

GEORGE ROSE IS AT LIBERTY. The Murders of the Fredericksens Escapes from Jail. A VERY NEGLECTFUL SHERIFF.

Under date of the 2nd inst. from Aberdeen, Wash., a correspondent of the Oregonian sends an account of the escape of George Rose and two other prisoners from the jail at Montezano, which was published in that paper yesterday morning, and is copied as follows. No news of the escape reached this city:

Three prisoners escaped from the county jail at Montezano Sunday night. They were George Rose, held for safe keeping from Pacific county, charged with the slaying in the murder of Fredrickson and wife; John Black, sent from Elma, Chehalis county, for robbery, and under sentence to serve three years at the state penitentiary; and Baptiste Atok, an Indian, also of this county, sentenced one year. The two last were to have been taken to Walla Walla Tuesday morning.

Besides these there were in the jail G. W. Walker, undergoing a six month sentence for shooting a man at his ranch on the Humptulips, in the western part of this county, and John Lindbeck, a weak-minded German of Montezano, sentenced for one year for burglary. These two refused to leave the jail until the sheriff had signed a writ for their release. Walker tells a story to this effect: Some time since he became aware that the other prisoners had a plot hatching to escape, and so informed the sheriff, but no notice was taken of it. Sunday evening, about 7:30, he heard noises outside the jail, which he rightly surmised were made by persons who were there to help Rose and Black out. The latter told Walker and Lindbeck to keep quiet, and then walked from their cells into the main corridor of the cage and proceeded to the task of making a place of exit. This was accomplished about midnight, and after seeing Walker and Lindbeck to go with them or remain quiet, Rose, Black and the Indian disappeared from view.

After an examination Monday morning your correspondent found no traces of a forcible entrance into the jail from the outside. The jail is a small wooden structure, the outer door of which opened into a small ante-room. Beyond this is a larger room in which stands a Punby steel cage about 12x14 feet, in which are two steel cells where the prisoners are confined at night. These cells open into a corridor from which a door opens into the room from which only a wooden door opens to the outside ante-room. Not being confined to their cells the prisoners were peacefully free to express their opinion of the warden, Walker, exhibited a bar of iron about three feet long and an inch and a half in diameter which he had in his hand, and with which he had been in the prison, by their confederates. But as Walker remained in his cell he could not see how, or by whom, the work was done. It is quite probable that Black or Rose, who had worked more or less in the jail yard, had contrived to get this bar into their cell and prised off the door with it. All the marks on the door were made from the inside, which would not have been the case had confederates on the outside done the work. The door of one of the cells had been previously broken off while the other one was not locked at all, thus all five of the prisoners practically being in one room. There was no guard and none of the prisoners were freed at night, although three of them were under sentence to the penitentiary, expecting to leave the next morning, and one was held for self-confessed murder, as well as being the chief witness against two other murderers.

The sheriff offers a reward of $200 for the capture of the escapes and $100 for the apprehension of their confederates. George Rose is about 19 years old, heavy build, fair complexion, light hair, slight expression of face and has a small mole on one cheek; has scarcely any beard. John Black is about 30 years of age, dark complexion, dark hair and eyes, has short growth of beard, is an old offender and wears a very burdened expression. Baptiste Atok is an ordinary-looking villain, with no distinguishing features; he is about 50 years of age. The escapes had plenty of blankets and wore their ordinary clothing.

WHAT A SKEER SAW IN 1900. Astoria, Portland and Oregon City as They Will Then Appear.

And lo! and behold, I had a vision in the hours of the night. And the Angel Gabriel (which his surname was Wingate) pointed his feet-colored index to two great cities. Whereupon I looked forth from the great falls of the Willamette and beheld a grand succession of spires and minarets and towers from thence to the junction of two great rivers, and I heard the noise of the factories and of the falls and rattle of the wheels and the shriek of the engines, like unto the roar of the great waters.

And Gabriel pointed his index to a great central tower which was in the land of Oswego high unto the waters of the beautiful Willamette, and unto the inscription thereon. And Gabriel saith unto me: "Put on thy glasses which doth magnify and read the inscription thereon. And I read thereon in the language of the sons of Beel: 'One-half million pop.'"

Turn now thine eyes northwesterly to the other city, saith the angel. And behold I looked and saw as the fairest vision of the morning a like scene as of a suburb or near neighbor of the other great city. I beheld two double tracks of railway and three running swiftly with the electric power drawn from the Falls City trains of cars almost without number running to and fro between the two great cities. And the angel saith unto me what seest thou? And I read, over the great arch north of the first city, that spanned the double track, 'From Portland to Astoria in 1 hour.' And I looked again and saw upon the central tower on Smith's point another inscription in the language of the sons of Beel, 'Astoria one-tenth million pop.'"

And the angel saith unto me look upon this keypad and say what thou seest. And I looked upon a faint panoramic picture from the dim light of the Past that taught unto me a lesson. It showed Oregon, City a large town with canoes and small craft scurrying past a landing place marked with the words, 'Portland and Astoria,' with its fish houses and shore lined with trappers. But looking to the greater light upon the picture I beheld under the figures '1870-1890,' the much larger ships hovering around the ancient landing place, now become the greatest city of the three—and lo, I awoke and found it was a dream. Weather Report for November. The monthly report of Lieut. John P. Finley, in charge of the signal service office in San Francisco, has been received and is full of matters of interest in reference to the weather on this coast for the last month. The most remarkable feature of the weather for the month is the extraordinary deficiency of rainfall. It is a deficiency which affects the entire Pacific coast from Mexico to British Columbia. The proximate cause for this deficiency is found in the high which which the easterly movement of cyclonic areas from the Pacific ocean.

Rain fell on the following dates in Oregon: 5 to 8, 11, 22 to 27. The heaviest rainfalls in twenty-four hours were 0.62 inches at Fort Ruby, on the 8th, and 0.56 inches at San Diego on the 7th. The heaviest monthly rainfalls were 0.70 inches at San Diego and Olympia. The following stations report no rainfall: Walls Walls, Winemucca, Red Bluff, Sacramento and San Francisco. Snow is reported as follows: Oregon, 6th, Harney county. The temperature has been above the normal in all districts. The excess ranges from three degrees at Olympia to twelve degrees, at Los Angeles. The highest temperature, 90 degrees, occurred at Los Angeles 3rd. The lowest, 10 degrees occurred at Winnemucca on 19th.

PIONEERS OF OREGON. Interesting Reminiscences by One of The Number. ASTORIA, Dec. 4th, 1890.

EDITOR ASTORIAN: In the ASTORIAN of Dec. 2nd, in the report of the entertainment of Mr. Albert Rappleye by the committee of the chamber of commerce it is claimed that I "was the first white male child born west of the Rocky mountains," when called upon to respond to the sentiment, "The Pioneers of Oregon," The gentleman who proposed it, made that statement. In responding I stated that "I was the second male and third American child born in Oregon." In order that this unimportant bit of history may no longer tangle the brains of reporters of the northwest, I wish to state that my mother's diary says that Elizabeth Warren, nee Spaulding, now of Brownsville, was born in 1837, and Cyrus H. Walker, now of Warm Springs, was born in 1838, and I was born March 20, 1839, at the Lapwai, now Idaho. Oregon at that date embraced all the territory north of California, west of the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific ocean, and south of British Columbia. I do not claim any honor in connection with the incident of my birth, that honor as well as the nativity of my friends, Mrs. Warren and Mr. Walker belongs to our pioneer mothers and fathers who left friends and home and were months traveling across the continent on horseback to our now favored Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana, and I believe that all will say that they did their part of the pioneer work of Oregon. Respectfully, J. H. D. GRAY.

PERSONAL MENTION. A. Sorenson, of Gray's river, was in the city yesterday. A mortgage for $1,100 was yesterday left with the county recorder for record. Miss Eugenie Johnson has secured a position as clerk with Messrs. Griffin & Reed. Mrs. Julia Zimmerman, of Pacific county, Washington, is here on her way home from a visit up the river. Albert Rappleye, the canoe voyager, started for San Francisco yesterday afternoon on the steamship Oregon, one day behind time.

In reference to dog salmon, the Oregonian of yesterday says that Peter Esser, the state food commissioner, has been busy the past four or five days in looking after the dog salmon, with a view to preventing their further importation here. He informed a reporter yesterday that he has been unsuccessful in his efforts, having seen the shippers of fish and forbidden their handling this injurious article of diet. He has also called upon the steambot captains and cautioned them to the same effect.

THIRTY YEARS' PRACTICE. A Letter from an Eminent Physician. Mr. Editor: As the risk of inducing a proprietary preparation, I have a few words in favor of a new laxative principle. But first, how I came to discover it. A patient asked about taking Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla. As sarsaparilla usually contains mercury or iodine I objected, and asked for the formula, which finding purely vegetable, and so mild as to be to my mind almost inert, I consented. Imagine my astonishment when perfect laxative action was reported. It had two great points. First, being purely vegetable, it is quite necessary not cumulative in the system, being easily carried off by the digestive process; and second, it is effective with a less quantity of the cathartic principle than has hitherto been obtainable. In this respect ranks as a discovery, and it approaches the ideal, viz: the least medicine consistent with the greatest good. It harmonizes natural laxation and perfect safety, and would interest both the public and the profession. A CITY PHYSICIAN OF THIRTY YEARS' PRACTICE. San Francisco Examiner, March 10, 1930.
