Elphinstone died of a broken heaft over the result of the battle of Flodden. The Emperor Frederick III. and his son, Maximilian I., both died from eating too heartily of melons.

Nalentis, the Spanish theologian, died because he was accused by the pope of having falsified a passage in St. Augustine. It is said that after Malherbe, great French writer, had been dead over an hour he raised the drapery and reproved one of the watehers for using a word that was hardly pure French. Alonzo Cano, the French painter and sculptor of the seventeenth century, is said to have had such a fine sense of precision and symmetry that Leave ilwaco, atsa. eclipses my ever heretofore made. Charles Dickens was the greatest layelist who ever hved. No author before or since his time ha-won the fame that he achieved, and his works wen the fame that he achieved, and his works are even acre popular to-day than during his lifetime. They abound in wit, human, pathos, masterly delineation of character, vivid descriptions of places and incidents, thrilling and skillfully wrought plots. Each book is intensely interesting. No homeshould be without a set of these great and remarkable works. Not to have read them is to be far behind the age in which we live. The set of Dickens' works which we offer as a premium to our subscribers is handsomely printed from entirely new plates, with new 1772. For a a quarter of a century they have been eclebrated in every nock and corner of the civilized world. Yet there are thousands of homes in America not yet supplied with a set of Dickens, the usual high cost of the books preventing people in moderate circumstances from enjoying this branzy. But now, owing to the use of modern improved printing, folding and stitching an abinery, the extremely low price of white paper, and the great competition in the book trait, we are enabled to effer to our subscribers and readers a set of Dickens' works at a pure or liche all can afford to pay.
