John Kopp is nothing if not enterprising. He always furnishes our citizens with beer and ice of the finest quality, and has now decided to put in a plant for the purpose of keeping offices and dwellings cool during the warm weather. His plan is to lay pipes throughout the city and lead them into private dwellings and offices. Through these pipes he will send currents of cool air that will make people imagine that ice cream is warm in comparison. For irate individuals of the male sex, or ladies of a peevish disposition, his scheme will work to perfection, as every man can have in his home a cool room where abnormal temperature may be reduced.

The phenomenon of phosphorescence is not universally understood. Objects possessing this property absorb light during the day and emit it at night. An estimable old lady had a dark closet in her house and she painted it with phosphorescent paint, expecting to illuminate it. But as the paint had no opportunity to absorb light, it couldn't emit any, and the old lady continues to search for her dress pockets with a candle.

Although the musk ox is still plentiful in the Arctic regions of this continent, it is believed that there are not more than five or six mounted specimens of the creature in the United States. One of the latest received was ordered three years ago, and finally delivered after 1700 miles of sledging and a great many miles of other travel. According to the best authorities, the odor that gives the musk ox its name cannot be traced to any one special secretion.

About twenty members of the Astoria Football Club went down to the Smith's Point grounds last evening to have a final practice game before Friday's big match at the Pioneer and Historical Society's picnic. Sides were selected by Captain Bartholomew and J. Smith, and the game commenced about 6:45. The ground was in excellent condition, and the spectators thoroughly enjoyed the exhibition. It was noticed that a disposition was frequently manifested to sacrifice team work for the sake of the chance of brilliant individual plays, and this to a certain extent, detracted from the benefits of the practice, but as the season progresses and the first eleven of the club are given an opportunity to play together this feature will not be noticeable. The teams for Friday will be composed as follows:

Married men's team—Forwards: Bradford, left wing; Thad Trullinger, left guard; A. Bartholomew (captain) center; J. Lieberman, right guard; J. R. Rathorn, right wing; half-backs—P. W. Weeks, left; P. ORIGIN OF SIGNING WITH A CROSS

Signing with a cross was first practiced by Christians to distinguish themselves from the pagans. In ancient times kings and nobles used the sign of the cross, whether they could write or not, as a symbol that the person making it pledged himself, by his Christian faith to the truth of the matter to which he affixed it.
