SHERMAN IS ALL RIGHT.

Senator Sherman has won great and most honorable distinction in doing with the finances of the country the best of the circumstances admitted, and the immense work of the resumption of specie payments was almost his individual achievement. That substantially made all dollars in this country equal to gold. Every transaction in the land ever since has been under that standard of the measure of value. He has recognized the necessity of a limited issue of greenbacks and a limited issue of silver dollars, and has been the invincible opponent of those who would break the limit. His wisdom has been that of the enlightenment of moderation, and his policy that of national integrity and public justice. The speech of Senator Sherman is from fullness of information and clearness of conviction and not pleasing to the extremists on either side, but marking the broad and solid way of bimetallicism; and that is the road we are bound to travel. The substance of the speech is, repeal the silver purchase law, and then provide for as large use of silver as is consistent with the solid maintenance of the public credit and the final measurement of material values by the world's indisputable standard.

Supposing Admiral Christopher Columbus had run up against the late cyclone with his cranksy caravels, what would we have done for a discoverer here in America? True, we had had the Norsemen and their wave-riding dragon ships, light as birds, but the fair-haired discoverers were so eternally modest about it that we probably wouldn't have known that we were discovered until some time later. But perhaps this is borrowing trouble unnecessarily—and it's a bad time for borrowing anything now, even if one doesn't mean to pay it back—for there's no record of such a storm as this in the annals of the continent. The probability is that the art of making cyclones wasn't known in that ago. The worst storms they had in those days were baby breezes to the recent wind exhibitions.

A ton of gold is annually buried in the cemeteries of the United States. A law for the filling and plugging and plating of teeth with silver bullion would come right handy in this emergency. If this use of gold for the repairing of teeth goes on many thousands of years it is easy to see that the entire stock on hand will be exhausted, and that our remote posterity will be compelled in self defense to resort to placer mining in the old cemeteries in order to recover the precious metal that has been wasted by their ancestors.

It is sheer nonsense, and the poorest of it, for the Telegram to say that the vote of the house stopping the purchase of silver is a vote against silver. It is a vote for fair play between the money metals. The discrimination for silver smelters and against gold by the Sherman law, was its fault. It is not hostility to silver when we equip ourselves for active service with the standard of the world. It does not make one a gold bug to give gold a fair show.

The silver capitalists—the men who have made enormous profits by the conversion of their very cheap silver bullion into coined gold—should stop their fight in the senate. There is nothing in it for them. The purchase of silver is about to be stopped, and will never be resumed in stated quantities.

The rioters of Chicago have been mistaken as to the conditions of American life. The politicians who flatter them will not be with them when it comes to facing Gatling guns, and heery riots under false pretenses of hunger never will go far.

The silver men in the senate persist in showing their depreciated mettle.

One of the circus gags tried to work a "filmmam" game on Schloeman, the city baker, says the Roseburg Review. A couple of them came in during the evening and one of them bought ten cents' worth of tobacco, tendering a ten-dollar gold piece in payment. Mr. Schloeman gave him back his change, $5 in gold and $4.90 in silver. Then the fellow's pal remarked that the silver was a nuisance to carry and together they handed back $5 in silver to be changed for $5 in gold. All this time they were talking to confuse the baker, and as he was about to hand back the $5 in gold they requested him not to forget to give back that $10 gold piece. Mr. Schloeman did not know just "where he was at," but realized that a game was being worked on him, and requested a gentleman who had just stepped in to go for the marshal. This alarmed the circus men and they went out of the shop and around the corner at a 2:40 pace, leaving Mr. Schloeman in possession of $5 of their money. They never came back and he is that much ahead.

MADE MISERABLE FOR LIFE.

This you may easily be if you fail to remedy the indigestion and non-assimilation of the food, which are the attendants and originators of nervousness, that ever present ailment which no narcotic, mineral sedative or nervine can ever do more than temporarily relieve. Of course these remedies have no effect upon the organs of digestion and assimilation, except to disorder and enfeeble them, thus aggravating the original difficulty. Among the most alarming and dangerous symptoms of chronic nervousness is insomnia, which is the professional term for inability to sleep. Where this exists there is always a tendency to mental overthrow, paresis and eventual insanity. Begin at the fountain head of all this difficulty with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters and avert evil consequences. No sooner does the stomach resume its tone, and the system gain in vigor through the aid of this benign tonic, than sleep returns and the nervous grow tranquil. Chills and fever, rheumatism, biliousness, and constipation yield to the bitters.

Attempt at Suicide.

It Might Have Been Prevailed.

[From the Boston Post.] While the walks in the Public Garden were crowded yesterday afternoon about 4:20 o'clock, people near the entrance gates at the corner of Beacon and Charles streets were horrified to see a man suddenly plunge a knife repeatedly into his throat and fall to the ground.

While waiting for a conveyance an officer questioned the would-be suicide, who was about 50 years of age, as to his name, address, and reason for wishing to end his life, but the man steadfastly refused to give any information regarding himself. He was taken to the Massachusetts General Hospital and surgical attendance given him. Although weak from loss of blood it is probable he will recover. About 9 o'clock last night a hospital attendant got a little information from him. He said his name was Samuel D., and that he came some weeks ago from New Brunswick. The last few days his head has felt queer, and he has been wandering about the city, not knowing which way to turn. What impelled him to commit his rash act he was unable to say.

The above is the familiar but terrible story of the results of mental derangement caused by overstrain of the nervous system. People who have dizziness, headache or backache, or who are troubled with melancholy or despondent feelings, are already well on the road which leads to insanity and suicide.
