

The Daily Astorian. PUBLISHED BY Astorian-Columbia Publishing Company. ASTORIA, OREGON: ASTORIAN BUILDING, - - - CANN STREET

Local weather for the twenty-four hours ending at 5 p. m., yesterday, furnished by the U. S. department of agriculture, weather bureau: Maximum temperature, 55 degrees. Minimum temperature, 42 degrees. Precipitation, none.

This paper has the largest circulation on the Columbia river. An honest and complete telegraphic report gives a newspaper a right and title to the name.

So the cycle of time has brought its changes round, and we have a democratic president again. Cleveland makes his second bow to the world this morning, and for four years more will guide us through whatever that space of time holds.

There will be bickerings to come, official acts to denounce, no doubt, but our country will go on prospering through them all, and we will pull up at the end of President Cleveland's term proud of the fact that though the choice of the opposing party has guided our affairs he has done his duty.

State rights have broken out in Missouri. The able governor has issued a special message substantially declaring a form of warfare against the United States. The governor finds it a solemn thing that the United States judges are oppressing state judges, until "there is an absolute submission of all state power and pretense of state sovereignty."

There is an awful movement of the rural population in Illinois. Farmers are finding that, owing to the facilities afforded by the railroad monopolists, which are conducted to crush the rights out of the populace, they can sell Illinois farms for two or three times as much as farms can be bought for in far Northwest.

The Populists of Kansas are simply rural anarchists, and they may insist upon a scrap of civil war. They carried the election of governor, and have the senate; but have not the house. Their wild, fool schemes, therefore, depend upon securing the house, and they stop at no violence. The Jerry Simpson doctrine was not to mind the law. Of course, the supreme court of the state does not please these people.

Time flies with those congressmen, who retired to the shades of private life—some of them will never get into the sunshine of public station again—with the present administration. A few of them will be missed.

Hill's recent compliments to Grover seem somehow to remind one of the handshake with which a prize-fight is always prefaced.

The public has misjudged O'Donnell; he was at Homestead solely as a peace-maker. He says so himself.

We have received from Mr. Charles Grimsen, of Portland, Or., a little volume of poems entitled "Ideals." The story is poorly told, and possesses very little merit, but at the end of the book there are two or three short verses which make us regret that the author was evidently at his worst in the longer productions.

For they were ardent sons, and true, And faithful in their love to you, Till life did end in sleep, And day in night; when, one by one, Laid by the harp, his labors done, Fell into gentle sleep.

Sleep, gentle singers, sleep; Though silent lies the harp, unstrung, The world has heard the songs you sung.

'Tis sweet to rest and sleep, When in the fulness of the year, The ripened, peaceful end appears, That longed-for, dreamless sleep.

Sleep, gentle singers, sleep; Your patient lives won for each name, The glory of immortal fame! Sleep, gentle singers, sleep; The faith and hope that was in you Has taught the world to calmly view The end that ends in sleep."
