There is a professional in San Francisco who is acquiring an interesting collection of Astoria hair. Locks of har are sent to increase this stock from other places besides Astoria by those who have faith in the collector's ability to correctly and successfully diagnose and prescribe for the ailment troubles the grower of the lock of bair. It would seem as if one who had faith to send their hard earned coin and hair on such a venture might possibly have faith enough to believe they were cured by taking most any treatment prescribed. The records of the express office show that large sums of money are sent out of this city for such and similar purposes and often times the expressage on the nostrums sent amounts to much more than their setimated value. But it is to be hoped.
