We desire to draw attention to sev eral dispatches published in another column regarding the closing of the Northern Pacific railroad office. The welfare of the city, and its love of truth, has made a misguided attempt to excite a public feeling against The Astorian, alleging that this paper was entirely wrong in saying the Northern Pacific offices were closed. We are sorry to say we have not sufficient faith in the veracity of the Budget to believe it. Is there any possible reason that the Northern Pacific should withdraw its agency from here unless some amicable arrangement with some other line had been accomplished, and what more likely than that an agreement had been entered into with the Union Pacific? The Astorian, deeming this a matter of great interest to our citizens, made it public, but we defy any one to show the least bias against the Northern Pacific. The first intimation that Mr. Stone was the Northern Pacific agent, came through that reliable sheet. the Budget. We are delighted to learn that the Northern Pacific will still continue its office here. If you look at any object through green glasses, that object will appear green also; so to the jaundiced eye of the editor of the Budget, everything looks yellow.

The water supply is discussed by jour nals all over the country. The contamination of water in use in the towns and cities is the rule. There is no great city that can boast of water that is absolutely pure. The closest apit is said to which draws upon river in the Welch mountains. The crusade for the purifi cation of New York's drinking water involves the destruction of thousands of dollars' worth of property, and the expenditure of a fabulous sum o money by that city. Such a crusade has, however, been decided upon as necessary in order to supply the million and a half of residents with pure water and prevent, if possible, the approach of the cholers. The drastic measures are the reflex of the apprehension which Eastern cities look for ward to, viz: the extreme summer heat and the importation of cholera,

The members of the South Carolina congregation which voted to expel the daughter of a widow from church be cause she was compelled to work at a telephone exchange several hours on Sunday, must feel proud of their brand of religion.
