County road agitation is upon the tapis, and conflicting views as to where the road should be located. Better call a meeting and get at the sense of the majority of the free-holders. Road building is expensive in this district, and should be located where the greatest number would be benefited, and also from one settlement to another.

It is gratifying to all interested in the cause of education to read in The Astorian the school exercises.

There is a number of bright pupils at the Westport district school, who have improved rapidly in their studies under our present teacher. The improvement in voice and gesture in singing and speaking is marked. School songs are the rifts through the clouds of study; vocal music is the spice of the school room; the good cheer of mental diet, and our educators and legislators did well to incorporate the teaching of vocal music in the school laws of Oregon. We have been expecting Prof. Lyman to pay us a visit. No school superintendent has visited this district for many years. We will try and make it pleasant for him. This term of school will end with exercises, on the 15th of June, and we would be pleased to see Prof. Lyman here before it closes. T. J. D.

The Course of True Love, Etc.

Evidently the mirror used by "Rev." G. B. Parks does not reflect truly, or else there are a number of the gentler sex singularly blind to the charms of that eccentric individual. The welcome extended to him here on the occasion of his last visit not having been as cordial as the recipient thought should have been the case, he determined to seek pastures new, and accordingly betook himself to the north shore. Reaching Fort Canby he occupied his time in writing doggerel of the rankiest description, and having thus endeavored to immortalize himself he proceeded to select two commissioned officers as victims to whom to dedicate the results of the attack of the afflatus divine. For this offense the boys put him in the guard house, and on his release next morning he hid himself back to Ilwaco and made preparations to deliver a lecture on his pet subject "matrimony," on which he professed to be an authority. A hall was engaged, the affair well advertised, and the prospects for success were good. But something unexpected happened. In the early part of the forenoon the "reverend" gentleman, or reverend humbug, was introduced to a comely widow whose name was given as "Mrs. Lucy Johnson." "Saddle-Bags" was smitten—badly so, and didn't hide his emotion. His head was in a greater whirl than ever during the succeeding three hours. Later he received a note signed "Lucy Johnson," in which the writer professed to have succumbed to Mr. Parks' charms of mind and person. He became much exercised when he read this, and without hesitation determined to postpone the lecture, and keep an appointment with the adorable "Lucy" which was asked for at 8:30 that evening (the lecture having been set for 8), near the school house. Eight o'clock arrived, but no lecturer was to be found and singularly enough there was no one near the hall. But there were a great many people concealed near the school house, and one form visible in its shade. Pretty soon a gaunt figure appeared and slowly and quietly approached the side of the supposed lady of his adoration. "Lucy, my life, my love," the gaunt one whispered; "come to the arms of your affinity." The widow was a little skittish and would not come, but Saddle-bags drew nearer and stretching out a pair of arms that looked like the tentacles of a crab, clasped the form of his "inamorata," who proved to be a muscular specimen of masculine humanity. Mr. Parks had barely touched the supposed fair one than he was greeted with a loud chorus of laughter from numerous throats, and amid a shower of such missiles as ripe eggs, over-ripe oranges, etc., he headed toward town at a rate that surprised the Ilwaco men. Fear, or shame, or something, lent him wings, and the long, giraffe-like limbs moved as they hadn't done before in many moons. He was chased all through town and made his escape as soon as possible, and upon his return to Astoria looked as if he had a bad attack of spavin.

Members of Farragut Post, No. 49, G. A. R., and Cushing Post No. 14, G. A. R., are hereby commanded to meet at headquarters of Cushing Post this morning at 10 o'clock to proceed in a body to attend Divine Service at the Presbyterian church. They are also directed to meet at the same place to-day at 2 p. m.

H. GRUBE, Commander of Farragut Post.

F. D. WINTON, Commander of Cushing Post.

CHECK THE FIRST APPROACH

Of rheumatism, and further attacks may be escaped, if proper precautions against exposure are taken, and there be no hereditary predisposition. Unfortunately, people who ultimately become chronic sufferers, too often neglect the trifling twinges and premonitory stiffness which herald the advent of this agonizing malady. Among the diseases for which Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has been found efficacious this is one, and the medicine being perfectly safe, it is certainly to be preferred to drugs used for its cure, which are frequently useless, and nothing more or less than poisonous. The substitution of this pleasant and pure blood purifier for medicines inimical to life in a slight overdose, is a measure which may fully be urged upon persons who desire to obtain relief safely, or who have failed to obtain it from the numerous pseudo remedies for this disease in the market.
