

The Daily Astorian. PUBLISHED BY Astorian-Columbia Publishing Company. ASTORIA, OREGON. ASTORIAN BUILDING, - - - CASS STREET

Local weather for the twenty-four hours ending at 5 p. m., yesterday, furnished by the U. S. department of agriculture, weather bureau: Maximum temperature, 50 degrees. Minimum temperature, 36 degrees. Precipitation, 1.23 inches.

This paper has the largest circulation on the Columbia river. An honest and complete telegraphic report gives a newspaper a right and title to the name.

REVENGE AT ANY PRICE.

The Oregonian is dazed. Its senses are stunned by the horrible fact that it is no longer the God of Oregon, or the Moses of its people.

Two of the pilot commissioners are again given to Astoria, and independent pilotage on the river is made compulsory at high rates.

Mr. Cleveland's policy of calling an extra session of congress for financial reform, is a threat that he will refuse to be guided by a majority of those who have elected him.

Will the Missouri Baptist Conference kindly explain how the prompt delivery of a gentleman's supply of clean linen and underwear is "inimical to the civil and religious institutions of our people."

Senator Fulton's election to the presidency of the senate has been productive of every good result for his own future prospects, and the city he hails from.

The Salem Statesman deserves every credit for its excellent special editions, the last of which has just been published, giving a biography and portrait of every representative and senator now at the capitol.

The communication of "W" published in another column, certainly seems to us to present an argument that should have every weight with the commissioners.

Tropical Kanakas and American citizens will not mix. The word "annexation," as far as it concerns Hawaii is a myth.

Cooper's Annual Sale. Rules that will govern C. H. Cooper's Great Annual Sale are as follows. No goods will be charged except at regular prices.

hating untruthful, slanderous epithets on those who live their days out as honest, brave American citizens should do.

The president elect has had proclamations issued in his name without authority and has consented to them by silence.

Take the two propositions together, the meaning is that Cleveland breaks with the party that elected him, and will do it speedily, peremptorily and conclusively.

Mr. Cleveland is in disagreement with the great majority of his own party on the silver question. He may apply the whole power of his administration, and yet will find two-thirds of the democrats of this and the next congress vehemently opposed to the stoppage of the purchase of silver unless there is substituted for it some scheme that means more silver.

If Mr. Cleveland calls an extra session of congress to take charge of financial reform, he will find the republican vote necessary in order to prevent the passage of a free coinage bill over his veto.

The one question upon which a majority of those who voted for him may be rallied is that touching the tariff. A lowering of duties in the name of tariff reform, however mechanical, horizontal, unreasonably and unprofitable to the people, would receive the support of the bulk of the bones and brains of the democratic party.

Mr. Cleveland's policy of calling an extra session of congress for financial reform, is a threat that he will refuse to be guided by a majority of those who have elected him.

Will the Missouri Baptist Conference kindly explain how the prompt delivery of a gentleman's supply of clean linen and underwear is "inimical to the civil and religious institutions of our people."

Yet this is what they have done—sent a protest to President Harrison, complaining against the expediting of the examination of the baggage of Mrs. Sattoli, and O'Connell, and Dr. Pace, on their arrival in New York from Europe.

That Dangerous Locality. The prophecy made by the Astorian that somebody would be hurt on the Nehalem road at Peterson's place, came near being fulfilled yesterday.

Mrs. Farrell of Olney, came into town yesterday to do a little marketing. Calling at Conn's drug store, she bought a bottle of whisky, and when the clerk who was busy, gave her change, he handed her change for twenty dollars instead of ten which she had paid him.
