C. H. COOPER,

The Leading and Largest House in Astoria.

One More Citizen.

A boy was born to the wife of H. P. Olsen yesterday at Tongue Point. Both mother and child are doing well.

The best $3 ladies' fine shoes at P. J. Goodman & Co.'s Sign of the Big Red Boot.

Shot Through the Foot.

The twelve-year-old boy of Mr. E. Lowe, at Fort Stevens, while loading a small rifle yesterday, had the charge pass through his foot, causing a painful wound.

If you want some extra fine photos, Moore's is the place to get them.

Badly Smashed Up.

Another bad coasting accident was reported from Main street yesterday, and as usual the bob was responsible. Pat Welch had his eye and face very badly cut up, and several others were more or less injured.

Mr. T. Fredericksen, piano tuner, has removed from 23 Cass street, to 21 West Sixth street.

Drifting About Helplessly.

The little steamer Erik, used as a milk boat by Larsen, on Young's river, met with an accident during Monday's storm. In the gale she ran foul of a snag while rounding Smith's Point, and carried away her propeller. She was found drifting helplessly around Young's Bay by the steamer Dispatch, and towed to this city for repairs.

The latest styles of boots and shoes at P. J. Goodman and Co.'s store. Sign of the big red boot.

A Painful Coasting Accident.

Miss Callie Brodie, while coasting on Main street last night, ran into the gutter on the corner of Jefferson, and sustained severe injuries. She was carried into Mrs. Holden's residence, where it was discovered that the right ankle was broken in three places, causing very painful injuries. The young lady will probably be laid up for some months.

Parties visiting in Portland can get The Daily Astorian at Handley & Haas' news stand, 150 First street.

Captain Huster's Condition.

Captain Huster is in a very precarious condition. Some days ago he was seized with an attack of pneumonia, and has been growing steadily worse. Late last night his medical attendant held out no hopes for his recovery, and it is believed that his death is imminent. That this supposition is incorrect will be the sincere wish of everybody in the city, but there seems to be little prospect of his ever rising from his bed again.

Crow's gallery takes the lead for fine work. See the new samples of Solo Cabinets now on exhibition.

The Walluski Bridge.

Mr. G. W. Fisher, who has charge of the Walluski bridge, came into town yesterday. He stated that, contrary to untruthful reports in some newspapers, the draw of the bridge is in perfect working order, and that there is no need to tie it down with ropes or anything else. There are four levers on the draw, two on each side, and when the wind blows with the violence that has characterized it lately, the bridge tender to insure more safety, places a small chain on them to lock them securely. Mean trickery has twisted this fact into a charge of bad bridge building.

The social to be given by the Ladies' Guild of Grace church, has been postponed until Wednesday, February 1st.

Person of Interest.

E. B. Kettle is at the Occident. E. Jay Smith is visiting the city. D. Max, from Portland, is in the city. Captain Flavel was out of bed yesterday. He will go to San Francisco on the next steamer. Mayor Crosby's condition is improving satisfactorily, and his physician hopes that he will be about again before long.

A musicale will be given by the choir of the M. E. Sunday school, assisted by other local talent, at the church Thursday evening, February 24, commencing at 8 o'clock. The proceeds to apply in buying a piano for the Sunday school's use. Admission 25 cents. Children 10 cents.

An eastern writer says that probably when Mrs. Cleveland drives under the White House portico and takes possession of the mansion March 4th, 1893, she will think of a prophetic dream which stood up at her side March 4th, 1888. If she looks up at the porch recently occupied by Mr. Harrison's father she may think of the tears she shed there. It was the only time she broke down during the preparations for the departure from the White House. She had been as sweet as ever only a little quiet. With a few friends she stood at one end of the upper windows under the big portico and watched

Mr. Cleveland got into his carriage to drive to the inauguration ceremonies at the capitol. Just as the carriage drove away Mr. Cleveland turned to look up at her. He waved his hand. Mrs. Cleveland returned the salutation, the tears burst out and, throwing herself on a friend's shoulder she gave way. One of the party said: "Oh, don't, Mrs. Cleveland, you'll come back in four years more." Mrs. Cleveland smiled even then, at the idea, but she dried her eyes, and that was the only time she showed any deep feeling during the day. Doubtless she will think what a prophet her friend was, and how foolish she was to waste those tears.

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that we, the undersigned firm of Hay & Cornelius, have this day sold our entire grocery and meat business in Upper Astoria, including the good will thereof, to Ross, Higgins & Co. who will hereafter carry it on at the old stand, and we heartily bespeak for them the same generous patronage bestowed upon us.

Referring to the above, will say that it will be our aim to conduct the business with the same fairness and attention as our predecessors. We have begun some extensive improvements on the store building which we hope to make of advantage to our patrons and ourselves. In the meantime we will carry a full stock of choice groceries, fresh meats, etc., and extend a cordial invitation to the public, especially citizens of Upper Astoria, to give us a call at our "Upper-town" store.

ROSS, HIGGINS & CO.

Short lengths of fine dress goods, silks and velvets given away at half their original cost at C. H. Cooper's remnant sale.

LITERARY NOTES.

The February number of Romance opens the third year of this magazine of complete stories, which has been making rapid strides in public favor of late. The remarkable series of "Special Numbers," which was begun last September, became popular at once, and the development of the novel idea has been watched with growing interest, as the story writers of one nation after another are thus presented to the American public. The present "Special English Number" offers a striking contrast to its immediate predecessor, which was more than half composed of tales from the Spanish. It contains specimens of the best work of such well known contemporary writers as James Payn, Walter Besant, Conan Doyle and E. Ansney, while selections from Mrs. Sturford and Captain Murray and Wilkie Collins reveal the spirit of earlier generations. There are also a special Valentine story by Mary E. Wilkins, brilliant French tales by Guy de Maupassant, Jacques Normand and Ferdinand Fleury, and an original sketch of Western life by Ed Towse. This magazine is issued by Romance Publishing Company, Clinton Hall, Astor Place, New York, at 25 cents a copy; subscriptions, $2 a year.
