KATIE MAY THRALL.

The Grim Angel of Death Claims Her For His Victim.

PASSED OVER THE DARK RIVER

With a suddenness which is startling in its severity, the dread messenger who will sooner or later overtake us all, has entered this community and summoned hence one of the fairest and best known of the daughters of this city, who was confined to the house but forty-four hours, yet suffered intense agony for a great portion of the time. On Wednesday she was at her millinery store but complained of feeling very badly, going home earlier than usual. That evening she was suffering great pain which continued through the night and on Thursday she was pronounced by the physicians as having cerebral spinal meningitis.

Everything possible was done for her which medical skill or loving friends could suggest, but it was all in vain. The terrible disease contracted the cords of her neck, compelling her head to remain in a painful position, and spasms frequently attacked her, in several of which it seemed as if she would die. At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon she had severe spasms, after which she was supposed to be dead, but the doctor returned, and after her head had been washed, but at 4:45 p. m. she had another terrible spasm in which she died.

Miss Thrall was the daughter of Mrs. F. Sherman, was born in California, in 1870, and was therefore twenty-one years and five months of age. She had lived in this city since a child, and was known and esteemed by all. In partnership with Miss Rozette Sherman, her step sister, she had been in the millinery business, under the firm name of Thrall & Sherman, and had been very successful.

Her uniformly agreeable disposition, pleasant manners and ways had endeared her to a very large circle of friends and associates who will sadly miss her, and long mourn her sudden and painful death. To the bereaved mother and sorrowing relatives and friends, the Astorian tenders its heartfelt sympathy in this sad hour of affliction, congratulating them that though their dear one has been taken so suddenly from them, she has left a glorious legacy, for her memory will ever be cherished in the hearts of all who knew her, and be more enduring than the most costly marble slab or granite shaft which money could erect over the sod which will cover her lifeless remains.

There is a bunch of stems from a raspberry bush lying on the Astorian's desk. They were raised in the open air, and bear raspberries in every stage of development from the delicate blossom to the red, ripe and luscious fruit. They were grown on Otto Peterson's place at Upper Astoria, and are not mentioned because they are so much of a novelty here, but because they would be extraordinary anywhere except in this wonderfully fertile northwest with its mild, salubrious climate in which everything that is good grows better. At this season to the east of us the bleak and blighting blizzard blasts branch and berry, but here, Rev. G. W. Grannis and his neighbors pick ripe raspberries, and Wm. Douglas at the Tongue Point buoy depot has his fresh ripe strawberries with cream.

The glove contest between Gleason and Gannon, to take place at the rooms of the Athletic association Tuesday night, is attracting much attention and a large delegation from Portland and other neighboring cities is expected. Gleason is training in this city and is in fine condition, while Gleason is being coached at Portland, and will come down on Tuesday. The betting on the men is about even, although good guessers are putting their stuff on Gleason. Secretary Kelly of the club, desires that the members get their tickets and pay up their dues Tuesday morning. Any member in arrears for dues will be debarred the pleasure of witnessing the contest.

The practical jokers around Engine Co. No. 2 had great sport yesterday. It was an impromptu April fool's day and young, old, rich and poor fell victims to the sell. Early in the afternoon the boys procured from Griffin & Reed a miniature book and ladder truck. They placed on top of the Alert Company's ladder and then they stood around and asked every body they met if they had seen the new truck. Nearly every one answered in the negative and then they were taken in to see the truck. The laugh was put on about fifty people.

THE CENSUS ENUMERATORS.

The Efforts Being Made to Secure The Enumerators Due Them.

In reply to a letter from L. E. Selig, one of the census enumerators of this city, John Kelly, supervisor of census of the First Oregon District, writes as follows:

I sympathize very much with you and the other enumerators, in regard to the non-payment of their claims. There is certainly no legitimate reason for this long protracted delay. I have recently written very urgently to the superintendent at Washington about the delay in paying the claims of the enumerators. For my own claim for services and expenses I have not yet received a cent, so you see I am in the same boat with the rest of you boys. While in Portland recently, I had Senator Mitchell interest himself in the matter of paying the enumerators, and he wrote a very urgent letter to the department characterizing it as an unprecedented departure from the just, honest rule which is applicable alike to the government as to the private citizen to pay promptly their legitimate obligations. I have great hopes that this appeal will have the desired effect, and that before the approaching holidays close, we will all have received our hard earned pittance.

A LEGAL BATTLE FOR A CHILD.

An Interesting Case to Come Up In The County Court.

LITTLE ROSA RENTZ'S ADOPTION

An interesting contest over the custody of a 7-year-old girl will come up in the courts in this city in a few days. In order that the story may be understood it is necessary to go back to February 28, 1887, when one Mrs. Rentz, the mother of the child, who is now to form the subject of the contest, gave the little one to Mrs. C. M. Ecklund of this city, who adopted the little one in legal form, and the child's name was changed from Rosa Rentz to Rosa Ecklund.

Since parting with her child Mrs. Rentz, married again and became Mrs. Haven. Her circumstances and position in life improved, and she wanted her child back. The lady called on Mrs. Ecklund and the result of the interview was that Rosa's foster mother gave the child back and Rosa went to live with her mother on a ranch near Olney.

The arrangement Mrs. Ecklund made in returning Rosa to her mother did not seem to meet the approval of Mr. Ecklund, for a few days ago when that gentleman returned from Alaska and found that his adopted daughter had been surrendered to her mother he objected to the matter in court.

The only recourse was the courts and in the county court he swore out a writ for the restoration of the child. This was placed in the hands of Sheriff Smith and yesterday that officer went to the Haven ranch to serve it. He found Rosa enjoying herself, but the child refused to return to the Ecklund household. The sheriff did not want to take the little one by force and as Mrs. Haven said she had consented to the matter in court, the child was left with its mother. The latter will apply to the county court to have the adoption papers set aside.

A BUSINESS PROPOSITION.

A City Lady Who Required Proof Before Believing.

There recently appeared in the San Francisco Call, Chronicle, and Examiner, a proposition to the effect that it was an advertisement in which the Edwin W. Joy Company, in proof of the curative properties of Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla, offered to submit it to the terrific test of "no cure no pay." Many accepted, and their experience ever so convincing to be almost beyond belief. Here is another, written under date January 6, 1900:

DEAR SIR: I accepted your offer to test the merits of your vegetable remedy in such headaches, and called for a bottle and got it. I had been troubled for a long time, and had tried every remedy, with little or no effect; but Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla acted almost like magic, and the first bottle relieved me from one of the worst cases of sick headache one ever had.
