

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON: FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1890 AS OTHERS SEE US.

Those who doubt the expediency of Astoria owning and operating her own water works should read the following from the San Francisco Commercial News, which voices the opinion of some of the best business talent in the California metropolis:

Astoria is an enterprising city, and its leading men are far-sighted. At a recent meeting, called to discuss a proposition granting a franchise to a water company, the meeting was almost unanimously in favor of the city owning its own water works.

From a returned seal hunter the telegraphic dispatches on the first page give a report of danger, privations and hardships experienced by a crew of seal hunters, which, if true, shows that they had a hard time in those northern waters.

practical method of overcoming the steep grades in this city, and those who ridiculed THE ASTORIAN'S opinion at that time are now compelled to admit the correctness of its position by announcing that the cable scheme has been adopted because the other is too expensive on the steep grades.

Whoever has land to spare is invited to read the request of the Chamber of Commerce, and offer sites for the Willamette University. The securing of that institution of learning for this city or vicinity would be of immense value to the entire community, and it must be had here if possible.
