A fishing boat was broken in two near St. Helens by the Potter on Tuesday evening, but no lives were lost, as the single occupant of the boat grasped one of the paddle blades and hung on in desperation until the machinery was stopped. His arm was badly crushed and was said to have been broken. A dispute has arisen as to where the responsibility for the accident rests, the fisherman claiming he had a light burning, and the captain of the Potter being equally positive on the other side of the question. The victim of the accident was put ashore at St. Helens to get medical treatment.

The steam launch Elida, which was launched on the ways at Louis Martin's shop on Thursday, raised yesterday. It was erroneously stated in yesterday's issue that the boat was built by Mr. Martin, whereas it should have been stated that the deck house alone was constructed by him. The Elida was built on Young's River, and the reason why she sank was on account of one of the plugs in the hull having been knocked out accidentally just before she slid off the ways.

OUR ABSENT AUTHOR.

The following beautiful poem by Col. Pat Doan is so strictly in line with that gifted writer's remarkable and lurid write up of Clatsop county's resources, that it deserves a place in public print. The newspapers of today do not run much to poetry, that is a fact, deeming that the sterner and more sensational side of life demands the greater attention; but as there may be in the "dim and distant" a release of Col. Pat's crimson Clatsop effusion, it is well that this musical triumph of his muse should be preserved as a possible addendum thereto. It will be observed that Astoria has no place in the scintillating stanzas, except that the line:

"Brings the smell of stale tommycods blundered in blue." may contain a covert allusion to our extensive fishing interests. The apparent oversight might have arisen from the dashing colonel's disgust and dis-appointment at losing some simoleons in a real estate trade, which he intended to supplement his $100,000 takeoff on the contemplated half a million indemnity racket he tried to work. However, here is the Byrono-Miltonic soar into the empyrean of soul felt idealization, by Colonel Pat Doan:

FIRST VERSE. When the breeze from the blue bottle's blustering blows, Twirls the toads in a tooroomaloo, And the whiskey white of the wheedle some whim Drowns the roll of the rattattatoo, Then I dream in the shade of the shally go shies;

SECOND STANZA. Ah, the shuddering shoe and the blink etty blanks When the punting falls from the bough In the blast of a hurricane's hicketty hanks On the hills of the hocketty how! Give the rigamarole to the clangery wang. If they care for such fiddledeedee; But the thimmbob kids of the whang erybang Keeps the higglediggie for me.

THIRD SPASM. It is plilly po doddle and aligobung When the lolly pop covers the ground; Yet the polididdle perishes punkety pung When the heart jimmy coggles around. If the soul cannot snoop at the giggle some care, Seeking succor in gulgetty slug, It is useless to say to the pulsating heart, "Parky doodle ker chuggetty chug!"

A GOOD WORD. Mr. J. J. Kell, Sharpsburg, Pa., Dear Sir:—I am glad to say a good word for your "Krause's Headache Capsules." After suffering for over three years with acute neuralgia and its consequent insomnia, (which seemed to haffe the efforts of some of our best physicians) you suggested this remedy which gave me almost instant relief. Words fail to express the praise I should like to bestow on Krause's Headache Capsules. Gratefully yours, MRS. E. R. HOLMES, Mountrose, Pa. For sale by Chas. Rogers, Astoria, Or., sole agent.

The Almighty Dollar.

We have the pleasure to announce a new departure—the location of an agency in New York city for the purchase and selection of our stock, in order to enable us to quote lower prices than others who buy on long time and ask big prices in these days of panic and hard times.

Our agent has instructions to watch every sale and failure, to look after every house on the verge of bankruptcy and ruin, and with cash in hand to buy the lump, or in the lot, every class of merchandise that we can get at less than its value, so that we can mark in plain figures on our bargain prices that have not been named or quoted in this market or any other.

Not by favor, but by merit alone, will we maintain and increase our unrivalled reputation.

Big prices will not do in these times, when even the wealthy cannot afford to waste their money and the poor require double duty of every dollar and every penny.

As our prices change with every sale, it will be impossible to give quotations, but it will be our aim to name figures that will compel you in self-defense to buy of us.

We deal in good goods, not trash, and believe the masses will patronize the house that sells the best goods for the least money.

Among our daily arrivals we shall place before our people some land-slides that are positively beyond the whisper of competition, comparison or monopoly; prices that will teach you in the silent logic of truth the difference between dealing with live and dead men, between the cash and credit system, between the right and the wrong way.

Hence we throw out among the masses these specialties—these matchless goods and matchless prices—to check the insane and criminal practice of wasting money for the paltry consideration of a little credit.

Who can tell the waste of money when you get your goods of houses that buy and sell on long time? Gold is a good thing, but give us genius and ambition, and then an energy that never tires, a mind that never wanders, an eye that never sleeps, and a nerve that never quivers, and we will ride rough-shod all over the world.

New advanced ideas are crowding out the old, pluck instead of luck, cash instead of credit, brains in the place of cheek, science and ability beating back and crushing into oblivion these moribund merchants with their tough and tremendous long-time prices.

What is the use of wasting a dollar when you may save it? Upon our counters will be thrown, day after day, new arrivals in panic prices, from houses that collapsed, others that will go down tomorrow, and still others who throw out these sacrifices in vain hopes to outlive the storm.

From such sources as these we buy our goods, and the house that wants the trade of the people must go beyond these advanced lines, must beat these prices or go down, for if there is honor in man or virtue in good goods at low prices we mean to be masters of the situation—the live pioneers who dive down to rock bottom.

We shall answer such unanswerable arguments as no house can match; leaders and specialists at quotations that no other can offer; stern and stubborn facts that will level your head on the subject of genuine bargains.

Hard luck and harder times pinch some high toned old concerns. They must have money to meet the inevitable note tomorrow. They all know we have the cash—the hard and solid cash—and a thousand will buy double the value, and we can offer goods at figures away below the regular wholesale jobbers.

We wish to right the wrong, and believe the god of battle is ever with the right. When bankruptcy and ruin overtakes the victim we are always there with the American dollar.

When the hammer of the auctioneer falls upon such grand and gigantic windshakes listen for our name. Thus we are fighting against the old, rotten credit system for money, for reputation and for the people.

This is the music these low prices that crowd our store whilst other merchants sleep on their counters, little dreaming of the day of disaster and ruin awaiting all who buy on long time and sell on longer—who pay big prices, and all at figures that no people can afford to pay.

We invite an early and repeated visit and inspection. Our stock will be replenished every few days, and to merchants we offer some special leaders fully 15 to 20 per cent. less than current prices in New York city.
