A strange, and from a scientific point of view, an interesting discovery, has been made at Hermanustadt, in Give Us a Call and Be Convinced. Hungary. The bodies of several Honveds, proved to have fought in 1848, were found in a disused salt mine. How the soldiers got there is a mystery. The salt had so thoroughly Shipping and Commission Merchant penetrated the bodies that they were as well preserved as if they had been kept in spirits. In consequence of this discovery experiments will be made in the medical schools of Vienna, Buda Pesth and Berlin for testing the Cannery Supplies value of a concentrated solution of salt in preserving of corpses.

A Skull for a Flower-Pot.

W. G. Van Buskirk, the master mechanic of the Terre Haute & Peoria railroad shops in Paris, Ind., has a peculiar flower pot hanging in his door yard. The gruesome relic is made out of a human skull and is suspended with slender chains. The brain cavity is filled with earth, and a beautiful growth of vines creep from the empty sockets and grinning jaws. Across the forehead is printed the in-scription: "To what base uses may we come at last;" and the beholder as he gazes on this ghastly burlesque on human greatness, cannot refrain from involuntarily echoing the sentiment. The skull has something of a history, being that of a theological student who committed suicide. He interred in a small graveyard which afterwards fell into disuse and decay and was finally sold ror building pur poses. In making an excavation the skeleton was exhumed, and the skull came into Mr. Van Buskirk's posses
