

SELDOM can there be found a more beautiful sight than an elderly married couple who have journeyed together nearly half a century on the rugged road of life since the days of their youth when at an early age, they plighted their troth at the altar, and with heart pledged to heart, and hand clasped in hand, they started out bravely for the long march.

Then they were young and fair, hopeful and buoyant, strong in the pride and glory of their newly wedded hearts, and felt competent to endure all the trials and struggles which life might have in store for them. Loving parents blessed them, dear friends waited after them the choicest of blessings as they left the parental roof and started out together to make for themselves a home in the wide world which they might claim as their own.

They may be able to secure only a cabin in the primeval forest, but it is home to them, however humble it may be, and the strong arms of the husband wield the axe successfully, while the patient wife faithfully and bravely performs her duties, for love impels them to success, and with them there is no such word as fail.

Time rolls on, the years come and go, and pledges of love bless their union until the little home gives way to a large and commodious residence and the happy family rejoice in each other's love. Presently the dark angel enters their circle and bears away forever across the dark waters, some of the darling forms around whom the tender chords of affection had been closely twined, and grief and gloom are in their home, and sorrow in their hearts.

Middle life passes, and out from the home go one by one the boys and girls of their household, to unite with loving partners and form other homes of their own, until now as the parents have passed the meridian of life and are descending the steep declivity on the other side, they find themselves alone.

The dark shadows of the dim unknown stretch far away before them in lengthening lines towards the east, and they turn their faces westward to gaze upon the setting sun and watch its glories in the sky, as it reveals to them the sunset of a well spent life, rich in its memories of duty bravely performed.

A radiant light illumines their face, for by faith they see in the dim distance beyond the shining bars of the hands of their dear children, the loved and the lost, beckoning them on, and seeming to welcome the aged parents to a home of eternal rest and love. Their wan and wrinkled faces are bright and glorious, for they are lighted with a faith and hope that gives them an angelic lustre, and clasping hands tighter than ever, heart linked to heart, soul blended in soul, they pass over the dark river, where the pale boatman takes them to the other shore and they are gone from our vision, but the memory of their blessed example lingers with us as we strive to follow in their footsteps, and emulate their virtues.

PRESIDENT HARRISON is commander in chief of the army and navy, but it seems when he is on board the government steamer Baltimore, which is commanded by Admiral Gherardi, he is only a passenger, and is not even allowed to say who his friends may come on board. For a flat contradiction of his request, and a rude refusal amounting to an insult to the president, read the telegram from New York on the first page of this issue. Admiral Gherardi's conduct is inexcusable and his action towards any distinguished gentleman would be an insult, but it looks far worse when it was directed towards the president. He should be retired for awhile, to learn politeness or civility.

EMPEROR WILLIAM, having visited England and been cordially received by Queen Victoria and the royal household of Great Britain, is now about visiting Russia and making a friendly call on the czar of all the Russias. Meanwhile English eyes and English ears will be wide open to note the reception accorded him and to ascertain if the ties of friendship between him and Russia will be equal to those supposed to connect him with the English people. Turkey is an interested party, sits on the fence with anxious ears and bright eyes, and will note every movement of the visitor and his guests.

SPREADING about railroads, the project of connecting North and South America by rail is again under discussion. Col. Lopez, of New York, a very wealthy gentleman and connected with a syndicate representing many millions of capital, is about to visit the land of the Aztecs and confer with president Diaz in reference to Mexico's connection with the enterprise. Buenos Ayres and the cities of the United States may yet be connected by a continuous line of rail. The scheme is possible, and would be of immense advantage to the whole of the Western Hemisphere.

The latest exponent of Democracy in the northwest is the Seattle Telegraph. D. E. Durie is editorial manager and Alex. Beeg business manager. The Telegraph is a seven-column, eight-page daily, cleverly edited, with a fine display of telegraphic and local news, faultless in its typographical appearance, and could not well be better and be Democratic.

ELECTRICITY AND ITS EFFECTS.
While it Killed the Murderer Kemmler, its Power to Cure Diseases is Equally as Sure.
Electricity revives energy; gives strength to purpose; calls up the reserve. It comes gradually at first, and right enough. It must be met half way. Claims are not enough; proof is the essential. Their treatment gives that proof. Drs. Darrin's electric treatment gives strength, maintains it, revivifies circulation, provides something fit to circulate. It is carried to the diseased point—appropriated—assimilated. The system responds—your pains vanish—health returns. Read the testimony of two prominent people of Salem and Oregon City.

How Electricity Cured Rheumatism.
SALEM, Or., Aug. 1, 1890.
Editor Oregonian: This certifies that after a few treatments with Dr. Darrin's Electro-magnetic cure I was cured of rheumatism in my left shoulder, of about five years' standing. It has been almost two years since I was treated for the same, and have had no return of the complaint.

IRA WORKMAN.
How Mr. Ely Was Cured by Electricity.
Mr. Editor: For two years past I have been troubled with catarrh in the throat and nose. I could scarcely breathe from the effects of it. Great pain in my forehead and eyes was a natural result. Through Dr. Darrin's electric and home treatment I am cured. Refer to me at Oregon City.
DEANE C. ELY.

Drs. Darrin's Place of Business.
Drs. Darrin can be consulted daily in the Washington building, corner Fourth and Washington streets, Portland. Hours 10 to 5; evenings, 7 to 8; Sundays, 10 to 12. All chronic diseases, blood taints, irregularities in women, loss of vital power and early indications permanently cured, though no references are ever made in the press concerning such cases, owing to the delicacy of the patients. Examinations free to all, and circulars will be sent free to any address. Charges for treatment according to patient's ability to pay. The poor treated free of charge from 10 to 11 daily. All private diseases confidentially treated and cures guaranteed. Patients at a distance can be cured by home treatment. Medicines and letters sent without the doctors' name appearing.

Everything Goes Wrong
In the bodily mechanism when the liver gets out of order, constipation, indigestion, tamination of the blood, imperfect assimilation are certain to ensue. But it is easy to prevent these consequences, and remove their cause, by a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which regulates the biliary organs and regulates its action. The direct result is a disappearance of the pains beneath the ribs and throughout the chest, the nausea, headaches, yellowness of the skin, furred tongue, and sour odor of the breath, which characterize liver complaint. Some digestion and a regular habit of bowels are blessings secured by the use of this celebrated restorative of health, which imparts a degree of vigor to the body which is the best guarantee of safety from malarial epidemics, nerve weakness and other terrors relieved by it, and it imparts both appetite and sleep.
