for Clatsop and the balance for North Beach.

The work of the electric light company in putting up new painted poles in the center of the city, on which the wires for their incandescent system will also be strung, is progressing steadily.

The committee on fire and water have contracted with Horace Moore, of McIlroy and Moore, Portland, for the purchase of a 55-foot Hayes extension hook and ladder truck for the use of the city.

Justice Cleveland yesterday issued a warrant for the arrest of D. Martini for gambling, on complaint of John Grand. He gave bail in the sum of $50 for his appearance in court this morning at 10 o'clock.

Those who visit Clatsop Beach can find every accommodation and a pleasant stopping place at Austin's. The hotel is new and everything is neat and clean, while to the beach is but a pleasant five minutes' walk.

The Scandinavian comedy company had but a small audience last night, but the entertainment was of no account, and entirely unworthy of any patronage whatever. Prof. Peterson, the magician, was the only redeeming feature.

Never waste time telling people what a lot of good things you have done. In the first place, they won't believe you, and in the second place, they are waiting for a chance to tell you what a lot of good things they have done themselves.

The great popularity of the Seaside hotel this season, under the management of C. C. Cooper, is well attested by the generous patronage it enjoys. The hotel is comfortable, convenient to the beach, the grounds are ample, and the bathing is the best on the coast.

Portland and Salem are just hugging themselves with delight at their success in obtaining a recount. It will now be in order to have an organized and persistent kick all along the line until Oregon's population is all counted.

A number of days ago, Joe Myers, well known in this city, while at work for contractor Parker over on Shoalwater bay, was badly injured, so much so that his recovery was considered hopeless. News has been received from Montesano that he will surely recover, and is even now gaining health and strength.

The Oregonian has been investigating the term "dago," often applied to Italians and Portuguese, and finds that it is probably a corruption of the Italian word "dico"—I say. The northern Italians, natives of Tuscany and Piedmont, have a fashion of using this word, as many Americans in narrating a story, "I says, says I." And so they have been styled "dicos," which has been corrupted into "dago."

In reference to the unfortunate death of William H. Walker, noticed in our dispatches, the Oregonian says: "Mr. Walker was a man of large frame and remarkably handsome; a big-hearted, frank-natured, pleasant-mannered man, genial and companionable, one who had the happy faculty of making friends wherever he went. He has traveled all over the northwest, and probably no man in Oregon was more widely known or more highly esteemed by those with whom he was brought in contact, and a host of friends throughout the northwest will be pained to learn of his untimely death. He was in the prime of manhood, and might reasonably have looked forward to a long and useful life, and had, by his exertions, placed himself in a position where he could look forward to a release from the arduous business duties he had so long and faithfully discharged."

Church Sociable and Festival.

The ladies of the Scandinavian Lutheran church will give a sociable and fancy fair at at the old I. X. L. cannery near the Clatsop mill this Friday evening, August 15th, at 7:30 P. M. for the purpose of raising funds to pay for their church soon to be erected at Upper Astoria.

The ladies are arranging a nice fish pond where the public can fish with silver hooks. A good time is promised. Don't fail to attend.

Wanted.

Two lady and three men waiters immediately. Apply at Jeff's New Restaurant.

PERSONAL MENTION.

W. P. Gray of Pasco, is here on a visit to his brother, Capt. J. H. D. Gray.

Miss Mabel Parker returned yesterday from a visit of a month with friends at Albany.

George W. Heald returned last evening from a visit of a number of days to his ranch at Seaside.

Col. John Adair and Mrs. Dr. Owens-Adair came up to the city yesterday from Merriwether Downs.

Sheriff Turner came over from Oysterville yesterday, and goes up to Portland on the steamer this evening.

Mrs. Estes, wife of Dr. O. B. Estes, who was up from their encampment at Seaside returned yesterday to the beach.

Chief Parrish, of the Portland police, and his wife, were passengers to San Francisco yesterday on the Columbia.

Mr. and Mrs. Todd and daughter arrived yesterday from McMinnville on a visit to Mrs. Fred Ferchen who is a niece of Mr. Todd.

Mr. Page of Olympia, Washington, and True Lienenweber were among the passengers who came down last evening on the Telephone.

E. W. Tallaut and wife, Miss Shanahan, two Misses Gile and Master Gile were passengers to San Francisco yesterday on the steamship Columbia, from this city.

Horace Moore, of Portland, agent for the sale of fire department and mill supplies, accompanied by H. B. Dyer, who have been in the city for a few days, returned on the Telephone last evening.

William Foley, one of Portland's well known attorneys, arrived here yesterday from a visit to Long Beach. He gave this office a pleasant call last e ening and returns home to-night on the Telephone.

Prof. L. C. Read, of Read's First infantry, O. N. G. band, and eight other prominent musicians of Portland, came down last evening on the Alliance on their way to Hoquiam to play for a ball which takes place this evening in honor of the opening of the large new hotel.

MARINE NEWS AND NOTES.

The steam schooner Augusta, Capt. Paul Schrader, sails for Tillamook this morning.

The steamer Alliance, Capt. Peterson, sails for Gray's harbor this morning. She has a large cargo of freight and about 35 passengers.

The steamship Danube, Capt. John R. Hill, sailed for Vancouver, B. C., yesterday with 1,315 barrels of flour for Hong Kong, China.

The steamer Willamette Chief came down the river yesterday towing a barge, and will go up with a load of salmon and tow the British ship Slieve Donard.

On the steamship State of California yesterday there came from San Francisco forty-two Chinese to work on the railroad at South Bend. They were taken to Ilwaco last evening.

The steamer Gen. Canby, Capt. Thomas Parker, brought over from Ilwaco yesterday 350 cases of salmon from the Aberdeen Packing company, and discharged them at the U. P. dock.

The steamship State of California, Capt. H. S. Ackley, arrived from San Francisco yesterday forenoon, bringing 88 tons of freight for this port, after discharging which, she left for Portland at 2 P. M.

The steamship Columbia, Capt. F. Bolles, sailed for San Francisco yesterday forenoon, taking from here 183 sacks of oysters, 1,100 cases of salmon, 5,289 bundles of laths and shooks, a quantity of miscellaneous freight, six cabin and twenty-five steerage passengers.

The steamer Harvest Queen came down the river yesterday and brought a barge to which will be transferred part of the coal on board the British bark Norfolk Island. She went up last evening with twelve carloads of salmon. At Cathlamet she was to take on 1,300 cases and at Waterford 1,000 cases of salmon.

The steamer Lakme, Capt. S. F. Graves, arrived from Roche Harbor yesterday. She had 3,000 barrels of lime, 50 tar barrels, 2,754 cases of salmon and some miscellaneous freight for Portland. Outside the bar she narrowly escaped being run into by the Columbia, as the fog was very thick, and they did not hear the whistle of the latter.

The Concert at Rescue Hall.

Last evening Rescue hall was filled with an appreciative audience of excellent people who were highly entertained by a short but meritorious program. Instrumental music was furnished by Mrs. Rannals and Miss Nellie Flavel on piano, and Fred. Busey on violin. Solos were rendered exquisitely by Mrs. F. J. Taylor and Mrs. Wetzell, who were enthusiastically applauded. Miss Edith Conn recited "His Treasure," a pathetic sketch founded on an incident of the civil war, and gave it so beautifully as to merit the hearty approbation of the entire audience.

At the close of the literary and musical program, ice cream, cake and coffee were served for refreshments, and while being partaken of the company congregated in groups of from two to ten persons and enjoyed themselves in social converse. The total receipts were $71, and as this was nearly all profit, the financial success was gratifying, and as it was a social success also, it can well be said to have been a complete affair.

Brief, But to the Point.

I had rheumatism all over my body for two years. Doctored with eminent physicians, and spent three months in Reed City Hospital. Four bottles of Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup entirely cured me. The greatest medicine in the world. CHARLES ROWE, Baldwin, Mich.

THE ELK CREEK ROAD

Will be Completed in About Three Days.

Carnahan & Morrison have only about three days' work more to complete the road down Elk creek to Brighton Beach. It is expected that they will then be enabled to do some work on this end of the road in the valley of the Necanicum, above Williamson's place. It is thought by some that a better road can be made by bridging the Necanicum near Eberman's place, and then keeping along the side of the hill to Williamson's, thus keeping out of the bottom land of the valley, which is too soft to be a good road during the winter, spring and early summer. Some favor a bridge across the Necanicum below Beerman's, the road to then go up on the west bank of the creek. These different schemes will be discussed probably at the next meeting of the county court and the most practicable route decided upon. The inhabitants in that section are becoming so numerous that the matter of roads is one of increasing importance.

The City Taxes.

Auditor Jewett and his deputy, Phil Cook, have been about four weeks making out the new assessment roll for the city. Maps were made, and on these were placed the figures on Wright's assessment roll. The board of equalization of the council, consisting principally of councilmen Welch and Parker, in connection with the auditor, went over the maps and marked thereon the new assessment, then the auditor and his assistant made out the roll from the maps, and it will be ready at the next meeting of the council.

The total figures will be not far from $4,827,200, and as that sum is nearly double the assessment of last year, the levy to raise the required amount will necessarily be smaller than usual. No one is authorized to state what the levy is, as it has not yet been made by the council, and though a sum has been agreed upon to recommend to the council, that body alone has power to decide what it shall be, and therefore, perhaps, it would be well for irresponsible parties to wait until the levy has been made before they announce it.

The roll as handed in by City Assessor Wright, was $4,429,406, so that the board of equalization has increased it nearly $400,000, and the latter roll is the one which will go to the council.

The Clackamas Hatchery.

A reporter who visited the Clackamas hatchery a few day ago found the place unusually quiet. Mr. Hubbard, who is in charge, has all the troughs in the hatchery ready for the reception of eggs. The racks which were torn down by the high water last year have been replaced with new ones that are much more substantial, and so built as to be easily taken apart and moved away in case of high water. The water used in hatching the eggs will this year be taken from the Clackamas river instead of Clear creek, the source heretofore employed. The engine pumps the water into a large wooden tank, and this feeds all the troughs through which the water is kept constantly running during the process of hatching. It is thought that the water from the Clackamas river will produce better results than that from Clear creek, owing to the fact that the temperature is the same as it is where salmon are allowed to spawn in the river.

At present there is practically nothing being done. Mr. Hubbard keeps things in shape and draws salary. U. S. Fish commissioner Livingstone Stone and his lawn tennis outfit have gone to Washington. Only a few salmon have thus far been put in, and it is thought that the run will be lighter than usual. The river is very low.

Mr. Hubbard is of the opinion that quite a number of fish went up stream before the racks were put in. The state fish commissioners are of the same opinion, and in consequence would not be surprised with a small run. Should, however, all fishing be stopped below the hatchery, there will be enough salmon caught to supply the hatchery with eggs, and possibly also enough to stock the branch hatchery at Warrendale.

The blame is to be attached to the red tape usually necessary to observe in dealing with the government. While the fish commissioners were adjusting an arrangement with Uncle Sam for the rebuilding of the racks the salmon were quietly going up stream. It will be a month or six weeks yet before the work of the hatchery commences in real earnest.

A Chewing Gum Suppressed.

Several months ago a chewing gum factory at Cleveland, O., conceived the idea of making a new brand of gum, wrapping it in imitation $5 greenbacks and calling it "Greenback Chewing Gum." It was put on the market and made a hit, large lots being sold. A government detective, who chews gum, bought a stick of the brand, and he at once saw in the imitation $5 bill a violation of the statutes of the United States. He notified the treasury department at Washington of his discovery, and this telegram was sent out to all the district secret service officers: "Greenback chewing gum has a wrapper that is a violation of section 5,430. Suppress it." Large seizures of the article were made and the sale stopped.

PRACTICAL TESTS.

An Astonishing Offer—Some of the Replies.

The San Francisco papers of recent date contained the following offer:—

"As an evidence of the ability of Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla to prevent sick headaches, we will give to the first twelve responsible persons who will apply at our office a bottle free if they will agree that after they have been cured that they will admit the fact over their signatures."

This offer so startlingly asserted the efficiency of the remedy that many accepted, and the letters of the parties, nearly all of whom responded, are probably the most convincing attestations that any remedy ever received. The following is a sample of those received:—

I have been subject to bilious headaches and constipation for several years past; in fact, have been compelled to take a physic every other night or else I would have a headache and dull, mean feeling. I have taken that bottle of Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla, and have derived great benefit from it, and intend continuing it. After my own experience I can heartily advise those troubled with billiousness and constipation to try it. Yours, CHAS. E. ELKINGTON,
125 Locust Avenue, San Francisco.

A Small Watch.

A watchmaker in Newcastle, England, recently completed a set of three gold shirt studs, in one of which is a watch that keeps excellent time. The three studs are connected by a strip of silver inside the shirt bosom, and the watch, contained in the middle one, is wound up by turning the stud above. The hands are set by turning the one below.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The chateau designed by Richard M. Hunt for George Vanderbilt, near Asheville, N. C., is said to be French renaissance in style and to call for a facade 500 feet long. The material is Indiana limestone.

Card of Thanks.

As it would be impossible to see and thank all our friends personally, we take this method of thanking them all for their kind sympathy and many acts of kindness, which have helped us to bear up under our great misfortune, and they can rest assured it will remain a bright spot in the dark cloud of sorrow that has settled over us.

HIS LIFE EATEN AWAY.

Horrible Fate of a Chicago Hod-Carrier Who Fell Into a Pit of Slack-Lime.

Patrick Kane, a hod-carrier, fell into a pit of slack-lime he was preparing at the yard of Robert Borland, plasterer, 361 West Erie street, and died from the effects at his home, 61 Hastings street, yesterday morning, says the Chicago Herald of August 6th. Kane was a stalwart Irishman, 34 years old, and possessed a record of unbroken good health, but on the day the accident occurred he complained of a sick headache. At the close of the day's work his employer asked him to prepare some lime for the next day's work. Kane at first declined on the plea that he was ill, but was finally persuaded to resume work. None of the laborers were about the yard when Kane began working the lime, and his employer went back to the office to calculate estimates on some jobs in hand.

About 7 o'clock Kane, who felt weary and tired, leaned heavily on the mixer with which he was stirring up the lime. The plank on which he stood had been thrown carelessly across the corner of the box. His weight turned it over, and before he could regain his balance or utter a cry for help he fell full length into the boiling, bubbling lime. He sank down, no part of his body escaping contact with the burning liquid, except his left arm and the upper part of his face. Kane was a strong man, and though half blinded by the specks of lime that splashed up from the box, and suffering horribly from the mouthful of fiery liquid that he had swallowed in his fatal plunge, he crawled out, staggered a few paces, and then fell prostrate on the sand heap, where he was found a few minutes later by his employer.

From his shoulders downward the lime had eaten into his clothes and was slowly making its way through the flesh of the unconscious man. The soles of his boots had dropped off and his trousers from the knee down hung in shreds from his slowly consuming limbs. The skin on the upper part of his right arm, which was bared to the shoulder, had been burned away and the muscles and tendons had succumbed to the destroyer. The nails on the fingers had dropped off almost immediately after coming in contact with the lime and the hand was tightly clinched as if to conquer the maddening pain. The liquid crept slowly but relentlessly through his shirt, eating its destructive way and frightfully scorching his chest and back. The man was a mass of burning flesh and lime, and when Borland, his employer, found him on the sandheap the fatal lime had effectually done its deadly work. Borland rushed for the hose pipe and attempted to check the progress of destruction by deluging Kane with cold water.

Then, despairing of the man's life, he carried him to his buggy with the lime-eaten clothes still clinging to his burned body and drove the injured man home. For a week Kane hovered between life and death. None of the sufferers seen by Dante during his journey through the Inferno could ever have endured the awful agony experienced by the dying hod-carrier, as the lime fairly scorched its way through his lungs. The scars on his body and limbs were hideous enough, but all chances of recovery were destroyed by the awful fire raging within. Kane bore his sufferings with the fortitude of a stoic. No word of complaint ever crossed his lips, and he showed no sign of the great agony he felt except to lay his uninjured hand on his bosom and murmur, "My heart is burning away!" The fiery fluid released him yesterday after a week's suffering, and Kane passed away unconscious of the approach of death.

That tired feeling is entirely overcome by Hood's Sarsaprilla, which creates an appetite, rouses the liver, cures headache, and gives renewed strength and vigor to the whole body. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaprilla, which is peculiar to itself. Sold by all druggist.
